House Votes To Restrict Reciprocal Trade Plan

One-Year Extension, Curbs on Powers Of President Carry, 234 to 149

(Roll Call, Page 6)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The first sharp cutback in the Reciprocal Trade Act in 14 years was rushed through the House yesterday by Republicans in a series of four roll call votes.

The passage count of 234 to 149 followed failure of two separate Democratic attempts to open up the bill to amendments, and one last futile effort to send it back to committee.

The modified program, described by Secretary of State Marshall as worse than no program at all, extends the act only one year. In addition, Congress could "veto" any future trade agreement that went beyond Tariff Commission recommendations.

Tariff Issue Back

The House action definitely pitched the tariff issue, traditional dividing line of the two major parties, into the presidential campaign, and with it the foreign economic policy of the United States.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where leading Democrats echoed the cry of their House colleagues that the bill "kills" the reciprocal trade agreements program, and signals a GOP return to isolationism, tariff log-rolling and high trade walls.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), ranking minority member of the Senate Finance Committee, said he agrees with Marshall that the bill is "crippling" and undercuts the European recovery program.

In an effort to avert a "complete end to the program," George said he will propose as a compromise a straight one-year extension "unencumbered by any changes in the present law."

In House debate leading up to the final vote, Republican leaders for the first time opened fire on Secretary Marshall for his criticism of the Republican bill. Democrats and some Republicans rallied to Marshall's defense.

In the end, 218 Republicans and 16 Democrats voted for the GOP bill. Voting "No" were 142 Democrats, 5 Republicans and 2 American Laborites.

Before the passage vote, Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee, moved to substitute the straight three-year extension the President had recommended, without any changes in tariff-making procedure. Doughton's motion was defeated, 211 to 169.

Administration Loses

The Democrats lost two earlier tests by somewhat closer margins, with a sprinkling of support from Republicans in sympathy with the program. They tried to open up the ironclad rule, barring any changes in the bill, and failed, 212 to 156. Then they attempted to kill the rule, losing this time, 196 to 166.

Administration hopes of rallying any substantial Republican opposition to the bill vanished after Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), who favors a straight three-year extension, announced he would vote for the bill. Eaton termed the limitations "unfortunate" but said the pro-

Martin Sees Hope for Home Rule Bill Yet

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R., Mass.) predicted yesterday time will be found this session to complete House work on the Washington home-rule bill.

"I sincerely hope we can get the bill through this session," said Speaker Martin.

"We'll bring it up the first chance we get, but it will probably not be this week because our program is pretty crowded this week," Martin said.

The home-rule bill, charting a reorganization of the District government and a limited form of home rule, is the unfinished business of the House, but no date is now set to finish it. The Washington bill is being displaced by national legislation.

Sponsors of the measure have relied strongly on House Republican leadership support to push the bill as far as it has gone.

While House votes went for the bill by narrow margins, opponents have launched a strong drive to kill it by delaying tactics.

New Subversive Organization List Reported Ready

The Department of Justice has prepared a new list of subversive organizations, it was learned last night.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark, it was understood, will announce the existence of the list at a press conference today, although it will not be made public immediately.

The new list, it is believed, will include the names of several left-wing labor unions (names not stated because Federal Bureau of Investigation inquiries still are in progress).

The Attorney General, reached at home last night, said he was unable to confirm or deny the existence of the list.

It was reported that high-placed right-wing union leaders were consulted on preparation of the roster, but had not participated in its formulation.

Gaming Probe Hears Chief of First Precinct

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Capt. Howard V. Covell, head of the first police precinct, and Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad leader, testified yesterday in the District's gambling probe.

It was Lieutenant Blick's third appearance in the special grand jury investigation. Neither he nor Covell made any comment to reporters about their testimony.

Personnel officer of the Police Department for about three years, and assistant to the assistant police superintendent for nearly eight years, Captain Covell has extensive knowledge about administration of the department.

The fact that he was named head of the first precinct only last April 1, just after he was appointed a temporary captain, made it appear unlikely that Covell's questioning dealt at any length with gambling in that precinct.

However, the first precinct, which covers the downtown area and is bounded on the north by K st., on the south by The Mall, on the west by 15th st., and on the east by 1st and 2d sts. ne., has one of the highest crime rates in the city.

Observers speculated that the bulk of Captain Covell's testimony, because of his experience, concerned the transfer and use of personnel in the precincts and the special squads.

Blick, who was closeted with the grand jury about an hour, later returned, carrying a large, heavy suitcase, which he took to the office of the United States Attorney, George Morris Fay, without any indication of what it contained.

He has previously carried a briefcase of documents with him into the secret jury proceedings.

Captain Covell's appearance yesterday indicated that Fay will follow through on his previously announced intention of calling before the grand jury all the precinct captains.

Deadlock on Ruhr Broken as French Win Concessions

London (Thursday), May 27 (AP). A six-country conference broke a major deadlock late last night on the political and economic future of western Germany.

The conference agreed upon broad powers for an international control board over the iron ore, coal and coke of the Ruhr Valley, industrial heart of western Europe.

The agreement broke an impasse which had threatened failure of the talks among the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

First Under Taft-Hartley Law

Emergency Election Scheduled In Oak Ridge Wage Dispute

By the Associated Press

Attorneys for the National Labor Relations Board yesterday announced plans to hold the first plant election under the national emergency provision of the Taft-Hartley law on June 1 and 2 at the Oak Ridge national laboratory.

Under the law, the employes must vote on whether they want to accept the company's final offer of settlement.

In this case, the final offer of the company—Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp.—is a 35-page proposed contract.

Charles N. Brooks, NLRB associate general counsel, announced that instead of printing this document on the ballot, board attorneys will ask only whether the workers want to accept it, and the company will send a copy to each of the 875 employes before the election.

The workers are represented by the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council. The plant is one of three vital atomic establishments at Oak Ridge, Tenn. A strike was averted by a Taft-Hartley emergency injunction on March 19. This injunction will run out June 7 and the strike is again threatened then.

Brooks said the ballots will be counted the night of June 2 and the results announced. But the vote will not be officially certified to the United States Attorney General until June 7, Brooks said, to allow both sides five days to file any objections to the conduct of the election.

Real Estate Case Hinging On Letter

By Howard Dutkin
Post Reporter

Government hopes of obtaining an antitrust conviction against the National Association of Real Estate Boards today hinged, in large part, upon the admissibility of a letter.

Associate Justice Edward M. Curran, District Court, is expected to rule today whether the letter, dictated in 1946 by Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the NAREB, may be admitted to evidence.

Exact contents of the letter, described by Justice Department Prosecutor Victor H. Kramer as forming "a perfect expression of the Government case," could not be determined.

But this much was known. It was sent by Nelson to an A. R. Saunders, then secretary of the Michigan Association of Real Estate Boards. It concerned the national committee on commission rates and it indicated joint action was desirable between local boards that set rate standards and the national group.

After Curran had squelched one move after another on the part of Kramer to have minutes of various national association meetings introduced, the jurist agreed to take the Nelson letter under advisement.

Earlier, Kramer was subjected to a tongue-lashing by Curran when he asked the judge upon what grounds he had sustained an objection by defense counsel to admissibility of another Nelson letter.

"I don't want you to ask me . . ." Curran said angrily, slapping the bench with his hand . . . "How long have you been trying cases? Is it your practice to ask a judge why he makes a ruling?

"No sir," Kramer replied.

"Don't do it again. I expect you

Dynamiters Give Jews Ultimatum

Shellfire Is Heavy Across Jerusalem; Bloodiest Fighting Reported in Suburb

Cairo, May 26 (AP).—The battle of Jerusalem raged on today and the Security Council's deadline for a cease-fire in the Holy Land passed almost unnoticed.

As U. N. truce efforts collapsed at Lake Success, Arab Legion armor and dynamiters pressed closer on a 200-yard square of Jewish-held rubble in Jerusalem's Old City.

The British-controlled Near East Radio said that defenders had been split and that an Arab ultimatum had been given to Jewish Irgunists entrenched in the great Hulva Synagogue to surrender or die by being blown up.

An Associated Press dispatch from inside the Old City said Arab officers expected a collapse of the Jewish defense "momentarily."

The Near East Radio station said Jewish residents of Old Jerusalem were under almost continuous shellfire. It said Jewish-held buildings in modern Jerusalem had been bombed by Arab planes for the first time.

The broadcast said the biggest Egyptian bombers yet, with fighter escort, had bombarded Jewish Tel Aviv.

Reports from Jerusalem said a second hard fight was raging west of the city along the road to Tel Aviv.

An Arab Legion communique said 800 Jewish casualties had been inflicted in a battle at Latrun, and that Jews had suffered a "crushing defeat" there, at Beit Jiz and Khulda in the fight for control of the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road.

The communique said Abu Ghosh, a Jewish strong point dominating the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road, had been captured.

The communique said only that Arab operations in Jerusalem were going "according to plan."

A Syrian communique said Syrian patrols had pushed the Jews back in a night scouting expedition south of Shaar Hakolan, below the Sea of Galilee and barely inside the Palestine frontier. The area is east of previous areas of Syrian operations. The communique said Syrian artillery shelled Jewish fortifications at Degania, at the tip of the sea.

A pooled dispatch from American correspondents in Jerusalem said the heaviest fighting now in progress in the Holy Land was at Latrun, vital road junction on the Tel Aviv highway west of Jerusalem.

The Near East Radio broadcast said a Jewish convoy on the Jaffa-Jerusalem road had been wiped out, despite the intervention of 3000 Jews.

The Arab Legion had announced the capture of Latrun yesterday, and said it had "completely exterminated" a Jewish force of 600 in a 24-hour battle. Today, Jewish

Forbidden, Says Civil Service On U.S. Workers' Home Politics

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Federal workers may not engage in political activity on a partisan basis in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

The Civil Service Commission yesterday rejected a joint request by Representatives Smith (D., Va.), and Sasscer (D., Md), that these employes be permitted to run for office on the Democratic and Republican tickets, and that they be given the right to participate in local conventions of the two major parties. A week ago it held a public hearing on the question.

The decision, revealed in a letter from Civil Service President Harry B. Mitchell to Representative Smith, means that Federal workers who seek local office must continue to run as independent candidates.

Mitchell conceded that the commission had the power, "from a strictly legal point of view," to change its regulations under the Hatch "no-politics" act to grant the request of Representatives Smith and Sasscer. But he wrote.

"We have concluded that the policy followed in the past with respect to this matter is a policy to which we should adhere in the interest of preserving and strengthening the career service.

"Partisan political activity in connection with local elections would sooner or later raise the question of whether those participating in such activity were discharging their duties as Federal employes in an objective and impartial manner.

"Besides being a reversal of past practice since the beginning of the Nation, it would, it seems to us, put the Congress and the Civil Service Commission in a rather ridiculous position to decide that Federal employes in Arlington would be allowed to engage in partisan politics, but if such employes did the same thing across the line even in the slightest degree, they would have to be removed from their Federal employment."

Mitchell did take notice of the many criticisms expressed by employes at the public hearing, who said they were in doubt as to just what they could do, and not do, under the Hatch Act. He explained the commission would be glad to answer specific questions as to what political actions are permissible.

The Civil Service official also repeated his request for Congress to give the commission discretionary power in dealing with Hatch Act violators. There is only one penalty now—outright removal of the convicted employe.

If it had power to fix sentences, the commission feels more Federal workers would exercise their political rights. Since many Federal workers are in doubt as to their political rights and since dismissal is the only penalty for violation, the commission agrees that many employes don't do things they have a perfect right to do for fear of breaking the law.

The Mitchell letter went into the background of political restrictions on Federal workers, citing an order on the subject issued in 1801 by President Thomas Jef-

Resignation Is Withdrawn By Virden

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

John C. Virden yesterday withdrew his resignation as director of the Commerce Department's office of industry cooperation.

The 51-year-old Cleveland industrialist and veteran of two World Wars tendered his resignation last week after a member of Congress had objected to Virden's daughter, Euphemia, being employed by a Russian news agency.

Until yesterday morning, Virden was determined to resign once he had broken in a successor, despite the fact that President Truman, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, Representative George H. Bender (R., Ohio), and others rose to vouch for his ability and loyalty.

However, Virden met with Secretary Sawyer again yesterday, and following the meeting, Sawyer announced that the resignation had been withdrawn.

Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.), who had demanded the resignation of Virden on the basis of his daughter's job, yesterday stood pat on his statement of last week: that Federal officials having known Communist relatives should quit their Government posts.

Also pat on her statement of last week—"no comment"—was 22-year-old, tall, dark and pretty Euphemia, better known as Mickey, who works for Tass, official Soviet news agency here, as a teletype operator. Virden and his daughter broke up over her ideology last January. Since then she has been living by herself in an apartment at 1328 Park rd. nw.

Mickey, a product of fashionable schools and colleges, made her debut into high society in the winter of 1946.

U. S. Proposes Four-Power Danube Talks

Post Reporter

The United States made a new move this week to break a stubborn deadlock between Russia and the west—this time over navigation on the Danube River.

Secretary Marshall announced an American proposal, formally made on Tuesday, for a Danube conference in Belgrade on July 30. Replies are now being awaited from Great Britain, France and Russia, the other members of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Free and open navigation on the Danube, the Secretary told his press conference, "is of very real urgency to the peoples of all Europe in their daily lives.

"It is our conviction," he said, "that a beneficial new convention for the regime of navigation on the Danube should be worked out as soon as possible. Until we reach agreement on a new convention, this important sphere remains an unsettled area in international relations. It should be, instead, an area of constructive cooperation."

There is little, if any, prospect the Russians will agree to open up the great waterway, which is under their virtual control from Linz, in Austria, to its mouth in the Black Sea. However, the United States is ready to discuss the question once more, and is willing to go to Belgrade, the headquarters of the Cominform, to do it.

The first American approach for a conference was made February 27, it was learned yesterday. The Russians suggested Belgrade, on the Danube, the capital of one of the most important Danube countries, as an appropriate site, but they wanted an earlier date.

'Voice of America' Sabotages U. S., Aroused Senators Told

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate rocked with angry protests from both Republicans and Democrats yesterday over a series of Voice of America programs which told Latin Americans that New England was "founded on hypocrisy" and Texas was "born in sin."

The "Avenging Angels" in Utah were supposed to be using rubber hose or clubs to enforce a contribution of 10 per cent from every citizen to a socialized State, according to the scripts.

The programs were written by the National Broadcasting Co. and beamed to Latin America under a congressional mandate that the State Department place contracts for such programs with the major networks.

Although paid from the 27 million dollars in taxpayers' funds for the Voice of America, the programs bore no identification as having emanated from the United States Government, but were carried simply as an NBC offering.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.) touched off the storm when he began reading scripts to the Senate of a series of broadcasts known as "Know North America."

Capehart said he would introduce a resolution today calling for an investigation of the matter by

League Asks For Terms Of Political Settlement

Serious Situation Needs Careful U. S. Consideration Now, Austin Declares

Lake Success, May 26 (AP).—The Arabs rejected tonight a United Nations cease-fire order for Palestine.

But they asked the Security Council to state promptly whether it could offer any acceptable terms for a political settlement that might stop their war with Jewish Israel in the Holy Land.

The result tonight of long conferences here and at Arab League headquarters in Amman, Trans-Jordan, is that the fighting goes on and the Jews have declared unacceptable the conditions laid down by Arabs for a truce.

Israel Replies

Israel replied — through the Jewish Agency for Palestine—that the Arab answers were a flagrant rejection of the Council's appeal.

The Jews said if the Arab states want peace with Israel they can have it and if they want war they can have it.

After hearing the Arabs and Jews, Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, said the situation is so serious that it needs the careful consideration of the American Government.

[Secretary Marshall told his press conference in Washington yesterday there were enough insolubles in Palestine to torture the thinking of any man, including himself. He declined any further comment on the situation.—Editor's Note.]

Arms Import Ban Asked

The Arab countries individually said they could not stop fighting as long as Israel claimed existence as a nation.

They demanded also that the U. N. ban imports of arms to the Jews and limit Jewish immigration in Palestine.

The individual replies were considerably sharper than the note to the Security Council from the Arab League chiefs' meeting in Amman. The League did not specifically accept or reject the cease-fire order.

Dr. Naji Al-Asil of Iraq read the Arab League reply to the Council. He said the Arabs have no guarantee that the cease-fire would stop Zionist violence.

The League notified the Security Council it had appointed a committee to negotiate with the Council's truce commission in Palestine.

No Reply at Deadline

It also told the Council its political committee was prepared to consider within 48 hours the terms of a settlement on which the Council might eventually agree. Apparently the 48 hours would run from the time the Council made its decision.

Shortly before the deadline, Arab delegates began receiving instructions for their answers to the U. N. but noon passed without the U. N. announcing receipt of any Arab answer.

The Jews, however, informed Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary-General, that the provisional government of Israel had ordered its forces to stop shooting on all fronts at 11 a. m. (EST) if the other side did likewise.

Next Step Studied

Confronted by what many delegates construed to be an outright refusal by the Arabs to comply with the Council's order, members of the Council considered their next move.

One big power delegate said there is a growing opinion that the Council must order a world-wide break in diplomatic relations with countries failing to observe its stop-fighting order.

To this, an Arab delegate replied with considerable heat: "And what will that do?" He implied that the Arabs would not be seriously concerned by such a step.

U. S. Sanctions Exports to Finland

After a delay of almost three months, the Department of Commerce yesterday sanctioned the export of $3,890,000 of industrial goods to Soviet-dominated Finland.

Secretary Charles Sawyer announced that he had approved issuing export licenses for power generator parts, machine tools, steel products and other materials, most of them needed for developing Finland's timber industry. Timber products are badly needed for western European recovery.

Sawyer said he expected to issue other licenses "in the near future," apparently with Finland in mind. It was likely, however, that other goods to eastern Europe would be approved for export soon, including $11,500,000 worth of coal-mining equipment awaiting delivery to Poland.

Flexible Policy Seen

Ever since March 1, when a virtual ban was imposed on exports to eastern Europe, Government officials here have been trying to make up their minds and evolve a policy on this subject. On the one hand, they were anxious not to build up the war potential of Russia and her satellites; on the other hand, they wanted western Europe to get eastern European goods such a stimber, coal and grain, which are in short supply in the United States.

The approval of shipments to Finland suggested that a broad and flexible policy would be followed in the future, with western Europe's needs kept constantly in mind.

Special Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday that he favored sending coal mining machinery to Poland so that Polish coal would move to western Europe.

Senators' Backing

Two Republican Senators, William F. Knowland (Calif.) and Guy Cordon (Oreg.) expressed approval of Harriman's stand, and said they saw the difference between sending outright war materials and goods that would directly or indirectly help western Europe to recover.

Harriman agreed with Chairman H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) that direct American aid should not be given any countries opposing the objectives of the European recovery program. He repeated an earlier statement that he would "lose interest" in helping any country that fell under Communist control.

Nevertheless, he said, he was a strong believer in developing east-west trade in Europe, and did not believe in "adding an economic wall to the Iron Curtain."

He explained that three types of goods were involved in the problem of exports to eastern Europe. The first, he said, was consumer goods, which presented no problem whatever. The second he described as actual war equipment, like aircraft and aircraft engines, and said these should not go from the United States or from any of the 16 Marshall Plan countries.

Intermediate Group

But, he went on, there was an intermediate group of goods that would have to be judged on their merits, case by case, and on the "quid pro quo" that might be received in return for them. For example, he said, coal-mining machinery for Poland would be bound in one sense to increase the Soviet bloc's war potential.

"Yet the recovery of western Europe makes it important to get Poland's coal production up," he said. "My personal opinion is that this would be a wise trade to encourage."

Harriman said one member of his staff in Paris would devote his full time to the problem of east-west trade. He thought it would be necessary to analyze existing trade agreements between western European countries and the Soviet bloc, to see whether they involved the shipment of any outright war materials.

Woman Enters Finn Cabinet

Helsinki, May 26 (AP).—Hertta Kuusinen, who has been called the "soul" of the Finnish Communist Party, came into the cabinet today in a shuffle that began with the ouster of her husband.

The 44-year-old woman, who declared in a speech last March that "Finland must follow the same road as Czechoslovakia," entered the government as minister without portfolio as the result of a solution of the political crisis by President Juho Paasikivi.

Leino's place was taken by Eino Kilpi, a Social Democrat who declared himself in this morning's newspapers a Popular Democrat. The Popular Democrats are a Communist-dominated coalition.

Kilpi was succeeded in his post of Education Minister by Lennart Heljas, Social Democrat Minister of Social Welfare. Onni Peltonen, a Social Democrat, took Heljas' place.

By this series of changes, President Paasikivi avoided a split in the government just before the July general elections, and brought to an end a series of strikes which had been used as pressure by the Communists during the crisis.

Hertta Kuusinen is the daughter of Otto Kuusinen who headed a separate Finnish government in Soviet-occupied Karelia during the 1939-40 winter war. He is now president of the Karelian Soviet Republic, formed of territory taken from Finland in the World War, and a vice president of the Supreme Soviet.

Meyer Davis' Son Gives Up Citizenship

GARRY DAVIS
"Citizen of the world"

Paris, May 26 (AP).—A 26-year-old former bomber pilot was a man without a country tonight, despite everything the United States Embassy could do to dissuade him from giving up his American citizenship.

Garry Davis, Broadway actor and son of Orchestra Leader Meyer Davis, formally renounced his allegiance to the United States, an embassy spokesman confirmed. Davis said he wanted to become a "citizen of the world."

In an explanation, Davis said:

"I think the only way the East-West conflict can be ended is for the peoples to get together. It's high time someone started to do something about it."

The embassy spokesman said "we did our best to argue him out of it."

(Meyer Davis said in New York he had cabled his son "earnestly advising" him to reconsider his action. The cable added "You are, no doubt, attempting to dramatize the critical world situation, but I believe this will defeat your purpose and nullify whatever usefulness you may have for the attainment of your objective of world government.")

[Davis is reported to be a disciple of the United World Movement headed by Mrs. Caresse Crosby, socialite and art patron of Washington, D. C., and New York, the United Press said. She issued to movement members a special "United World passport."]

The American Embassy said it could assume no responsibility and could offer no protection if Davis should be arrested by French police for lack of identity papers. When Davis signed the oath of renunciation, he handed his American passport to embassy authorities.

Davis said he planned to apply to the French police for papers as a "stateless" person. He added that he expected to get them.

Another American, Henry Martyn Noel, jr., a former Harvard student, recently renounced his citizenship to work as a bricklayer in Germany.

Greek Official Joins Probe Of Polk Death

Athens, Greece, May 26 (U.P.).—Minister of Public Order Constantine Rentis left unexpectedly for Salonika today in connection with the investigation of the murder of American newsman George Polk.

This came as the Athens newspaper, Vradnyi, offered a 15-million-drachmae (about $1500) reward for the discovery of Polk's slayer.

The bound, bullet-torn body of the 34-year-old Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent was found in Salonika Bay May 16. He had been missing for seven days. The slaying remains a mystery.

Meanwhile, the government-guerilla war, which Polk had been covering for CBS, brought these new developments:

The government announced that John Papastratos and John Yiannapoules, tobacco manufacturers; Stephen Resler, former head of a fertilizer firm, and two others will face court martial charges of aiding the rebels. They were among 16 originally detailed for preliminary investigation.

Eighty persons were arrested at Farsala, north of Lamia.

New Gasperi Cabinet Has First Session

Rome, Italy, May 26 (U.P.).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi and his new cabinet held their first meeting today. They began talks immediately on a plan to carry out the European Recovery Program in Italy.

Roberto Tremelloni, a rightwing Socialist, is the cabinet minister in charge of ERP. He already has started planning his work. But the ERP is only one of the big problems facing De Gasperi's new government. The new cabinet is expected to present its domestic program to Parliament next Tuesday.

Political quarters believed the over-all government program would include plans for agrarian reform based primarily on land reclamation, irrigation, and hydro-electric development; a general public works program to help ease unemployment, and a continuous effort to hold the line against inflation.

Italy May Ask Aid For Tapping Volcano

By The Associated Press

Will American aid dollars pay for punching a hole through the earth's crust to tap volcanic power in Italy?

Senators looked for an answer to that question yesterday. And the answer seemed to be: Maybe, if the plan is practical.

The proposal first came to public notice Tuesday, Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee commented:

"If we begin capping volcanoes, it will be a new use for the taxpayers' money."

Such a proposal actually has been made. It was listed in the electric power program of the Committee on European Economic Cooperation.

That was the preliminary committee of 16 western European nations which drew up the original "shopping list" of things that might be wanted under the Marshall Plan.

A committee of American officials representing various Government departments also mentioned the idea in a report it subsequently drew up.

But the Economic Cooperation Administration, which has been set up to administer the $5,300,000,000 aid program, said today that Italy has not thus far specifically submitted the volcanic power proposal.

Greeks Reply to Pearson Charges in Radio Man's Death

The Greek Ministry of Press and Information yesterday replied to charges of Columnist Drew Pearson concerning the recent slaying in Greece of George Polk, CBS correspondent.

Polk's body was found floating in Salonika Bay May 16. He had been shot in the back of the head.

Four days later, in a column which appeared in The Washington Post, Pearson printed portions of a letter written by Polk shortly before the correspondent met his death.

Pearson quoted Polk as saying the Greek government was obstructing him in his work. Pearson said the evidence indicated extreme rightists in Greece murdered Polk.

Government Position

The Greek reply, wired to The Washington Post yesterday by the Greek Office of Information in New York, follows:

"Mr. Drew Pearson commenting on a letter addressed to him by the late Mr. George Polk comes to the conclusion that it's evidently possible for the extreme rightists to be responsible for the murder of Mr. George Polk.

"Leaving it to justice to answer Mr. Pearson's hasty conclusions, we confine ourselves in stating the following:

"Every facility within the power of Greek government was and is given to the foreign correspondents in Greece. Especially with regard to Mr. Polk's difficulties for four days (several months ago) to obtain reservations on a plane to Solonika, it is to be stated that the civil airlines in Greece are not controlled by the state and that, therefore, anyone traveling by air is free to make his own personal arrangements directly with the companies. In spite of this, the foreign press division of the Ministry of Press has always offered to facilitate foreign press correspondents whenever priority normally granted for two seats daily to Greek civil servants traveling on duty. When Mr. George Polk asked on a certain Saturday for a seat to leave the same day, the foreign press division reserved a seat for him immediately on the Civil Airlines for the following Monday. But Mr. Polk refused to accept it. On Monday he repeated his request for a seat on a military plane. This was impossible but a seat was reserved on a civil airline for the day after. Mr. George Polk refused it again, stating that he would avail himself of a seat offered on a plane of the American mission.

Bigart's Case

"Concerning the alleged refusal by the 'Greek Rightist Civil Service' to permit Mr. Homer Bigart to interview Mr. Constantine Tsaldaris on the ground that Mr. Bigart was a Cammunist, it should be stated that Mr. Bigart has never been considered a Communist or treated as such by the Greek Civil Services. In spite of the free criticism he had been indulging against the Greek government and the Greek army, he had been granted several interviews with several government members, such as Prime Minister Mr. Themistocles Sophoulis, the Minister of Public Order, Mr. Constantine Rentis, and so on. Moreover, Mr. Bigart had been provided with a letter of recommendation from the Greek general staff to the military authorities to facilitate him in reporting on operations. He had also been granted before actually leaving the country for Yugoslavia last April—a visa entitling him to return to Greece any time within the next six months, a formality attended to in any country after the party interested applies to its consular authorities abroad.

"Concerning Mr. Patrick O'Donovan, correspondent of the London Observer also mentioned by Mr. Drew Pearson in the above letter, he also has received similar facilities for which, on leaving the country, he thanked the director of foreign press in writing for his 'courtesy and very real help' that he had always had from his office and expressed his gratitude.

Denial Quoted

"Finally, Mr. Stephen Barber, correspondent of the News Chronicle of London, has authorized a denial that it was ever forbidden to him to go from Yiannina to Konitza. In this connection, it should also be pointed out that he has always reveived every possible assistance, including interviews, credentials from the general staff, air travel priorities, re-entry visas, and so on.

"Far from any premeditated plan to obstruct the work of foreign correspondents, as implied in Mr. Drew Pearson's column, this ministry has—in spite of the internal turmoil due to rebellion and other physical difficulties—made every effort to insure the best possible condition under the circumstances for the foreign press to operate in this country. It intends to continue this policy."

Benes Believed Seriously Ill

London, May 26 (AP).—A Czech diplomat in close touch with the Prague government reported today that 64-year-old President Eduard Benes is gravely ill and is "not expected to recover."

However, a Czech information ministry spokesman denied the stories tonight in Prague. He said the President walked with Mrs. Benes tonight in the garden of their country home and later received a visit from a personal friend.

But one usually well-informed source in Prague, who cannot be identified by name said that Benes' doctors were worried about his condition and were taking every precaution.

Wallace to Oppose Anti-Red Measure

By The Associated Press

Henry Wallace will testify against the Mundt-Nixon Communist control bill Saturday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee starts three days of hearings on the House-passed measure today.

Robert B. Young, committee clerk, said tonight that the third party presidential candidate had requested an opportunity to appear against the bill.

Three nationally known lawyers will be asked to tell the committee what they think of the bill.

The names of the three—John W. Davis, Charles Evans Hughes, jr., and Seth Richardson—were made known by Chairman Liley (R., Wis.) as the committee laid plans for its hearings.

The bill was passed by the House last week by a lop-sided margin, despite questions as to the constitutionality of some of its provisions.

Davis and Hughes are members of New York law firms. The former was a Democratic candidate for President in 1924. Hughes is the son of the former chief justice. Richardson is chairman of the Federal Loyalty Review Board.

Chairman Taft (Ohio) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, told newsmen that if the Judiciary group reports out an anti-Communist bill it will be placed on the Senate's already crowded calendar.

"The people," Taft said, "want some kind of a bill."

He has indicated, however, that he doesn't think the Mundt-Nixon measure is the full answer to the problem.

As now written, the bill would make a felony any activities aimed at setting up a dictatorship in this country.

The Communist Party would be required to register and list all members. Communist front organizations likewise would have to register, and give the Attorney General access to membership lists.

The act provides penalties ranging up to a $10,000 fine and 10 years' imprisonment for violations.

VFW Presents Navy Six-Foot Anchor of Poppies

A 6-foot anchor made entirely of poppies was formally presented to Asisstant Secretary of Navy for Air, Mark Edwin Andrews, yesterday by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as a tribute to Navy and Marine Corps officers and enlisted men killed in service.

The anchor ceremony was held in connection with VFW annual Buddy Poppies sale.

Andrews turned over the anchor to the Admiral Robert E. Peary Ship VFW Post to be used in memorial services to be conducted by the post on Memorial Day when the anchor will be cast into the Potomac.

8 Silver Spring Firemen Given Certificates

Eight Silver Spring volunteer firemen last night received certificates for completing a 26-week fire extension course at the University of Maryland.

The certificates were presented by Chief J. W. Just, director of the fire extension service, of the University of Maryland at a dinner in the N and K Restaurant, Silver Spring.

U. S. Proposes 4-Power Parley on Danube

the satellites, concluded in 1946, contained a declaration that navigation on the Danube should be "free and open for the nationals, vessels of commerce and goods of all states." The four major powers agreed at the same time to call a Danube conference within six months after the treaties came into force.

The Russians insisted, and the western powers agreed, that such a conference should include the Big Four and the Ukraine, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. Austria would be included "after the question of a treaty with Austria has been settled." Russia would, of course, dominate such a conference through the voting strength of her satellites.

For the past three years ships from outside the Soviet bloc have found it impossible to navigate the Danube below Linz, and Soviet-bloc ships have found the upper reaches of the river closed to them. The Soviets have not imposed an outright ban; they have simply failed to give entry passes and have ruled that all dock facilities and fuel supplies below Linz are reserved for the new shipping monopolies which they have formed, on a 50-50 basis, with their river-bank satellite countries.

Western occupation authorities in Austria and Germany have retaliated by not letting Soviet-bloc ships come upstream until reciprocal facilities are granted downriver. This is the deadlock which the proposed conference will discuss.

Yesterday Secretary Marshall issued a statement blaming the Russians for the breakdown of the Austrian treaty negotiations. He insisted that a "swift and easy solution" could have been found if the Russians had been less flexible. the Russians had been less inflexible. He cited the fact that 325 meetings had bee nheld over the last year and a half to settle the problem.

Yet, he said, "the United States stands ready to resume discussions whenever there is hope that the basic issues of the Austrian Treaty can be resolved."

Bohlen Warns of Red Propaganda Tactics

Tucson, Ariz., May 27 (Special). Counsellor Charles E. Bohlen, one of Secretary Marshall's policy-making aides at the State Department, warned the American people today to be alert for further "propaganda maneuvers" by Soviet diplomacy.

In a commencement speech at the University of Arizona, Bohlen said the Soviet publication of the recent Molotov-Smith exchange, and the Stalin letter to Henry Wallace, "revealed to all that the Soviet government was acting in the propaganda field and not in the field of serious policy."

He accused the Soviet government of deliberately "mutilating" Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith's message to Foreign Minister Molotov to make it seem that the United States was proposing bilateral negotiations with Russia.

The full text, he said, would have made the meaning clear—that if the Soviet government abandoned "certain courses of conduct and action which have kept the world in a state of uneasiness and confusion since the close of hostilities," it would not find any lack of response from the United States.

The American attitude "is not, as some contend, 'pouring cold water' on a Soviet willingness to discuss," said Bohlen. "It was, in effect, a refusal to mold American policy to fit the immediate needs of propaganda. . . .

"The deepseated desire of the peoples of this earth for peace and tranquillity cannot be regarded as expendable coin for propaganda purposes.

"The temptation is always present to counter a move in propaganda by maneuver of your own in the same field. But this can only be done in the long run at the expense of sound foreign policy and with the loss of basic confidence in the consistency and integrity of our purpose.

"This recent episode is not the first of its kind and it will not be the last in our dealings with the Soviet Union. The more success our policies achieve, the more numerous will be the efforts to confuse the American people and the people of the western democracies, and to throw them off balance through propaganda maneuvers of this character."

Bohlen said Soviet obstruction forced the United States to go ahead toward world recovery "with or without the Soviet Union." In the field of self-defense against aggression, he thought the United States should "adopt a similar attitude" toward western Europe as at did with the Marshall Plan.

"The willingness and determination of the United States to help the countries of Europe to help themselves and to help them to protect themselves is, I think visibly bearing fruit," he said. "They have already radically altered the political climate of Europe. Where there was apathy and despair, there is now hope and growing confidence."

U. S. Set to Fly Out Citizens in Near East

The United States made ready yesterday to evacuate by air its citizens in the Near-East "in case of need."

"In view of unsettled conditions" in the area, the State Department announced, about two dozen Air Force C-47 transport planes have been sent to Cyprus from Europe.

They are being held at the Nicosia airport on Cyprus "should they be required to evacuate American citizens in case of need," the announcement said.

The departemnt did not estimate how many Americans might be removed if unsettled conditions centering around the Jewish-Arab fighting in Palestine became worse. There are about 12,000 Americans in the Near-East. Some of them could be removed by ship.

There were other developments yesterday:

1. Charles G. Ross, President Truman's press secretary, told reporters the lifting of embargo on arms shipments to the Near-East, is not "imminent."

2. Representative Javits (R., N. Y.) introduced in the House a bill for a 100-million-dollar military aid program for the new Jewish state of Israel.

Ross also said no representations have been received from the British government as to whether this country should make a loan to Israel. This was in response to questions about London reports that the British Foreign Office was displeased by news that such a loan might be made.

Maj. Gen. John Hilldring, who accepted an appointment April 28 as Special Assistant to Secretary of State Marshall in charge of Palestine affairs, will be unable to accept the post due to ill health. Announcing this yesterday, the State Department said Hilldring is very ill in Arizona.

Judaism Unit States Policy

Jews who are citizens of other nations can in no way be represented by the new state of Israel, the Washington chapter of the American Council for Judaism declared yesterday.

The chapter's executive committee, meeting for the first time since recognition of the new state by the United States, drafted a statement of policy in which it said:

"We emphatically declare that Israel is a foreign state to Americans of Jewish faith and is not the state or homeland of the Jewish people. It cannot bestow rights upon them or exact obligations from them."

Hope For Palestine Peace

The statement expressed hope that this Government, through the United Nations, will succeed in bringing peace to Palestine.

The council's program, it was stated, will be:

1. To make clear the sharp distinction between Judaism and Zionism and between Israelis (citizens of the state of Israel) and Jews who are citizens of other nations.

2. To insist that no Jew or organization of Jews can speak for all the Jews of America.

3. To deny the validity of any claim to the existence or control of a "Jewish bloc" vote in the United States.

To Continue Its Work

4.—To continue to seek increased immigration opportunities in the United States and elsewhere for displaced persons of all faiths and national derivations.

The statement said the World Zionist Movement participated in proclaiming the provisional government of Israel and that it was hoped that both the Zionist Movement and the provisional government would recognize the necessity of "making clear the complete . . . national severance of Jews who are citizens of other nations from this new state."

"The future of five million Americans of Jewish faith," it was declared, "lies in a nation free from segregation or divisiveness. The goal and privilege of every American of Jewish faith is to become part of American life, equal in rights and valued in service to his fellow citizens."

British Radar Device May Help Blind to See

Great Malverne, England, May 26 (U.P.).—Britain's telecommunications research center here is developing a hand radar set which in future years may "enable the blind to see."

Supply Minister G. R. Strauss, speaking at an exhibition at the research establishment yesterday, said that with the set a blind person could cross a busy street safely.

In State Dept.

Lloyd Lehrbas New 'Voice Of America'

By The Associated Press

Lloyd A. Lehrbas, veteran news correspondent and executive, has been named director of the State Department's Office of International Information.

Lehrbas

Officials said yesterday he will take over the post next month. As director he will head all the department's overseas information operations including the short wave "Voice of America" radio broadcasts.

Voice of America Assailed

the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) and other members of the committee promised swift action on the resolution.

Either Communist-inspired sabotage or the grossest negligence is accountable for these programs, Capehart told the Senate, adding that it was hard to believe they occurred by negligence.

One script dealing with Alabama played on the racial issue.

"Alabama is not a State of stupendous cities of brilliant history," the narrator said, "but it has the importance of being the darkest of all . . . in no other part of the United States has the colored race struggled and suffered so much as here."

Some of the facts which will be brought out in investigation concerning this matter are:

1. In making its last appropriation for the Voice of America Congress insisted that so-called entertainment programs be farmed out to the major networks.

2. The State Department had three liaison officers divided between CBS and NBC in New York to check the programs.

3. Every effort was made by the State Department to get translations before any programs were broadcast. NBC refused to do this, State Department officials said, on the ground the returns from the contract were not sufficient to permit this extra service. Therefore many hundreds of thousands of words were broadcast to Latin America under general directives from the State Department but without prior approval or scrutiny of scripts by the State Department.

4. Last fall the State Department caught up with these programs long before the series—allegedly based on John Gunther's "Inside USA"—was complete. The department protested vigorously to NBC.

5. Subsequently, the matter came to the attention of Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee and a script on Wyoming was mentioned on the floor.

6. Immediately the writer of the scripts was discharged and his supervisor "relieved of his post."

William F. Brooks, NBC vice president, said in a statement last night that the programs were broadcast several months ago in the Spanish language, beamed to South America. He said that because of changes in the "operational setup" of the Voice of America there was not sufficient personnel to make English transcriptions for checking. When the matter came to NBC's attention, he said, the writer was fired and the supervisor responsible was "relieved of his post."

7. A State Department spokesman last night called attention to the fact that although State Department employes are subject to loyalty checks, no such check is possible for employes of either network who take on this job on a contract basis.

8. Attention of both major networks has been called by the State Department to the extreme likelihod that there would be attempts by Communist propagandists to infiltrate these programs which are specifically designed to counter Communist propaganda throughout the world.

9. The Spanish-born script writer discharged by NBC has written Taber to complain that he foresaw the unwisdom of these scripts but was compelled by his superiors to write in this manner.

There was no defense of the broadcast on the floor.

Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.) noted that George E. Allen, Assistant Secretary of State for public affairs, took charge of the "Voice" March 30, well after the broadcasts in question.

Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.), who described the broadcasts as "drivel, nonsense, downright falsehoods" noted that Congress may have been mistaken in insisting that private agencies handle some of the "Voice" broadcasts.

Arabs Reject U. N. Truce Plea, Suggest Political Settlement

sources in Jerusalem said the fighting was raging where the valley widens between the Trappist monastery and the former British internment camp. Both sides are commiting heavier forces, this Jewish source said.

Daniel DeLuce, Associated Press correspondent, wrote of the battle in Jerusalem:

"What Jerusalem has been undergoing for eight days is like the so-called Chinese death of 1000 cuts—many small slashings in many quarters but nothing decisive. Over the battle hangs the question of how long 90,000 Jews, cut off from outside food supplies and normal water sources, can hold out."

Intermittent artillery bombardment continued in Jerusalem today, the American correspondents said.

The Jewish Agency listed nine churches and holy places in Jerusalem which it said have been desecrated by the Arabs. One Roman Catholic, one Armenian, one Syrian Orthodox, one Anglican and one Greek Orthodox church have been occupied by the Arabs, the Agency said. The others were listed as shelled or hit by mortar fire.

The Agency did not list at least three buildings known to have been occupied by Jewish forces.

Draft Bill Facing Civil Rights Rider

By The Associated Press

The fate of the draft bill was thrown more than ever into doubt yesterday when Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) announced he would try to attach a civil rights program to it.

Langer said his proposed amendment would, among other things, bar all forms of racial discrimination under selective service.

Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting Republican leader of the Senate, told reporters such a move would inevitably mean a filibuster by Southerners.

The defense program faced difficulties on another front, too. In the House, about 60 members want to speak against the House draft bill even before it clears the Rules Committee and reaches the floor.

Will "Fight Vigorously"

Langer said Congress is about to adjourn without acting on any phase of President Truman's civil rights program calling for anti-lynching, antipoll tax, anti-Jim Crow and other provisions. Moreover, he said, the President "has failed to issue an executive order abolishing Army Jim Crow."

Consequently, he said, in a statement, "I shall introduce an amendment to bar all forms of racial segregation under any draft and I shall fight vigorously for its adoption.

"These amendments will include protection for men in uniform against mob attacks and lynching, against segregation in interstate travel, and against discrimination of any kind in public places and facilities.

"One amendment will require fair employment practices of any company or individual selling goods or services to the Government under any selective service or UMT (universal military training) program."

Chairman Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.) of the House Rules Committee said only about 10 of the 60 Congressmen who want to testify against the House draft bill will be heard.

His committee opened hearings last week on the draft bill approved by the House Armed Services Committee. He said his group will continue hearings probably through this week.

Allen predicted the draft measure will not reach the House floor before June 1.

Meanwhile, the House approved and sent to the White House legislation making the Civil Air Patrol a permanent civilian auxiliary of the Air Force. During the war the CAP was organized to carry out antisubmarine patrols, perform courier service and other jobs for the air arm.

Airport Item Blocks Rules Action on Bill

By the Associated Press

The House Rules Committee balked again yesterday at approving a Navy construction bill which includes authority to build a 12-million-dollar airport for the academy at Annapolis.

Chairman Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), who told reporters Tuesday the 208-million-dollar building program would be approved without change, said he will try to work out the Annapolis airport dispute in a conference today.

Allen said he would ask Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) and Representative Bates (R., Mass.) to the conference. Bates is chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee in charge of the construction bill.

"If we can work out an agreement to cut the Annapolis airport out of the bill," he said, "the Rules Committee probably will approve the bill tomorrow. Some of the members just wouldn't go along with the airport item today."

The construction program includes projects described to the Rules Committee Tuesday as heading the Navy's list of work it thinks should be done without delay. Bates said his subcommittee had pruned the bill from an original request of more than 250 million dollars.

The airport item is the most controversial in the bill, he said. It would include authority to buy 2400 acres of land near Sandy Point, Md., in Anne Arundel County.

The field would be used solely for the cadet air indoctrination program, Bates said, and would handle 150 flying hours a day. Each cadet would receive 12 hours' indoctrination a year.

Allen proposed Tuesday that the airport and all housing for officers families be stricken from the bill. The housing items amount to about seven million dollars, and 365 individual homes would be built.

However, Allen said later he believed the committee would not require these changes.

Tariff Issue Is Voted Back

gram should be extended nonetheless.

A sickbed appeal for a three-year extension from former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, "father" of the program, was read to the House by Democratic Whip John W. McCormack (Mass.)

Hull said he firmly believed the act should be renewed in its present form "without crippling amendments."

The former Secretary wrote: "From the inception of this program . . . both I and my associates, Democrats and Republicans alike, who have supported this program, have kept it entirely free from partisan political considerations."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) opened the GOP attack on Marshall, without mentioning him by name. Halleck said some "reckless statements" are being made by people highly placed in foreign affairs "when they say they would rather have nothing at all than this bill."

Representative Harold R. Knutson (R., Minn.) questioned Marshall's qualifications on tariffs, but was challenged by another Republican when he said the war "cost us three times as much as it should have" under Marshall. Rising in Marshall's defense, Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) said he had "no sympathy" with Knutson's statement.

McCormack accused Knutson of making "a low and vicious attack." Doughton reminded Knutson that the GOP's own 1936 nominee for the Presidency, Alf Landon, last week declared for a three-year extension of the act, without change.

"They've corrupted him (Landon) with a lot of luncheons," said Knutson.

Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), author of the GOP bill, joined Knutson in the attack on Marshall, asking if he was the one who "didn't know where he was the night before Pearl Harbor."

Like Halleck, Gearhart denied his bill "sabotaged" the trade act.

"This will result in better agreements and more universal support of the program," said the Californian. "It takes from the program the partisan administration under which it has been manipulated . . . and substitutes a nonpartisan program."

Doughton in rebuttal said that Gearhart had never voted to extend the Trade Act since its origin in 1934 and added:

"For the gentleman from California . . . to sponsor a bill to extend the reciprocal trade program is like an agnostic trying to revise the Bible."

Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.), chairman of the House Democratic Conference, said the Gearhart bill, if it became law, would tell the world "the United States has decided to change its policy so far as trade with the world is concerned, that we are backtracking and going back to the days of log-rolling tariff-making and isolationism."

The bill requires the President to transmit the list of items figuring in tariff negotiations to the Tariff Commission. The commission would be given a new independent status, apart from the seven-agency Committee on Reciprocity Information. After hearings, the Tariff Commission would advise the President how high or how low he could go in negotiating tariff changes.

If the President failed to take the Tariff Commission's advice, he would have to report to Congress his reasons for going beyond the commission's recommendations. He would submit the proposed agreement to Congress, and Congress could "veto" it by passing a concurrent resolution within 60 days.

The President now has authority to raise or lower tariffs with nations sharing in the reciprocal trade program as much as 50 per cent, without a Tariff Commission or congressional check.

Northern Baptists Vote Record 7 Million Budget

Milwaukee, May 26 (AP). — The Northern Baptist Convention approved today a record $7,500,000 unified budget without a dissenting vote.

Delegates who predicted a floor fight over an $11,800 allotment for the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America saw the largest budget in the group's 40 years adopted as it was presented. It was $1,400,000 more than last year.

Special grants include $300,000 to the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and $200,000 for the establishment of a denominational paper.

Truman Foes Plan Memphis Conclave

Little Rock, Ark., May 26 (U.P.). — Rebellious "State's rightists" of the Democratic Party's Southern faction today selected Memphis as the site for the organization's first campaign committee meeting.

Gov. Ben Laney, chairman of the group, said the session would be held in early June, and that the date would be set after membership of the committee had been completed.

A resolution adopted at the Jackson, Miss., convention of the movement several weeks ago provided that a committee should be appointed to direct a fight against President Truman and his civil rights program.

The resolution authorized State Democratic central committees to name two-member State committees.

Laney said five States have appointed States rights committee members — Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Florida. West Virginia asked Laney to name the group from that State.

Laney said he had received no word from North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Louisiana.

Ban on South Carolina Democrats Is Forecast

Columbia, S. C., May 26 (AP). South Carolina Democratic Party delegates will be denied seats at the national convention, South Carolina's progressive Democratic (Negro) party convention was told today.

Keynote speaker A. J. Clement, jr., Charleston insurance man, asserted that instead of the regular party delegates being recognized, the progressives' delegation would be seated.

The State party delegates are pledged to oppose the nomination of President Truman because of his civil rights program. The progressive delegates will support Truman and "his human rights program," Clement promised.

"We believe we have a good case, a strong case, a morally fair case," Clement told the 175 delegates. "It certainly is a better case than the (Gov. J. Strom) Thurmond-ites'."

Dewey Says He Expects to Be Nominated, Carrying Most of States in West and South

Trenton, N. J., May 26 (AP). Thomas E. Dewey said today he is confident of winning the Republican nomination for President.

"I've brought lots of good news from the West," the New York Governor told newsmen on arriving here after a 4500-mile swing through seven Western States. "I expect to be nominated."

Dewey came into New Jersey seeking to regain some of the strength he held in 1944, when he won the nomination, and in 1940, when it went to Wendell Willkie. New Jersey's 35 convention votes are pledged to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll as a favorite son.

Dewey declined to speculate on his chances in New Jersey, but he said his own observations had made it clear he would have the support of "a majority of the Western States." Reports from his representatives in the South indicated a similar situation, he said.

He was the last of the three contenders for the nomination to visit the State at the invitation of the Republican State Committee, which has adopted a position of "friendly neutrality" toward the presidential aspirants. Senator Robert A. Taft and Harold E. Stassen had previously been in the State.

Before coming to Trenton, Dewey was cheered by a large crowd at Grand Central Station, New York, when he arrived from Cleveland. A band and Republican Party representatives with placards hailing him as "Our Next President" escorted the Governor to his hotel, where Mrs. Dewey awaited him.

Brown Says Texas Vote Will Sweep in Taft

Senator Robert A. Taft's campaign manager, Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), claimed yesterday that the outcome of Texas' Republican State Convention will start a boom that will sweep his candidate into the White House.

Texas Republicans on Tuesday picked 30 delegates to the GOP National Convention who favor Taft for the presidential nomination; two for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and one for Harold E. Stassen.

Brown said in a statement that the size of Taft's margin "surprised even the most optimistic Taft supporters."

Primm Named As Assistant To McGrath

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath yesterday appointed William J. Primm, jr., formerly of Montgomery, Ala., as one of his executive assistants with the Democratic National Committee.

Primm

Primm's acceptance statement reflected the Southern revolt against President Truman on the civil rights issue with the declaration that "all Democrats must settle their differences and put their shoulders to the wheel to insure that the record of progressive liberalism made by Democratic Administrations since 1932 will be continued."

McGrath said Primm's appointment is part of a general reorganization being made since the resignation of Gael Sullivan as executive director of the national committee.

Primm, 38, was one of the organizers of the Young Democratic Clubs of America. He is a son-in-law of the late Senator Joshiah W. Bailey of North Carolina and worked for the Senator in 1943-45. He now is vice president of an importing firm in Los Angeles and director of Pacific Petroleum Corp., a distributing firm in Lower California.

The committee today will announce the name of the new treasurer.

Fuller Warren Wins Florida Governorship

Miami, Fla., May 26 (U.P.).—Fuller Warren, Jacksonville attorney, today won the governorship of Florida in a Democratic runoff primary that produced one of the closest races in the State's history.

A spectacular late rush gave Warren the victory over Dan McCarty, 36-year-old citrus grower and cattleman from Fort Pierce. Democratic nomination in Florida is equivalent to election.

With 1401 of the State's 1535 precincts reporting from yesterday's voting, Warren had 274,586 votes to McCarty's 260,976. The remaining unreported precincts were in counties where Warren already had piled up his lead.

Strikers Reduce Pay Demand

By The Associated Press

Striking Chrysler workers cut their hourly wage increase demand back to 17 cents Wednesday as negotiations were opened in an effort to settle the 15-day work stoppage.

The CIO United Auto Workers Union originally asked 30 cents, later scaling it down to 17. The union went back to 30 cents when Chrysler withdrew its rejected offer of 6 cents.

Negotiations to end the strike of 75,000 Chrysler workers were opened in Detroit at the behest of Gov. Kim Sigler. They started a day after General Motors and the union agreed on a 11-cents-an-hour increase, geared to the cost of living. There was no indication whether Chrysler would follow this pattern.

Elsewhere, labor developments included:

Communications: A presidential fact-finding board stepped out of the long distance telephone workers wage dispute temporarily as direct contract negotiations were resumed. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the CIO American Union of Telegraph Workers, representing 25,000 long distance operators, have agreed to continue bargaining through June 7.

At the Wednesday session in New York City A. T. & T offered a 3-year contract extension with provision for reopening the wage clause twice within that period. The proposal is similar to one which settled disputes between the company and 54,000 other workers in recent weeks. It was taken under consideration by the union.

Legislative: The National Association of Manufacturers asked Congress to outlaw industry-wide bargaining. This suggestion was opposed by Joseph A. Beirne, president of the communications workers of America (independent) in testimony before the Senate-House Watchdog Committee on the Taft-Hartley law.

Maritime: The Government may seek a Taft-Hartley court order to block an all-coast maritime strike set for June 15. Officials said the move was under consideration because such a tieup would halt shipments to Europe and the Far East.

Coal: The first contract talks in two years between John L. Lewis and the hard coal operators start in Philadelphia Thursday. Lewis gave notice that he wants a new contract for his 80,000 anthracite diggers by June 10. The United Mine Workers chief did not disclose any demands.

Electrical appliances: The General Electric Co. and the CIO United Electrical Workers Union arranged to resume wage talks Thursday. Talks involving some 125,000 workers were broken off three weeks ago.

Rail Union Plea Greeted Coolly

By The Associated Press

A union demand that the Government "begin preparations" to buy the railroads seemed to have little prospect yesterday of being taken seriously in official Washington.

A group of 20 railroad unions made the proposal Tuesday night.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles Ross was asked at a news conference whether "nationalization of the railroads is under consideration." He said, "No."

Only Congress could take such action and there was no sign that Congress is in any such mood.

Railroad management officials made light of the proposal.

W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, termed it "an attempt to divert attention" from the fact that three unions—the engineers, firemen, and switchmen—rejected the recommendations of an impartial board in the present rail dispute.

The Transportation Association of America asked Congress to outlaw national transport strikes. It also called on the Government to return the railroads to private operation.

It said in an open letter to farm trade and civic associations that the Railway Labor Act has been a failure since 1940, neither preventing strikes nor the threat of strikes.

Taft Act Assists Reds, Green Says

AFL President William Green declared last night that Congress has "repeatedly played right into the hands of the Communists" by passing the Taft-Hartley Law but failing to pass "vital" social legislation.

"This is a serious charge, but it is true," the 73-year-old labor leader told more than 400 delegates attending a banquet of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor, in the Statler Hotel.

"The Soviet government is supporting disloyalty, unrest and revolution within America," Green asserted. "Stalin's first goal is to capture the trade-union movement of the United States."

He vowed, however, that Stalin would "never succeed in that endeavor" for "the American Federation of Labor stands as America's first line of defense against infiltration of the labor movement."

People "Ripe for Conversion"

But, he added, "we do not and should not expect to be hampered, restricted and obstructed by our own Government in our efforts to safeguard its survival. Yet that is exactly what has happened."

He warned that the "Communists have seized upon the Taft-Hartley Act as an effective propaganda weapon and emphasized that it makes a mockery of American freedoms." This has tended to "weaken the loyal trade-union movement just at the time when it must be strengthened . . ."

This country's "victims of profiteering," who have seen prices skyrocket and their representatives rush to "the relief of the wealthy with tax bonanzas while refusing . . . to protect the masses of the people," are "ripe for conversion by the Communists," he asserted.

For Federal Pay Boost

The AFL's primary goal, he said, is to "bring about the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. He declared that it has "failed completely to bring about labor peace and stability . . . we dare not continue any longer under this ignoble experiment."

Other goals:

1. Election of a "new Congress which will act promptly to halt any further increases in the cost of living and will encourage the gradual reduction of prices."

2. Support of pending legislation boosting pay of Government workers.

3. Support of expansion and upward revision of "our national Social Security system."

Guests paused in tribute to John Locher, as a portrait of the late and dearly loved Washington labor leader was unveiled by his former secretary, Thelma Dawson. Among those at the head table were Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, John Steelman, assistant to the President, and Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

Negro Candidate Loses

Earlier, the Maryland-D. C. Federation elected officers.

Reelected, without opposition, were: Harry Cohen of Baltimore, president; Robert Lester, president of the teamsters joint council here, treasurer, and Frank Coleman, secretary of Washington's Central Labor Union, secretary.

In the only contested race—for six vice presidentail posts—a bitter, behind-the-stage controversy developed over the nomination of Charles Hill, Negro business agent of Hotel Workers Local 80 here.

Hill charged, after an overwhelming defeat by the delegates, that "they do not wish to give recognition to a person who is colored, without regard to his ability and the service he has rendered." He said he had been business agent of Local 80 for eight years and had been nominated each year since 1944 for a post in the federation, without success. No Negro has held office in the 42-year history of the Maryland-D. C. body, he declared.

Negro Proposal Defeated

Earlier, Thomas Sampler, Negro president of Laborers Local 74, introduced a resolution to create a seventh post of vice president, designating that a Negro should fill the office. This, he said, was to "avoid taxation without representation." It was learned, however, that the resolution was voted down by the rules committee, although a report will not be made to the convention before today.

Charles McClosky, business agent of Bakery Workers Local 118 here and a vice president of the federation for 10 years, contended the vote against Hill was not a matter of prejudice but a refutation of him as an individual. He said that 25 per cent of AFL members in Washington are Negro.

The convention adopted resolutions indorsing lifting of the Near East arms embargo, the President's civil rights program and Truman for reelection.

Statistician Hails GM Pay Formula

Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, said yesterday the General Motors-UAW wage agreement may herald a new era in labor-management relations.

He doubted if it would lead to any immediate price increase generally.

Clague, the Government's top statistical official, discussed the auto industry's first 1948 wage pact at a news conference in which he also:

1. Reported that civilian employment is headed for a new peacetime high of 62 million persons-on-jobs by next September.

2. Said the Nation appears to be well started on its biggest home-building boom in history.

3. Estimated that the consumer price index will continue its slight climb, at least through November.

He said the new auto wage agreement, granting an 11-cent hourly pay boost and tying wage rates to living costs, is the "most precise" of its kind.

As for the agreement's affect on prices, Clague said the 11-cent hourly "adjustment" is about the average granted in the "third round" this year. A survey by his bureau, he said, showed a range from 5 to 15 cents an hour, with the average about 11.7.

"I do not think it will mean an immediate increase in prices generally," he said.

Clague said there is a "greater than seasonal push" in agriculture and construction which may boost employment to a record 62,000,000 in September. There is enough labor available, he said, to meet all needs under the proposed defense program.

In discussing housing, he reported that 90,000 new homes were started in April, only 4000 less than the 1947 monthly peak which was not reached until September.

Truman Asks TVA Plant

By the Associated Press

President Truman yesterday urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to approve four million dollars to start construction of a TVA steam power generating plant at New Johnsville, Tenn.

In a letter to Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.), Mr. Truman said the plant is needed to provide power to the Tennessee Valley, assuming a normal peacetime increase in demand.

He said it also is urgently needed to "meet potential requirements in the event of an emergency affecting the national security."

The President enclosed in his letter one from Chairman Arthur M. Hill of the National Security Resources Board, who said:

"Every effort should be made to expedite the power expansion program designed to relieve this critical power situation. From the standpoint of national security, a larger power cushion should be provided in order to permit prompt handling of future loads that may arise in connection with the rearmament program."

Spokesmen for two Tennessee Valley cities told the committee the Government is obligated to expand the TVA's electric power system.

Mayor James W. Elmore, jr., of Knoxville and Thomas H. Allen, president of the Memphis Light, Gas and Water Division, indorsed an attempt by Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) to add the four million dollars, which was eliminated by the House.

"We feel that there is a strong moral obligation on the part of the Government," said Elmore, "to enable TVA to meet our power needs."

C. Arthur Bruce, Memphis industrialist, testified that he is "firmly convinced of the necessity of this steam plant."

1800-Mile Gas Pipeline Opposed as Too Profitable a Gamble

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The projected 1800-mile Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co. bids fair to become a 40-million-dollar bonanza for promoters, a brief filed yesterday before the Federal Power Commission declares in opposing the project.

Filed by Tom J. McGrath, representing rail and coal operators and various labor organizations, the brief claims that if the company should be granted a certificate its common stock would "immediately acquire a value more than three times the original investment. Transcontinental last year asked the FPC to permit it to build a pipline to convey natural gas from the Southwest to the heavily populated areas of the Northeast.

Plum Held Too Juicy

After hearings which began October 27, 1947, and ended last February 21, the FPC decided the company did not have sufficient gas under contract to meet its consumer commitments. The company was granted another six months in which to present new evidence.

"While we recognize the right of gambling promoters to obtain returns commensurate with the risks involved," said McGrath's 40-page brief, "this will be too juicy a plum to warrant approval by a public agency whose duty it is to protect the ultimate consumer."

The brief then went on to argue that an analysis of Transcontinental's financial setup showed an anticipated net income from a 180-million-dollar total investment for the first year of $5,690,000 on 18 million dollars of common stock. Estimating the value of the common stock at 10 times "the guaranteed earnings," McGrath said the book value fo the common stock would be $56,900,000, "or $38,900,000 more than the 18 million invested."

Common Stock Value

By a similar process he estimated the book value of the common stock, if the total investment was 150 million dollars, at $40,070,000 more than the amount actually invested.

Utilities which have contracted with Transcontinental for natural gas include Consolidated Edison of New York, Brooklyn Union Gas Co. Kings County Lighting Co., Brooklyn Borough Gas Co., New York & Richmond Gas Co., and Long Island Lighting System, all of New York; Public Service Electric & Gas Co., and Elizabethtown Consolidated Gas Co., both of New Jersey, and Philadelphia Electric Co.

Truman Asks Action On Education Bill

Power Policy Hit

$84,000,000 Cut From Interior Bill

By The Associated Press

The House Appropriations Committee clipped more than 84 million dollars off the Interior Department's budget yesterday and accused the Government of encouraging "a Soviet power policy" in one instance in the Northwest.

In its formal report accompanying the $375,677,591 bill, the committee reported that the Bonneville Power Administration sold electricity to a public utility district which by condemnation proceedings took over a private power company without submitting the issue to a popular vote.

Such a procedure is "undemocratic" and contrary to "the American way," the committee said.

The incident was reported to have taken place "in a Northwestern State."

President Truman had asked $459,970,835 to run the department in the fiscal year which begins July 1. The committee whacked off $84,293,244, or approximately 18 per cent. It was one of the sharpest cuts so far voted by the committee.

Part of the reduction, however, was offset by approval of $29,944,290 in contract authority. Congress will have to provide actual money for those contracts later.

Although the committee clipped the departmental budget recommended by Mr. Truman, it approved $112,876,532 more cash for Interior than it received this year. Much of the extra money goes for reclamation projects, the Bureau of Mines, the National Park Service, and railroad and highway improvements in Alaska.

The committee report made no mention of Interior Secretary Krug's declaration that the United States has "virtually nothing" in its stockpiles of strategic military materials.

During hearings on the bill, a transcript of which was made public yesterday, Krug told the congressmen:

"Frankly, I will let the committee know that military strategic stockpiles don't exist. We have a few items that are not important, but on the extremely critical materials, we have virtually nothing in the stockpile."

The committe also disregarded a recommendation by Chairman Harness (R., Ind.) of an expenditures subcommittee. He asked that Michael Straus and Richard L. Boke be fired as Reclamation Bureau executives. Harness said the two spent too much time on propaganda work and were not qualified for their regular duties.

A meeting of House members from Western States was called for this morning to discuss the bill before it comes up in the House.

Stating that the Nation is facing a crisis in education, President Truman yesterday appealed personally to House Speaker Joseph Martin, jr., for action on the Federal aid to education bill.

The measure passed the Senate in April by a 58-to-22 vote but has been bottled up in the House Committee on Education and Labor by orders of the House leadership.

Martin has expressed support for the bill but said he was holding up action until it could be determined how foreign aid and defense spending will affect the budget.

President Truman's appeal, Martin said, was referred to the House Committee without comment.

Discharge Petition Started

Martin has admitted that if the bill were to be brought before the House it would pass because an overwhelming public support for it has been demonstrated.

Representative R. M. Wheeler (D., Ga.) yesterday filed a petition to force the measure out of committee and bring it before the House for a vote. Such a move requires the signature of 218 members, and phenomenal speed would have to be shown to get the bill up before the June 19 adjournment date.

"Unless the Federal Government comes to the aid of the States in meeting these needs," President Truman wrote Martin, "there is danger of a serious breakdown in our systems of education."

Recalling that at the beginning of the present session he had included in the 1949 budget an estimate for 300 million dollars to cover the cost of the bill, which would give annual grants in aid to the States of that amount, the President said that despite budgetary increases the amount should still be granted.

Warns of Teacher Loss

"I am therefore convinced that the increases which have become necessary in other Federal expenditures present no valid reason for delaying Federal aid to education.

"On the contrary, I consider that such assistance will be a major contribution to the vitality of American democracy, which is the foundation of all our efforts toward peace and freedom," Mr. Truman said.

The President warned the speaker that the schools are continually losing teachers because of low salaries.

"The cost of providing adequate systems of schools has long been beyond the financial resources of many of our States," he said.

"Now a real crisis exists. Rapid increases in school population have resulted in overcrowding. Higher prices have brought sharp increases in construction and operating costs.

"Expanding employment opportunities in other fields have attracted teachers away from the schools. Many of the teachers who have stayed in the schools because of their interest in their work are underpaid and must have their salaries increased."

Indorses Taft Bill

Education involves the security of the United States, the President said.

He indorsed the principles of the bill sponsored by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) which keeps education itself in the hands of the States.

"The maintenance of freedom of thought and expression depends in large measure upon keeping our systems of education free from central control," he said.

"But it is necessary and proper that the Federal Government should furnish financial assistance which will make it possible for the States to provide educational facilities more nearly adequate to meet the pressing needs of our Nation."

Operation Saves Baby Born With Exposed Heart

Columbus, Ohio, May 26 (AP).—A 19-day-old baby is recovering from a rare surgical operation which closed a "window" over his heart, it was disclosed today.

The child, Charles Michael Kochensparger, was born May 8 at St. Ann's Hospital, one of twins, and weighed 4 pounds, 8 ounces. He was born with a split breastbone. The heart was covered only by a thin, transparent tissue in the shape of a "V," where the bone was split.

At every breath, the heart bulged through the thin tissue, and when the baby cried, the strain on the tissue was dangerous.

The child was moved to Children's Hospital, where an emergency operation was performed.

The surgeon literally sewed the breastbone together. Because the baby was only a day old, the bone was soft enough to permit stitching.

The hospital has found no record of a baby living after surgery for a cleft sternum, though a search showed about 60 such births in 60 years.

ECA: Virgil L. Crouch yesterday was sworn is as the personnel director of the Economic Cooperation Administration. He has been the personnel chief of Farmers Home Administration and he's a very good man. At FHA, he introduced a more realistic efficiency rating system which is being widely copied throughout the Federal service. James Hard, who has been acting director, will return to Treasury.

INTERIOR: Its 1949 budget as reported to the House yesterday would give the department a record amount of money for projects in the field, but its already short administrative staff would have to be further reduced. The House Appropriations Committee recommended:

That the planning and power divisions be abolished; that the Reclamation Bureau be limited to 150 jobs in grades CAF-9, P-3 and above, and that the top staff of the Bureau of Land Management and the solicitor's office be reduced. In the words of one Interior official:

"We would be ruined if the bill goes through as it has been written. We couldn't manage the Nation's resources we are responsible for."

Mrs. Rabenhorst Is Married To Sen. Tobey in Church Rites

Harris & Ewing

WEDDING DAY—Senator and Mrs. Charles W. Tobey clasp hands after their wedding yesterday in Calvary Baptist Church.

In a quietly arranged ceremony in Calvary Baptist Church, Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) and Mrs. Loretta C. Rabenhorst of Washington, were married yesterday.

The ceremony at 1:30 p. m. was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, and a luncheon followed at the Army and Navy Club. Senator Tobey is 67 and Mrs. Tobey acknowledges to being in her '50s.

Only members of the two families and a few close friends were present. The family included Senator Tobey's sister, Mrs. Doris Brown of Wilton, Conn.; two of his four children—Charles Tobey, jr. and Mrs. Sterling Dean, the former Miss Louise Tobey, who was the bride's only attendant.

The new Mrs. Toby wore a powder-blue suit, a corsage of pink roses and lilies of the valley and a pink straw hat trimmed in pink flowers.

Following the wedding luncheon, Senator Tobey and his bride boarded the Congressional Limited for New York. They will return to Washington after a 10-day honeymoon. The bride is a former Washington school teacher, retiring in 1942 after 18 years in public school service. She was divorced two years ago from William E. Rabenhorst, Internal Revenue Bureau tax attorney.

Senator Tobey was a widower, his first wife having died last August. The Senator and his bride both live at the Dodge Hotel.

Senate Group to Vote On Calling MacArthur

The Senate Appropriations Committee announced last night that it would vote at 12:15 p. m. today on whether it should invite Gen. Douglas MacArthur to Washington for testimony.

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, MacArthur's wartime successor in the Philippines and head of veterans' group supporting MacArthur for the presidency, has asked the committee to invite him to testify on appropriations for national defense and the occupied areas in the Far East.

Gov. Lane's $2,101,654 Pay Raise Bill For State Employes Passed by House

Annapolis, Md., May 25 (Spl.).—The Maryland House declined tonight to tamper with Governor Lane's $2,101,654 bill to increase the pay of State workers.

The House passed the Lane bill as presented, and forwarded it to the Senate.

The bill, on which Lane had based his call for the special legislative session, had encountered some demands that its base be broadened to provide raises for State police and institutional workers.

The salary boost bill was offered by Lane to allow a flat 10 per cent for workers who had not had raises since September, 1946. Hospital attendants were raised last year. The attempts to include hospital workers and State police were defeated on a voice vote.

The House, settling down late at night to get rid of its heavy load of bills, also sent to the Senate Governor Lane's resolution which would create a commission to inquire into the free State's public welfare system.

Meanwhile, the Governor's call to limit emergency appropriation for welfare works to $500,000 appeared headed towards opposition by a group of Senators and Delegates. They asked increases nearer the $2,650,758 the department has said it would need.

Speaking out for more money for State welfare, Senate Minority Leader Kimble, (R., Allegany) termed the welfare allotment bill "the most important piece of legislation" before the session. It would affect more persons, he said, than any other of the 88 measures introduced last night.

A plea for an appropriation to cover all needs of the Maryland Public Welfare Department was made here this afternoon in a hearing before the Senate Finance Committee by Welfare Director J. Mileton Patterson. He asked that the department request for the more than two and a half million dollars be honored.

Patterson told the committee that even if State relief loads remain no heavier than in March and allowances are not increased to offset rising living costs the department must have $787,000, or $287,000 more than the Governor said he'd approve.

The department's total request, said Patterson, would restore a cut in allowances it was forced to make July 1, and add an average of $1.75 per case load to meet cost rises that have hit relief recipients.

In another Assembly action, a compromise resolution designed to head off any ripper bill for the Tidewater Fisheries Commission negotiated its first major hurdle when a favorable committee report was accepted by an 18-10 vote.

The resolution calling for a Governor's committee to study the commission now faces a third and last reading in the Senate which is expected to follow tonight's vote. Then it goes to the House for the same three readings.

The commission wrangling has centered between Commission Member George Harrison and Commission Chairman John E. Clark in a public fight over conservation measures versus commercial (oyster packers) interests.

Among bills already introduced into the legislative hoppers affecting residents in the Greater Washington area are measures:

To empower county commissioners to adopt fire prevention codes. The authority is sought particularly in Montgomery County under public urgings of the Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Firemen.

To give the county public utility agent executive authority, as assigned by county commissioners, in connection with taxicab regulations. A cab operator in Montgomery County has already instituted suit attacking the authority of county commissioners there to regulate taxicab operations. The proposed legislation was designed to remove any question of this authority.

To give Montgomery County commissioners discretion in fixing the salary of the public accountant.

To raise salaries of various minor county employes.

To provide for licensing and regulation of dumps in Montgomery County.

To allow Montgomery County commissioners to fix salaries of assistants to the County Clerk.

To permit Montgomery County Commissioners to pay additional salaries to assessors above those fixed by Statewide law.

To increase salaries of the judges of the circuit court of Frederick and Montgomery counties by $750 annually.

To allow the board of regents of the University of Maryland to lease or otherwise contract for use of the wind tunnel at College part to the Government, the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., or any other corporation.

To remove sinking fund account, outstanding and water supply bonds from the limitation on bond issues of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

To provide for regulating and bonding of master plumbers making connections in Washington Suburban Sanitary District.

By Prince Georges delegation, to permit assessment of real estate improvements for parts of the regular tax year in the county.

By the same, to regulate trailers and trailer camps in the county. Prince Georges County Commissioners are on record as opposed to trailer camp operations there, and seek State authority to ban them.

Annapolis, Md., May 26 (AP).—Catholic priests and Protestant clergymen differed tonight on whether gambling is immoral.

Two Catholic priests said raffles, chance books and bingo are not immoral. Their brethren of Protestant faiths disagreed and vigorously opposed a bill to legalize raffles in Anne Arundel County.

The bill is one of six gambling measures introduced in the special General Assembly, but one of them died today in committee.

The clergymen's opposite views were voiced at a public hearing on the Anne Arundel bill which drew almost a capacity audience to the Senate chamber.

"Raffles and games of chance are not evil in themselves," the Rev. Thomas J. Egan of St. Augustine Catholic Church said. "Acceptance of raffles for religious and educational and charitable purposes are well in keeping with good government."

"There is such a thing as gambling and taking a chance," the Rev. Stanley Driscoll of St. Mary's Catholic Church said in support. "Taking a chance is not gambling, provided no harm is done to other individuals or their families. There is nothing immoral in bingo or raffles."

The Rev. James J. Smiley of St. Luke's Episcopal Chapel was a strong speaker for the opposition view.

Later Hearing Set On McLean Rentals

Public hearings on proposed rent hikes at McLean Gardens housing development, Wisconsin ave. and Porter st. nw., will begin June 21 instead of June 7 as previously scheduled, the District Rent Control Administration announced yesterday.

William A. Richardson, secretary-docket clerk, said the 15-day delay had been granted at the request of attorneys for the tenants.

Owners seek a $5-a-month hike for 1300 rooms and a straight 10 per cent boost for 720 apartments.

Examiner James G. Tyson yesterday recommended a 5.35 per cent increase in monthly rents for 86 units of an apartment house at 2124 I st. nw. Rents would go up from $45 to $47.50 for 1½-room-and-bath apartments and from $69.50 to $73 for 2½-room-and-bath units, he said.

Fifteen tenants of the Gwenwood apartment house, 1020 19th st. nw., protested against a proposed 10 per cent hike at a hearing before Tyson. Owners said the increase for 135 units would cover higher operating costs, taxes and water rent.

The tenants claimed repairs were not up to standard, complaints weren't handled promptly and the owners were making sufficient profit on present rents, Tyson said.

Nine tenants also appeared before Examiner William F. Mansfield to argue against a proposed rent boost for 120 apartments at 2800 Woodley rd. nw. They scored the lack of redecoration in the apartments, Mansfield said.

Painters Rescued As Scaffold Falls; 2 Below Painted

New York, May 26 (U.P.). — A near-tragedy turned into slapstick comedy to the alternate gasps and guffaws of a huge crowd assembled below an office building in the midtown theatrical district today.

Thousands assembled and looked on in horror when a rope holding a painters' scaffold broke and left Max Kaufman and Albert Moskowitz dangling from the remaining rope five stories above the street.

The two painters held on for two minutes until police and building workers pulled them to safety. The crowd sighed with relief. Then they laughed heartily at the sight of two passers-by who had been doused by the contents of a can of bright green paint.

APRA to Give Awards Today

Awards for outstanding achievements in public relations will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight by the American Public Relations Association, closing its four-day conference at American University.

Screening and discussion of public relations films were featured in last night's film workshop.

John E. Fletcher, vice president of Eddie Albert Productions, Hollywood, an afternoon speaker, hailed the increased use of 16-mm. films as audio-visual educational aids in schools, made possible by increases in school budgets for that purpose, as one of the most promising movie developments of the year.

Other discussions were held on public opinion polling, press relations, and "group dynamics."

GM Sued by Ex-Navy Officer Who Sold Cars to Midshipmen

Annapolis, Md., May 26 (AP).—A retired naval lieutenant who sold automobiles to midshipmen sought $105,000 today from the General Motors Corp. of Detroit, charging his reputation had been damaged.

Bernard Bennett, now an Annapolis insurance man, said in a suit in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court that agents of the General Motors Chevrolet division "deliberately" created an impression that he was making unethical profits.

Bennett's suit asked $100,000 because he had been "greatly damaged" in his reputation, and $5000 which he said he lost on commissions.

The suit said that Bennett last year obtained about 100 "hard-to-obtain" Chevrolets for graduating midshipmen and that he sold them at list price to build up good will for his insurance agency.

The papers charged that agents of General Motors, meeting with midshipmen in May, 1947, "deliberately created the impression that Bennett was attempting to make unethical monies" and attempting to make the boys "pay more for their automobiles."

Bennett charged in his suit that after a story was "spread throughout the Naval Academy that the plaintiff was guilty of unethical business dealing," midshipmen began to curtail their insurance business with him.

Bennett is a graduate of the 1943 class at the Naval Academy. He was retired in May, 1947, for war-incurred physical disability.

The complaint asking $5000 in commissions on car sales, charged that General Motors "through intimidation, fraud and deceit" caused Bennett to cancel his contract for commissions.

In a conference last spring in Chevrolet's Washington office, the suit said, R. F. Hicks, described as a Chevrolet agent, remarked, "We have enough trouble with black market without this sort of thing going on."

Hicks later "communicated with officials at the Naval Academy and sought to make it appear that the plaintiff was guilty of some unethical or reprehensible conduct in connection with the matter," the suit said.

Letter Vital In Suit Here to try this case in a lawyerlike manner. While I'm at it, Exhibit 29 will be excluded also.

The latter's introduction had been requested previously by Kramer. In all, about a dozen such exhibits were rejected by the judge.

In arguing for admission of the Nelson letter, Kramer declared: "From that letter our theory against the National Association was developed."

At another time Kramer read excerpts from a report issued by Nelson in 1942 which said in part: "This information (rates charged by various local boards) has been catalogued . . . as a result many boards are making studies with view of making them conform to the guide (the guide, issued by the National Association, concerns standards and recommended rates).

The report continued "it is interesting to note that the boards that are changing their schedules are revising them upward."

During the morning session, under questioning by Justice Curran, Charles T. Rush, secretary of the local board, testified that the Washington Board's rate change of 1943 did not follow a pattern suggested by the national body.

Rush also agreed that agents very often make deals with property owners to lower commissions if the owner lowers his asking price.

Kramer said yesterday he expects to rest the Government case Friday.

Foster and Mundt To Debate May 31

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., May 26 (AP). Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said last night May 31 had been agreed upon for the radio debate to which he was challenged by William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party in America. They will debate the Mundt-Nixon bill.

"If Foster will not or cannot come out here, the debate will then have to be broadcast from studios in South Dakota and New York," Mundt said. The hour for the meeting has not yet been set, he added.

Gen. Ridgway Named Caribbean Commander

Lieut. Gen. Matthews B. Ridgway will be the new commander in chief in the Caribbean, the Army announced yesterday.

He will succeed Lieut. Gen. Willis B. Crittenberger who has been appointed by President Truman to be the senior Army member of the military staff committee of the United Nations and senior Army delegate to the Inter-American Defense Board.

Ridgway has been on the United Nations committee since 1946. Crittenberger assumed command in the Caribbean in October, 1945.

Courtesy Visit

The announced reason for the visit to this country of Argentine War Minister Humberto Sosa Molina is that it is a courtesy call made at the invitation of the Department of the Army. The practice of reciprocating visits by dignitaries is of course an old one, and several high American officers have recently paid their respects in Argentina. Nevertheless, it is a little hard to believe that General Molina came merely for the ride or to exchange social amenities. Outwardly there is a striking similarity between this trip and the discussions not too long ago with the Argentine chief of staff, Gen. von der Becke, which turned out to be a thinly veiled plea for arms. The character of the Peron regime is scarcely the sort to elicit confidence in the purpose for which arms would be used. Nor is there any more justification now than there was a year ago for the hemisphere arms standardization (and supplying) pact of which the Army is so fond. If anything, there is additional evidence, in the case of Nicaragua, of how American arms are used by dictators to entrench themselves at the expense of the people. General Molina has been feted in Washington for a week and is now departing on a tour of various Army installations through the country. He should be shown every possible courtesy, but if there is any further purpose to his visit it ought to be scotched at the start.

Squandermania

A nation's greatness is measured by the strength of its institutions and the richness of its soil. In both respects the nation is endangered by erosion—by such measures as the Mundt bill and by the deteriorating condition of our natural resources. Occasional voices have been raised to protest the progressive depletion of our resources. Bernard De Voto has waged a courageous battle against the denuding of the West. Fairfield Osborn, in his book, Our Plundered Planet, tells dramatically how a few modern generations have been destroying the work of the centuries. Numerous efforts have been made, some of them persistent and with local success, to arrest the trend in specific fields. But there has been no general overall awareness of the need for immediate conservation.

The compelling character of that need can be seen from a few statistics. The Nation is still cutting 50 per cent more saw timber than it is growing. One half million acres of farmland is washed away each year to clog streams, augment floods and strip fields of their fertility; in this fashion 140 million acres of tillable land have already been lost. There are only 460 million acres of first-class cropland left.

Damage by erosion is not the only factor to consider. Population is increasing by approximately two million annually. About 3 acres of cropland is needed to sustain each American at present living standards. Thus the net margin of cropland resources over population demands is being reduced not by merely half a million but by 6½ million acres yearly. We are perilously close to the line beyond which we shall either have to increase output by more scientific methods or reduce food consumption. And this does not take into account the demands on America by other countries.

Plainly the first step in a comprehensive effort to save our resources is a broad national land policy. Such a policy is set forth in a bill introduced by Chairman Hope of the House Agriculture Committee. This bill has particular virtue in that it provides both for a survey of the entirety of our land and water resources and concentrates in a new agency in the Department of Agriculture all governmental functions relating to conservation in these fields.

The Agricultural Resources Administration, into which would be merged all Agriculture and Interior agencies dealing with land, water and wildlife, would be vested with responsibility for a program of action and research. What are now disparate and sometimes conflicting efforts would be correlated in an all-out attack. The program would consist not only of development of new techniques of treatment and broad-scale education in the advantages of conservation but also the skilled assistance and material aid without which education is insufficient. Moreover, the program would be decentralized and carried out at a county level.

Bad as the loss of land is, the situation can be remedied if steps are taken soon to insure the proper use of land through surveys, terracing, contour plowing, reforestation, replanting of grasslands and the like. Purely from the standpoint of self-interest, the Hope bill ought to be assured of passage, for conservation or the lack of it affects everyone. The Hope bill is merely an encouraging start in what ought to be done with respect to all the other natural resources on which our society depends.

Cease Fire

It is our firm conviction that the cease-fire order in Palestine—which the Arabs have flung back in the United Nations' face by the device of a counteroffer—failed because of British noncooperation. A British officer is in personal command of the artillery bombardment of the Holy City, and even the British acknowledge that the Arab Legion and King Abdullah would be helpless without British support. In these circumstances the failure of the peace move at Lake Success will only worsen Anglo-American relations, and these are as bad as they were when the war debts were lost in an Anglo-American wrangle.

On both sides—the United States and Great Britain—there have been faults. The British undoubtedly have much to complain about in the gratuitous advice and criticism that in time past came from an irresponsible America. The mandate was a thankless task. And the prepartition kibitzing from the United States did not make it any lighter, but, on the contrary, added to the difficulty. Perhaps the most egregious example of vexatious interference was the Truman letter to Premier Attlee last year on the eve of Yom Kippur. At the time we called it "a particularly crass example" of politicking. Equally, however, there is a case against the British for the unhelpfulness they have contributed to the kaleidoscopic grapple with the Palestine problem which has been going on in the United Nations. The Germans have the only word for British conduct at the beginning of this grapple. It is schadenfreude—pleasure in another's misfortunes. When the United States got imbedded in the complications of Palestine, all that came out of Whitehall was a series of horse-laughs.

Surely both sides of the account can now be considered squared. As Mr. Amery, the second of whose powerful letters to the London Times is reproduced on another page, says, partition of Palestine was inevitable, or, as General Smuts puts it, a historical necessity. Lord Salisbury, one of Britain's greatest Foreign Ministers, once said that the first and greatest error of statesmanship is to stick to the carcass of a dead policy. This primary lesson has escaped Mr. Bevin. Yet history, let alone common sense, is against him. Moreover he would be contributing to the general harmony if he would quit this particular carcass and join with the State Department in seeing what can be done to promote peace not merely in Palestine but in the entire Middle East. Bevin's is the consistency of a Poohbah—leading the fighting Arab Legion and joining with the U. N. in a cease-fire order.

There is more than a suspicion that the Arab effort so far has been aimed at promoting a "fix" in Palestine. The fighting, at any rate, has been minor and indecisive, and "face" on both sides has been preserved. Even the Jews failed to bar the Arab Legion as they did the Lebanese—that is to say, by blowing up connecting bridges. But the sands are rapidly running out of any "fix" that may have been in mind. The waning prestige of the United Nations in this matter cannot brook any further delay in calling to account those who refuse to obey its cease-fire order. President Weizmann has pleaded with the United States to take unilateral action in raising the embargo against arms to Israel. Such a course, in our view, would be unwise at present. Nothing more should be done till the United Nations has been given a chance to act, and if the United Nations fails, then the United States should consider itself released to take the necessary steps of coercion. The British should be told that at last the United States means business—that it will not stand idly by while the United Nations is reduced to the same impotence that overcame the League of Nations over Ethiopia.

Reactionary Vote

We agree with Secretary Marshall's view that the trade agreements extension bill passed yesterday by the House maintains only a shadow of the original act and that its enactment would probably make the program unworkable. For, as he says, it would substitute a single agency—the Tariff Commission—for the present interdepartmental Trade Agreements Committee, as the body responsible for investigation and recommendation to the President.

According to the minority members of the Ways and Means Committee, the bill "places a high wall around the Tariff Commission so far as the remainder of the agencies participating in the program is concerned. In the give and take of discussion on any tariff concession under the procedure of the past 14 years, the contribution of the Tariff Commission has been invaluable. This would be lost under the present bill." Even worse, the Tariff Commission would be subjected to intolerable pressure from all the special interests affected by proposed changes.

Bad as this reactionary measure undoubtedly seems, judged from a long-range viewpoint, it does not constitute outright repudiation of the principles underlying the reciprocal trade agreements program. Rather it scraps or clogs the machinery set up for its efficient functioning. For that reason we regret the somewhat passionate tone of Secretary Marshall's denunciation of the House bill, since it is calculated to alarm other nations unduly. The immediate damage done by enactment of the Gearhart bill would be psychological instead of material. The vast network of trade agreements already concluded under the Hull program would not be affected by it, at least not for the time being. It is its longer-range implications that are alarming.

If Congress enacts this measure, the Republicans will, we feel sure, have cause to regret their sponsorship. For, even if the bill encountered a presidential veto, the tariff would become a campaign issue and the Republicans would be put on the defensive—challenged to explain how this country can be expected to act as a leader in the movement to assist world trade recovery while erecting administrative barriers to removal of trade obstructions. It would be far better from the GOP's standpoint to do what was done with the Marshall Plan, namely, provide simply for a one-year extension.

Mundt Bill Hearings

Senator Wiley's announcement that the Judiciary Committee he heads will accord the Mundt-Nixon bill public hearings today, tomorrow and Saturday is a travesty on the legislative process. This legislation, proposing as it does the most sweeping program of political repression since the alien and sedition laws were enacted a century and a half ago, deserves more than three days of perfunctory consideration. Senator Wiley says he will seek the opinions of the country's outstanding legal authorities as to the constitutional issues entailed in this proposal to require the registration of all Communist organizations. If he really desires such opinions, he had better give the lawyers a chance to prepare them. The Mundt-Nixon bill is a great deal too involved for thumbnail analysis.

The House passed this bill in unseemly and intemperate haste—with the support, plainly, of many who thought such support expedient but who took it for granted that the excesses of the measure would forbid consideration of it by the Senate, at least during the current session. Senator Wiley has given them a lesson in the dangers of this sort of buck-passing, and Senator Taft has underscored it by saying he will bring the measure to the floor if it gains committee clearance. Fortunately there are still men in the Senate who can be counted on to insist that there be full debate on a proposal so radically at variance with the institutions which have been the source of American freedom and vitality.

Streamlined Aviation

The confirmation of Russell B. Adams for the remaining Civil Aeronautics Board vacancy has ended the pronounced limp with which the CAB had operated since the string of resignations began last fall. As chairman of the CAB's economic bureau since 1945, Mr. Adams brings to his new position a needed familiarity with the agency's important regulatory functions. His experience as a delegate to the Provisional International Civil Aviation Organization also should be useful in helping the CAB arrive at intelligent decisions on cases with international implications. Moreover, the fact that a career employe has been selected for the CAB vacancy should stir morale within the agency and among Government workers in general.

With the companion appointment of Delos W. Rentzel as head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, all the top governmental civil aviation posts have been filled. That is all to the good. It is regrettable, however, that the Administration as yet has taken no steps to implement the changes in civil aviation structure recommended by both the presidential and congressional air policy boards. One reason for the delay may be that some of the recommendations are conflicting. The congressional air policy advocates, however, have come forward with no fewer than 21 separate bills and two resolutions to carry out the two reports. Several of these are concerned with streamlining and redefining the work of the Civil Aeronautics Board—an end that is certainly desirable in view of the recent log jam of cases. The Department of Commerce, which has something of a vested interest, is opposing a number of these changes. If there is legitimate Administration objection, however, the Administration ought to come forward with positive proposals of its own. Otherwise the implication is that insofar as it concerns civil aviation, the presidential air policy study is just another report to be filed and forgotten.

Social Security Funds

Senator Knowland's Appropriation Subcommittee holds the fate of the social security program in its hand. It is now studying the wreckage left by the House when that body followed Representative Keefe's lead a fortnight ago and cut the budget request for the office of the Social Security Administrator by no less than 93 per cent. The effect, if the Senate should acquiesce in it, would be to make effective administration of the Social Security system impossible. There would be no adequate funds for research, for information or for planning. Economy was, as usual, the pretext for this reckless pruning. But the real motive appears to be a desire of the Republican leadership to narrow the coverage of the unemployment and old-age insurance systems, despite its 1944 platform pledge to extend these "to all employes not already covered."

A look at the Social Security appropriation, as approved by the House, in relation to that of another comparable agency, should make this fact quite plain. The House awarded $1,500,000 to the Public Health Service for administrative management; in view of this agency's 16,500 employes and tremendous responsibilities, this is by no means excessive. But the Social Security Administration, operating in an area equally important and with some 13,000 employes, was given only $191,000 for administrative purposes. We hope the Senate will restore the funds requisite to a successful program.

"Steel Pensions"

Your May 21 editorial on "Steel Pensions" was on the whole a very fair statement. To place the problem in proper perspective, one should realize that current payments under the national old age and survivors' insurance program average less than $25 a month for a single person, which is obviously only a starvation allowance. Unions are forced to seek to establish union health and welfare plans through collective bargaining because Congress will not do anything to raise benefit levels.

It is five years since the introduction of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill for an improved comprehensive social insurance program. The CIO and other labor groups have tried very hard to secure the passage of this bill or equivalent legislation.

A few weeks ago an Advisory Council on Social Security to the Senate Finance Committee recommended extension of coverage and very substantial increases in pensions. Other much needed amendments have also been agreed upon, but the corporations fight us every time we attempt to have social security expanded. The CIO does not wish to obtain "extra large benefits" for a small group but genuine social security for the entire population.

"Giant Carrier"

Please accept congratulation on your all too brief editorial of May 21 entitled "Giant Carrier," written with an acumen both noteworthy and commendable.

Potent as air power is within its scope, one should not forget, through any process of wishful thinking, that even our most capable bombers with loads must operate against any worth-while enemy from (and back to) numbers of bases within feasible distance not only for themselves but for their escorts as well.

In particular, the beginning of a campaign may not be the Roman holiday which we hope it will become. The difficulty is not so much the magnificient power of our high explosive, but rather how to get enough of it exactly to where we want it to do the damage.

Although there has been wonderful technological progress in planes, the lessons of the western Pacific in these matters should be remembered. Then too, with the progress in planes have come disturbing problems of bases, their numbers, increased size and fantastic logistic requirements. Bases must be taken, secured, held and served.

It is quite true that land bases of a system once secured are immobile. Advance toward the enemy requires movement of bases by some process, or else new bases. It is no less true that integrated and trained air power is an essential aim of any worth-while Navy. It would not be inappropriate to add to your contribution that two capable carriers may be four times as valuable as one, and four may well be valuable in similar ratio. G. J. ROWCLIFF,
Rear Admiral, USN, (Ret.).

Miss Lindsay's Columns

Allow me to express my appreciation of Miss Malvina Lindsay's columns. Because of their deep insight into the problems of humanity, their concern with trying to make this a truly civilized life, their freedom from bias, and their humor, I consider her columns highly helpful and functional.

Her writing is in contrast to that of others who present merely learned analyses of situations without concern for their priceless opportunity of making positive constructive observations that will help to alleviate the misery in which a large majority of this world's population live day by day, hour by hour. Her efforts "to awaken Americans to greatness" are appreciated.

Premarital Blood Test

Several weeks ago, chancing to hear on a radio program that no premarital blood test for syphilis exists in the District, I wrote Chairman Dirksen of the House District Committee, asking verification of the fact. He wrote back:

"There is no requirement for premarital blood test in the District of Columbia. Very serious consideration has been given this subject. H. R. 4786, Seventy-seventh Congress, provided for such a test but there was objection from representatives of various churches.

"A full study was made later in the same Congress on health and vice in the District and the provision was considered again. Objection was voiced and no action was taken . . ."

Such a state of affairs, regardless of where the responsibility may lie, ought not to be allowed to continue, as a matter of simple justice and mercy to the living who may have syphilis without knowing it and the children they may conceive. This test is an important weapon in the fight against syphilis, and I for one can see no possible objection to it that is not rooted in bigotry.

"Protest To Lebanon"

Your May 24 editorial, "Protest To Lebanon," was indicative of the lack of comprehension of the basic reason for the seizure of American citizens from the Marine Carp. To make this incident analogous with that of the British-American War of 1812 simply does not conform with historical facts.

Lebanon is a friendly country to the United States and it is our philanthropic center in the Near Eastern area. Many Lebanese are outstanding contributors to solution of basic world problems, like Dr. Malik, President of ECOSOC.

The problem as it exists is very unfortunate, but not "outrageous," and does not "justify the severest kind of reprisals!" It could be solved if we would look at such problems objectively, and without prejudice.

The Lebanese government captured the American citizens, not because they are Americans, but because the government of Lebanon thought they were potential fighters in the Haganah. The problem posed to us is this: How true is the Lebanese pretension? If true, then what will be our position?

In my opinion, American citizens who want to fight in any foreign army, for a cause which is controversial in relation to American interests, should bear the consequences of that fight, and claiming protection of American authorities under such circumstances is not justifiable.

No doubt the Lebanese government has committed a technical blunder. But taken against practical matters, we are also partly responsible for not investigating the reasons why American citizens should be issued passports. In such matters our State Department must be careful, and must know the reasons why people want to leave the country, especially to go to such areas where tension is very high. CLOVIS F. McSOUD.

Mundt Bill Threat

The Mundt bill to control the Communist Party and prohibit certain Communist activities should be defeated, despite its laudable purpose, because it is so badly phrased and so loosely drawn that it would outlaw many strikes by non-Communist unions, and even make illegal propaganda activities against racial discrimination and segregation or against economic monopoly. It is, as drawn and taken as a whole, a dangerous attack on all sorts of truly labor, liberal, and progressive movements which are not Communist at all.

Section 2 of the law is the legislative findings-of-fact section. Section 2 (6) finds as a fact that Communist political organizations, to carry out the purposes of the world Communist movement which is to establish totalitarian dictatorships subject to the control of a foreign power, commonly use methods which include disruption of trade and commerce, inciting racial and economic strife, and propaganda to undermine the established government and institutions. This is all true, except that a good many other organizations besides Communist ones also engage in such activities, in the opinion of most conservative people.

Section 4 (a), one of the penal sections of the law, provides that it shall be unlawful, and subject to stiff penalties, to attempt in any manner to establish a totalitarian dictatorship; or actively to participate in the management of any organization to establish such a dictatorship, or even to "facilitate or aid in bringing about" that result.

Clearly the combination of Section 2 (6) and Section 4 (a) would make any strike by a union in an important industry illegal. For such a strike would tend to disrupt trade and commerce, and that is declared to be one of the methods used by Communists and would therefore be illegal under the "in any manner" provision of Section 4 (a).

The denunciation of monopoly in general and of the U. S. Steel Corp. in particular by Philip Murray would clearly be illegal as an attempt to stir up economic strife, one of the methods used by Communists in attempting to carry out their purposes, although Philip Murray is a vigorous anti-Communist labor leader.

The work of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People would clearly be illegal. In attempting to get rid of racial segregation and discrimination it would be judged by nearly all prejudiced white persons in the South and many white persons in the North to be guilty of stirring up racial strife.

In general, attempts to establish justice in any field where justice is denied stirs up strife necessarily on the part of those who profit by the continuation of injustices. Thus the act would make dangerous certainly, and illegal probably, all efforts by the victims of economic inequality or racial discrimination to right the wrongs from which they suffer.

Patriotic believers in American freedom have every reason to be suspicious of anything proposed by the Committee on Un-American Activities. It and its predecessor, the infamous Dies Committee, have been more intent on smearing all liberal organizations and individuals by calling them Communists than in truly ferreting out the Communist (or the Fascist) attacks on our American system of political democracy and civil rights. This Mundt bill, so dangerous to all true liberals, is clearly justification for such suspicion.

Machine Age Graduates

By Malvina Lindsay

Technicians' World

YOUTH'S LUCK has held another year and this June's record-breaking crop of college graduates will march off campuses happily confident that the world is waiting for its services. A decade ago it was different. A tough, soul-breaking struggle for jobs lay ahead—jobs that paid as little as $85 a month to trained men. Now specially trained graduates can expect to start at $200 a month up—mostly up.

The world seems rosiest of all to those having technical or business training, especially the "roughneck" engineers, as they were called on some campuses in the days when college study meant mainly Shakespeare or law. For weeks employers' scouts have been recruiting outstanding engineering seniors at salaries starting at $250 to $350 a month.

Aircraft and chemical companies, banks and insurance firms, all sorts of industries, are waiting at campus gates to grab bright young men and some bright young women. But nobody is reported asking for the promising college graduate who wants to go into politics or government. No scouts are waving fat contracts at prospective teachers or preachers, though schoolhouses and churches are standing empty.

Scientists in some nontechnical fields are reported in surplus. Graduates who aspire to such careers as journalism, advertising, radio, are finding opportunities tightening up. But seniors trained in salesmanship or business administration are reported being signed up almost as quickly as are technicians. In all of these big demand fields salaries are up materially over last year.

THE NATIONAL Industrial Conference Board estimates that about 10,000 graduates in the more popular fields will have been recruited by June by 1000 or more firms. Veterans are sharing in this good fortune as they are beginning to complete their courses.

Yet good as this news is, it foreshadows some problems. Undergraduates seeing the worldly prospects of those trained in technology and business, are turning more and more to the courses "where the jobs and money are." That of course is one reason so few men students are taking teachers' training or going into the social sciences. Hence those fields are being taken over to a large extent by women, and men's special contribution to them is being lost.

This trend also threatens neglect of political and social studies as well as of the arts. Mastering the intricacies of a dynamo or a cost accounting system offers to many students a satisfying escape from the more complex and baffling problem of how to run a government without graft and inefficiency, how to conquer poverty and unemployment, how to stave off war. It is a simpler and certainly more secure pursuit than adventure into the realm of pure science or of the arts. And naturally students, especially those who are veterans, want to go into fields that offer the best livings in the shortest time.

BUT DOES this mean that the creative side of science in which this country is reputedly weak, will be further neglected? Does it mean fewer doctors in a Nation with a rapidly increasing need of them? Does it mean fewer government careerists from the college educated? Will it mean less and less emphasis on political science in college curriculums, and the turning out of more and more graduates who are technical experts but political illiterates?

There is vigorous interest now in politics on college campuses despite the trend to technical studies. But this, to survive and develop, needs more encouragement in a world so largely given over to the dynamo and the adding machine.

More scholarships in political and social science are needed to help furnish the yeast for future leadership, to provide explorers in the new frontier of knowledge, human relations. A dynamic program of political studies—compulsory even for the engineers—would do much to develop better rounded citizens and to give politics more prestige. For unless some steps are taken to turn the interest of college students toward mastery of man, the technicians and salesmen may find themselves without a country, or even a world.

Guilt By Blood

The resignation of John C. Virden from the Department of Commerce is indeed "tragic" because it is another indication of present hysteria and the dangers that hysteria causes to basic constitutional guarantees.

Virden's "crime" was to have a daughter who chose to work for a news agency of a foreign government, in spite of the protests of her father.

The "crime" of being related to accused or convicted persons was presumably abolished with the adoption of our Constitution. Yet Representative Crawford has the gall to demand Virden's resignation because of his daughter's actions. Our founding fathers sought to abolish guilt by "taint of blood" and now Representative Crawford presents it as "a new field for consideration."

The price of liberty is eternal vigilance against liberty's self-styled friends as well as against its avowed enemies.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

France Stands Firm

IN THE long run we shall be glad, rather than annoyed, that the French government has taken a firm stand against the immediate formation of a western German state with its capital at Frankfurt. For the economic advantages which might be gained by establishing such a German government are slight and theoretical compared with the divisions and disorders which would surely be caused inside Germany and throughout Europe.

LIPPMANN

The Truman Administration is in no position to deal with the consequences. It is unprepared to deal with them. In a very real sense it has no moral right to take so grave a commitment in an election year, and to present the incoming Republican administration, which would probably take a different line, with an accomplished fact.

TO ESTABLISH a German government in Frankfurt is to invite the Russians to establish another German government in Berlin. Now it is often said by supporters of the Frankfurt project that the Russians intend to establish a German government anyway. Perhaps. Thus far the Russians have been astute enough not to be the first to do this. We ought to be as astute as they are. For whoever is the first to establish a German government will be held responsible for the partition of Germany. The one who waits will become the champion of German unity. And as only the Russians can give the Germans unity without war, they will be the certain gainers and we the certain losers in the maneuver.

Our German government in Frankfurt will have gotten everything from us that we have to give it—the economic subsidy and political power and the abdication of military government. All its other prospects will depend on a political understanding with Russia and upon its trade with eastern Europe. We shall have played all our aces. The Russians will still be holding theirs.

IMMEDIATELY, the consequence of establishing a Frankfurt government will be to make our position in Berlin exceedingly difficult. For if by our own action we have made Frankfurt, rather than Berlin, the capital of the Germany in which we are interested, it will be difficult to convince the American people, and impossible to convince the French people, that the right to stay in Berlin is a shooting matter. It is doubtful whether the Administration is prepared to meet this summer a major crisis over Berlin.

We are in Berlin because Berlin is the capital of Germany. If Berlin ceases to be the capital of Germany, and if "Germany" is western Germany (minus the French zone) then we have no more reason to be there than we have to be in Dresden or Leipzig.

THE GOVERNMENT which we are proposing to establish in Frankfurt is described as a federal government. But it is to be created by a constitutional assembly elected by popular suffrage throughout western Germany, and the elections are to be conducted by centrally directed political parties. No genuine federal system was ever created that way, and the German constitution which our officials have in mind would in fact set up a unitary state, which delegated certain of its powers to the constituent states. For the ultimate possessor of German sovereignty would be national parties under unified leadership, and the power reserved to the states could be withdrawn whenever these centralized parties wished to withdraw them.

IT IS, moreover, the acme of unwisdom on our part, so it seems to me, to precipitate national elections in Germany this year. They are almost certain to become an aggravated version of the Italian elections, an unseemly and increasingly reckless competition by the victors for the favor of the German nationalists and the German Communists.

The issue in these elections will be whether the Germans have the most to gain by turning to the East, or to the West, or by playing both ends against the middle. One would think that responsible statesmen would do their best to avert and postpone, rather than to precipitate, a furious electoral battle in the heart of Europe at this time. It is folly to think that in the turmoil of such an election, as a matter of fact of a series of elections, Germany will become a productive member of the European community. The elections will arouse passions in Germany, and cause tension throughout Europe, which are quite incompatible with confidence and economic recovery.

THE FRENCH are, of course, serving their own national interest in opposing this project. But the French are the neighbors of Germany, and there can be no peace and no unity in Europe if the French national interest is disregarded. There can be no settlement in Europe which the French do not believe in and do not support.

Why should we think that we know so much more about Europe and its problems than the Europeans? The American officials who are playing the leading part in these negotiations about Germany are admirable public servants; we have no better men than Ambassador Douglas and General Clay. But neither of them has more than a recent and short experience of Europe and of Germany, and they ought to hesitate a long time before they insist that they understand these critical European problems better than the Europeans.

British In Palestine

Letters In The Times Of London

Editor's Note: Last Friday The Washington Post reprinted a letter on British policy in Palestine written to The Times of London by the Right Hon. L. S. Amery, former Secretary of State for the Colonies and Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs in the 20s. Following are a reply to Mr. Amery's original letter by Lord Altrincham and Mr. Amery's subsequent rejoinder. Lord Altrincham was formerly Sir Edward Grigg. Well known in Washington, he was Parliamentary Undersecretary of State for War and later British Minister in the Middle East.

IT IS painful to differ publicly from an old colleague, and more particularly from one with Mr. Amery's outstanding record of service to the commonwealth. But the very fact that he writes with such authority compels me to say that his reflections upon the character of the British mandate in Palestine seem to me a caricature of what most Englishmen have felt about it for the past 30 years.

He asserts that we had the right to interpret the mandate as we thought fit. If that was the case, the White Paper of 1939, which was indorsed by Parliament is manifestly of greater validity than the Peel Commission's advocacy of partition, which was not.

But few in fact have interpreted our right under the mandate as one to do what we pleased. I have been intimate since the spring of 1921, when the mandate was very young, with all the inner currents of opinion which have molded British policy in the Middle East, and I can only say that Mr. Amery's cynical attitude toward the mandate in no way resembles that which governed most English minds.

HOWEVER different their views upon the policy most likely to achieve the end in view, a great majority of Englishmen have been guided by the conviction that they must strive to reconcile the Jewish claim to a national home with Arab interests and Arab patriotism if the purpose of the mandate was to be honorably fulfilled. They have, in fact, regarded our task as one, before all else, of impartial mediation, and our duty under the mandate as a solemn obligation in that sense to the powers whose indorsement we sought and obtained.

In this interpretation of the mandate, proclaimed by Mr. Churchill as Colonial Secretary in 1922, the best of Jewish opinion has always been upon our side. That we have failed to carry it out is due in no small measure to those who have regarded the mandate as a mere instrument of policy, encouraged Zionist extremism, and sown fear throughout the Arab world.

Palestine in consequence is given to the sword; but the time for mediation will assuredly return. In preparation for that day let us move the United Nations by every means in our power to recapture the spirit in which the mandate was originally intended and applied—to show, that is, that they will act as true and impartial mediators, and not as individual self-seekers or interested partisans.

ALTRINCHAM.
Tormarton, England.

MY OLD friend Lord Altrincham has, I fear, misunderstood the purport of my letter. In it I emphasized that the primary responsibility for policy in Palestine was, and still is, ours, and that it is mere self-deception to make out that we have handed back to international authority a task which it imposed on us and which has proved beyond our capacity.

As for the mandate, I never suggested that we had a right to disregard its terms. All I was concerned to point out was that the policy was antecedent to the mandate, and was, in fact, carried out by successive governments, more particularly in 1939, in accordance with their views of the needs of the situation without much regard to those of the Mandates Commission.

IN ANY case our pledge under the mandate was an addition to, but could not in any sense be a subtraction from, or substitution for, our own original responsibility. I entirely agree that it was a responsibility to both Arabs and Jews, and I believe that we did endeavor for many years to carry out that responsibility in the impartial spirit of fairness to both sides for which Lord Altrincham pleads.

What is more, our responsibility inevitably grew with the years. Whatever the merits or demerits of our original policy, we were faced after the war, on the one hand, with the existence in Palestine of over 600,000 Jews who regarded it as their home, in which they, and such other Jews as would join them, were entitled to live as of right and not on sufferance (to use the language of Mr. Churchill's 1922 White Paper which governed our policy for 17 years); and, on the other, of the equally passionate conviction of Arab nationalism that Jews were not in Palestine as of right but could remain only as a minority under an Arab government entitled to veto all further immigration.

THE RESPONSIBILITY for that position could not be shuffled off by saying as Mr. Bevin has continually said, that we could have no part in any solution with which both sides were not in agreement. There was not, and is not, any possibility of agreement by discussion.

The only question was whether we were prepared to fulfill our responsibility to both sides by imposing whatever we believed to be a fair settlement, or were resolved to clear out and leave the solution to mutual slaughter and destruction. To throw that responsibility on the United Nations was an evasion of our own duty to Arabs as well as to Jews for which the wretched inhabitants of Palestine are now paying dearly.

Jerusalem is today a battlefield. St. George's Cathedral has been shelled. Your correspondent's vivid description of the sacking of a Jewish settlement gives only an advance picture of the destruction of the peaceful work of regeneration, for which not only Jewish settlers but British administrators have toiled, and of which both were rightly proud. Arab armies, equipped and trained by us, are marching in, and unless checked by the unaided efforts of the Jews, are likely to complete the undoing of 30 years of British policy and Jewish effort.

I say nothing of the disastrous effects on our whole position in the Middle East of so humiliating an abdication. What further consequences may flow from the cynically irresponsible policy of His Majesty's present government only the future will show.

L. S. AMERY.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Returning Economic Isolationism

SEVERAL TIMES in this column there have been references to Republican leaders who want to take the country back to the log-rolling tariff days of William McKinley. They have ganged up in the House to extend the reciprocal trade agreements for only one year and with amendments which would hamper this system of insuring the free movement of trade across national boundaries.

Childs

Now, from a friendly correspondent in Iowa, I learn that I have done McKinley an injustice. McKinley, the creation of Mark Hanna, the white knight of Republican oratory, was actually ahead of the party of today. Or, at any rate, he was ahead of the potent GOP leaders who believe they can sidetrack the reciprocal trade issue.

On September 5, 1901, President McKinley made a speech at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo. It was his last public utterance. On the following day he was shot by an assassin, and he died eight days later.

That was a singularly significant time in the history of the Republic. The Spanish-American War had pushed America's vital interests into the far Pacific, with responsibility for the Philippines. While most Americans in that comfortable era were not aware of it, the days of isolation were numbered.

IN THAT last address, McKinley talked of the new era and of American responsibilities with something like prophetic vision. On the subject of trade, McKinley said:

"The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not. If, perchance, some of our tariffs are no longer needed for revenue or to encourage and protect our industries at home, why should they not be employed to extend and promote our markets abroad?"

Even as he was speaking those final words, McKinley was waiting for the Senate to act on a dozen commercial treaties providing reciprocity—treaties that were caught in the jam of political pressures. Log-rolling Senators could easily kill off those individual treaties. They could, and did, pick them off one by one.

That was a major reason for the Hull Trade-Agreement Act. It was intended to take such reciprocal tariff reductions out of politics and put the whole business in the hands of an interdepartmental committee that would consider it from the point of view of the economic good of the Nation.

NOW THE little band of men who run the House mean to put it right back into politics, and all their double talk does not conceal that fact. Secretary of State George C. Marshall has said that passage of the one-year extension with its crippling amendments would be worse than no extension at all.

Unless the Senate can act with exceptional speed and determination, that is just what we will get. The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, is a fair-minded man. It is inconceivable that he would use the high-handed tactics of the House which kept the hearings secret and dismissed opponents as mere meddlesome clubwomen.

Open hearings before Millikin's Committee would at least give the opposition a chance to present its views. Even though the time is so short, with the present Trade-Agreements Act expiring on June 12, the debate on the Senate floor promises to be hot.

Those in favor of the present law, and this includes many Republicans, believe they can knock out the crippling amendments. But they would be likely to pay for that victory with a compromise which would mean extension for only a year.

Here is an issue that gets down to whether the Republicans are capable of accepting responsibility for government in the middle of the twentieth century. The nations of western Europe have followed the United States lead in moving toward a World Trade Organization built around reciprocal lowering of tariffs. If that policy is now repudiated, western Europe will feel that we have run out on the kind of program which would make a real rehabilitation and reconstruction possible.

It is high time that the Republican Party caught up with William McKinley.

Fire Safety Code Easing Indorsed

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Recommendations for easing the District's tough new fire safety regulations in existing buildings sailed through a Commissioners' public hearing yesterday with only one dissent.

Young

Only 25 minutes were required to hear 11 witnesses indorse amendments proposed by a special 19-member Commissioners' committee and have one letter of dissent read into the record.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young immediately announced he will recommend adoption of the proposals by the Commissioners, probably Thursday.

Enforcement Postponed

Sole note of discord at the hearing came in a letter from Thomas Ellis Lodge of the Federation of Citizens Associations, who said: ". . . it would seem preferable in many instances to strengthen the regulations in the interest of the local and transient public."

Many of the recommendations, he said, "are the result of compromise." He did not mention which regulations needed strengthening.

General Young said the special committee will be asked to determine whether enforcement of the new code January 1, 1949—as now scheduled—will allow sufficient time for building owners to comply. Committee members also will be asked to urge speedy compliance by building owners.

The new code, designed to avert tragedies like Boston's Cocoanut Grove holocaust and the Winecoff Hotel fire at Atlanta, originally was adopted by the Commissioners in March, 1946. Enforcement in buildings constructed prior to that time has been postponed three times to next January 1.

Costs Seen High

Frank O'Connor, secretary-treasurer of the Building and Construction Trades Council, who represented the Central Labor Union, and Paul J. Miller of Washington Guest House Association, approved the amendments but urged no further enforcement delay beyond January 1.

While indorsing the amendments, Miller predicted the code was still so stringent that the high cost of compliance would force "some" small rooming house operators out of business.

James C. Wilkes, attorney for the D. C. Bankers Association, and Francis J. Ortman of Harrington Hotel, Inc., reserved the right to seek special consideration in particular cases. Assistant Engineer Commissioner K. E. Madsen, chairman of the special committee, assured them the appeal board provided in the code would handle "hardship" cases.

Others indorsing the code changes: A. Julian Brylawski, Motion Picture Theater Owners; A. Hamilton Wilson, Washington Building Congress; Walter B. Jarvis, Washington Real Estate Board; Frank Weakly, Washington Hotel Association; Watson B. Rulon, Washington Restaurant Association; Charles A. Bauer, Building Owners and Managers Association, and Alvin Aubinoe, Home Builders Association.

The special committee was set up by the Commissioners in March, 1947, after building owners complained of the high cost of complying with the new code.

Community Plan Adopted

The National Council for Community Improvement closed its first annual conference here yesterday committed to fostering local betterment on a community level.

About 50 delegates at a final business session authorized the board of directors "to take such steps as they deem advisable to encourage formation of local councils for community improvement throughout the country in all communities large and small."

The end of the three-day convention also brought forth a resolution calling for future annual conferences.

Yesterday's speakers included Harvey W. Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists; Mrs. C. Vaughn Ferguson, president of the Girl Scouts of America.

Marshall Refuses Annual Award of The Churchman

New York, May 26 (AP).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall has refused to accept the annual award of The Churchman, unofficial Episcopalian magazine, its editor said today.

Dr. Guy Emery Shipler, the editor, made public correspondence in which one of Marshall's special assistants wrote that the Secretary noted the magazine's "editorials extend far into the realm of politics and international affairs."

The award is given each year to a person Churchman believes has promoted good will and understanding among people. Previous recipients include the late President Roosevelt, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the late Wendell Willkie and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

At a news conference in Washington, Marshall said he declined the award partly because the Churchman engages in world political discussions of a very marked character. He said he believed it would be improper for him to accept.

STEEL MEN PLAN AHEAD

The 56th General Meeting of American Iron and Steel Institute is being held this week in New York City. It is an occasion upon which steel men meet to discuss major problems of mutual interest . . . growing steel capacity, supplies of raw materials and technical research.

Today's research goes deep into the secrets of the iron atom. It embraces every product the industry makes. It is carried on inside and outside the industry with the cooperation of research organizations, technical schools, colleges and universities all over the country.

A complete list of the problems for which the steel industry is seeking answers would run into the thousands. But here is a bare handful of projects that are currently under way: Testing behavior of steel at 70 below zero . . . searching for material substitutes to eliminate dependence on imports . . . use of oxygen to make more steel in existing facilities . . . testing locomotive axles, railroad rails to provide even better, even safer transportation. . . .

It all adds up in the long run to better steel, or better ways to use steel products, or a way to produce more steel with present equipment.

It adds up to progress in steel for the benefit of all.

AMERICAN IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE

TO SERVE YOU EVEN BETTER

Record breaking peacetime production is only part of steel's story. For the industry's contributions to our economy go much deeper than that.

For instance: Steel wages are at record totals; Steel consuming industries are operating at high levels; Steel capacity is being further increased and improved; Steel prices are relatively low.

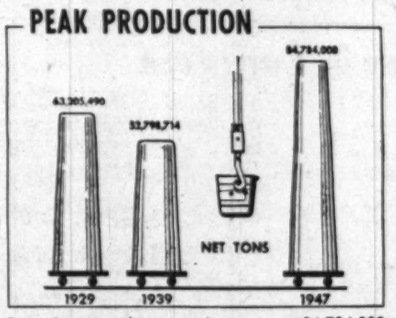
INCREASED CAPACITY

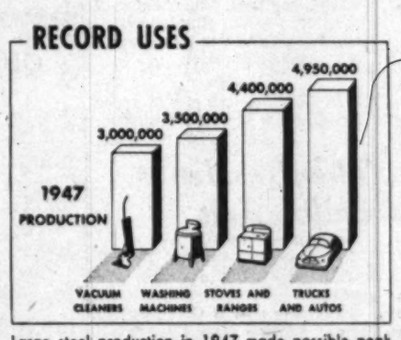
Steel's biggest peacetime expansion has been under way for three years. Total cost will exceed $1,700,000,000 by the end of 1949. Steel-making capacity will then have been increased by about 14,500,000 tons since 1939. Steel capacity is now so large as to tax available raw materials.

PEAK PRODUCTION



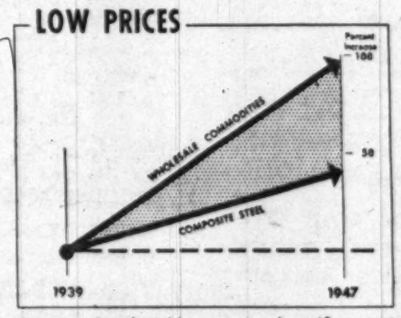
Peacetime record was set last year at 84,784,000 tons of steel. U. S. production was about 53 per cent of world total. First three months of 1948 was at even higher rate with production at annual rate of 88,000,000 net tons of steel.

RECORD USES



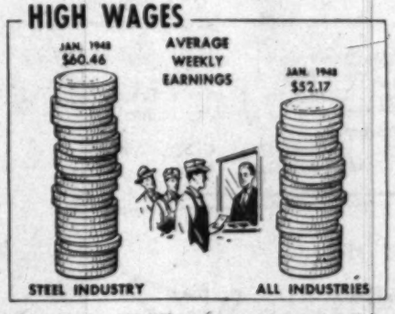
Large steel production in 1947 made possible peak levels of production and employment in steel consuming industries. Production records were set last year in trucks, washing machines, ranges, stoves and some farm equipment; near records in other fields.

LOW PRICES



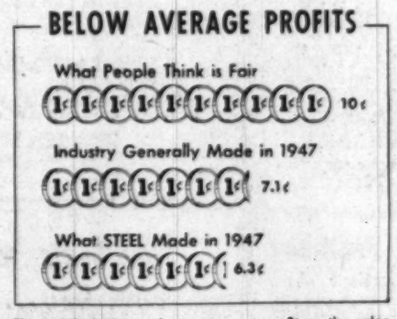
Average price of steel has gone up about 40 per cent in the last nine years. Prices of most other metals, general commodities, foodstuffs and the cost of making steel have risen far more than the price of steel.

HIGH WAGES



Last year the 525,000 wage earners employed by steel companies were paid almost a billion-and-a-half dollars—a record-breaking payroll. In January 1948, they earned on average of over $60 per week, double the average weekly pay in 1939, and well above the average for all industries.

BELOW AVERAGE PROFITS



The public believes that a ten cent profit on the sales dollar would be "fair." Steel profits last year were 6.3 cents—well below what the public thinks is fair. Profits last year were LESS than the amount spent by the industry for expansion and improvement.

There are more than 92 member companies of the Institute with plants in 166 American communities. They produce 95 percent of the country's steel.

Gen. Vandenberg Lauds Air Patrol

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. Air Force chief of staff, and House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) yesterday paid tribute to the Civil Air Patrol.

Occasion was the annual congressional dinner of the CAP, attended by some 500, at Hotel Mayflower.

General Vandenberg pointed out that since the end of World War II events "have underlined the need for peace-loving people to remain strong in the air."

Contending that the CAP has been of great "value" to the Air Force, he urged that it be given "every possible encouragement." He emphasized its importance as a "regervoir" of air-minded youths.

Representative Halleck declared that the CAP, a volunteer semi-military organization of air-minded civilians, helps to insure the "national security." He said its training program lays its "greatest stress on good citizenship," doing away with any problem of juvenile delinquency.

The guests heard with jubilation news that President Truman had just signed a bill making permanent the CAP status as a civilian auxiliary of the Air Force. Among those attending were leaders of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Royal Canadian Air Cadet League, Wing Commanders of the CAP and high ranking officers of the Air Force.

Maj. Gen. Lucas V. Beau, jr., commanding general of the CAP, reviewed the organization's activities in the past year.

Record Tax Rate Set in Bladensburg

Bladensburg, during the fiscal year starting July 1 will have the highest real estate tax rate in its history, 50 cents per $100 valuation.

This was fixed by the town council Tuesday night following adoption of a $25,800 budget.

The town's current rate is 30 cents, and the budget $17,278.

The record budget increased street improvement funds from $1320 to $6500 and the public safety allocation from $3770 to $7100. The safety fund will permit either the addition of additional police equipment or employment of another policeman, town officials said.

Mrs. Ruth Young, town clerk, said the inclusion of Sunnybrook within Bladensburg during the past year also accounted for some of the budgetary increase. The new tax rate is the maximum permitted by the town charter.

New B. & O. Travel Office Opens Tuesday

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. next Tuesday will open its new, ultramodern railroad ticket and travel office at H st. and Connecticut ave. nw., D. L. Moorman, general passenger agent, said yesterday.

In addition to the selling of rail and Pullman tickets and reservations, the new office will serve as an information center, and its personnel will assist in planning itineraries for individuals and groups.

It will include a special travel bureau for women, and will issue and cash travelers checks, handle applications for rail travel loans, arrange for rental automobiles at rail destinations, make hotel reservations, issue travel insurance policies and arrange sightseeing trips.

An innovation will be music during office hours, probably the Nation's first musical railroad ticket office.

The facilities also will include a private driveway for delivery of tickets to patrons calling for them in automobiles.

Dairyland Wisconsin Is Wolfing Margarine

Madison, Wis., May 26 (U.P.).—The State Agriculture Department revealed today that residents of Wisconsin's dairyland are eating more margarine than ever.

The department said that $448,000 has been collected since January 1 from Wisconsin's 15-cent-a-pound tax on oleo. For the same period last year, only $20,000 was collected.

Prince Georges Safety Drive Traps Fewer Than a Dozen

Prince Georges County police yesterday opened an all-out drive against traffic violations, but either because of the rainy weather or advance warnings, they found few violations.

As of 6 p. m., fewer than a dozen traffic violators had been caught.

According to Police Supt. Ralph W. Brown even minor violations, which heretofore have brought only warnings, will result hereafter in tickets or summons.

And police have been instructed, Brown said, to make no distinction between county and out-of-county drivers.

The campaign, suggested by the advisory committee because of what it termed an "alarming" increase in traffic casualties in the county, will continue for an indefinite period, county officials said.

Opening of the drive coincided with a warning from the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, for motorists to be on the alert for "pedestrians, children at play, old folks and drunks."

The warning came after the commission received reports of 29 traffic fatalities in Maryland last month. Fourteen of the deaths involved pedestrians, the commission reported.

Divorcee, Seeking Mate, Gets 14 Offers

Hempstead, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothy Lawlor, comely 28-year-old divorcee, today got 14 quick offers from prospective husbands willing to pay her $10,000 and to support her and her two children.

Mrs. Lawlor

She said she would interview the bidders at the Long Island night club where she works as a hat-check girl, and make her decision withm a week.

"I have just enough money to last me that long," she said.

The offers came within a few hours after her "Wife For Sale" story appeared in the Hempstead Newsday. The paper published the story after she had submitted this ad for the "Situation Wanted, Female" column:

"Wife for sale. Divorcee, blonde, attractive wants man to marry and support her and two children. Must be willing and able to make immediate $10,000 cash settlement."

She said the man must be "of a decent type" and "not too old."

Married at 15 and divorced five years later, Mrs. Lawlor said she was tired of the eight-year struggle to provide for her children, Dorothy, 11, and Tommy, 10.

"I just don't believe in love," she said. "But surely somewhere, there must be a man who wants a wife and two fine children. Perhaps we could learn to love each other after a time."

One on the Aisle—

'Express' Couples Punch and a Plea

By Richard L. Coe

"BERLIN EXPRESS," at Keith's, aims higher than most film fare, which puts it in an admirable class so far as this department is concerned. Its adventure in present day Germany isn't always persuasive, but its total effect is greater than its individual scenes. Somehow it packs a punch.

The settings are the always deeply moving shells of gutted Frankfurt and Berlin. The film faces—Robert Ryan, Merle Oberon and Paul Lukas among them—are familiar but decidedly natural. The story of Nazi remnants doing their best to split the four Allies may strike the ingrained filmgoer as obvious cloak and dagger stuff, but who in this foolish world is to say that it's implausible?

On the Berlin Express from Paris we find: an American agriculture expert, played by Robert Ryan; a British schoolmaster on his job of reeducating the Nazi-trained Germans, acted by Robert Coote; a French black market wiz, Charles Korvin; a girl who speaks several languages, an ability which leaves her identity in doubt, Merle Oberon; a Russian officer, reticent yet given to moments of trustfulness, Roman Toporow; a mysterious German, Paul Lukas, and a covey of military police.

Midway on the journey an explosion in one of the compartments brings sudden death, involves all occupants of the car in a manhunt. Who is under suspicion and for what should be left to the part of the film Producer Dore Schary has designed as entertainment.

What he is trying to do—as he did in "Crossfire"—is to tackle a contemporary problem in the dress of the accepted screen formula for entertainment. Here he is uttering the plea for unity among the victorious allies.

"BERLIN EXPRESS," a screen play by Harold Medford, based on a story by Curt Siodmak, directed by Jacques Tourneur, produced by Bert Granet and presented by RKO Radio Pictures. At Keith's:

THE CAST

Lucienne	Merle Oberon
Robert Lindley	Robert Ryan
Perrot	Charles Korvin
Dr. Bernhardt	Paul Lukas
Sterling	Robert Coote
Walther	Reinhold Schunzel
Lieutenant Mazim	Roman Toporow
Hans Schmidt	Peter von Zerneck
Kessler	Otto Waldis
Franzen	Fritz Kortner
Sergeant Barnes	Michael Harvey
Major	Richard Powers

Alliance in Miniature

You see them as microscopic figures, types if you will, but still maintaining the qualities the allies seem to have from a patient American point of view. Ryan, friendly, easy, likable, has the naive quality we have when caught in the whirlpool of conflicting nationalities. The English and the French are less sharply defined, but Coote and Miss Oberon seem to speak for that growing English-French accord. The Russian officer is effectively shown to be friendly but unknowing, trusting in small things such as autograph collecting, distrusting in the larger arena of the Western alliance. At the end he first tosses away the American's card, then goes back to pick it up and put it in his pocket.

For all its chance happenings, its surface facility in suggesting that united action is possible, "Berlin Express" gets enormous effect from its feeling of the actual in Frankfurt and Berlin. With these constantly in view—virtually another world—the force of international types achieves its strength. The I. G. Farben works, spared by our bombers to become serviceable headquarters, and the Brandenburg Gate at the head of the ruined Unter Den Linden are as dramatic sights as the screen can offer.

Jacques Tourneur's direction has excellent pace and is admirably cut, never lingering too long over a point simply for the sake of being sure the slowest-witted will capture a scene's import. While the Curt Siodmak-Harold Medford script sometimes may strike you as excitable day dreaming, it's generally engrossing and is further blessed by ignoring the traditional love story.

The playing, from that excellent actor, Robert Ryan, to the methodical Russian, Roman Toporow, is thoroughly able. Altogether, in his efforts to blend timeliness and engrossing melodrama, the producer of "Crossfire" has done an even better job in "Berlin Express."

FIFTH ARMY VETS: Clark Gable, as a Medical Corps surgeon, and Lana Turner, as his nurse, in "Homecoming," which opens this morning at the Palace

LILLIAN GISH, Frances Starr and Violet Heming form a unique stellar bill today for the Women's National Press Club's final luncheon of the season at the Statler . . . Miss Gish, who starred with John Gielgud this season in "Crime and Punishment" and will be down in June to play Noel Coward's "The Marquise" at the Olney, will find Washington's two resident ladies-of-the-theater on hand to make her feel at home . . . The still lovely, conversationally delightful Miss Starr, recently widowed through the death of Emil C. Wetten, is living on Kalorama rd.; Miss Heming is the garden-conscious wife of Judge Bennett Champ Clark . . . Yes, sir, that's a real star lineup . . . WINX will broadcast the luncheon talk of Miss Gish at 1:45.

HILLBILLY FANS: Connie B. Gay, the "Gay Time" Constitution Hall impresario, is searching for local Eddie Arnolds, Minnie Pearls or Clyde Moodys . . . If you think you're one, drop into Ballard's, 1300 G st., and file what Connie calls "a very simple application blank." . . . One of the judges is to be the Duke of Paducah . . . If you've got something to offer, it's likely Gay will put you on Constitution Hall's big platform this or any Saturday night.

"HARVEY" NOTE: The Frank Fay comedy is having a holiday matinee, Monday, May 31, replacing the usual Wednesday afternoon performance next week.

TWIN-HOLDOVERS: With the big downtown houses changing bills this week, the twins—the Playhouse and the Little—continue their current offerings . . . At the former, "The Search" is in its fifth week, and at the elder, smaller sister, "Die Fledermaus" yesterday began its third.

Australian Pianist Plays

By Paul Hume

Eunice Gardiner, Australian pianist, was presented in recital at the Australian Embassy last night.

In a program of Bach, Mozart, Chopin and Liszt she displayed an easy command of style. Her playing is often beautiful and she understands the nature of her instrument.

Her one outstanding fault is a consistent tendency to overpedal. Aside from this, her phrasing, tone color and musical feeling make her work pleasant to hear.

Kem to Quiz FCC on Radio Towers Bill

Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) said yesterday he will ask the Federal Communications Commission for further information on a proposed bill to restrict television and radio towers in Washington residential areas.

Kem said he wanted the FCC to determine what sites would still be available in Washington for the towers if the bill became law.

He announced the plan after a Senat District Judiciary Subcommittee hearing in which Leverett A. Meadows and George A. Corbin, of the Manor Park Citizens Association, appealed strongly for passage of the bill which has already cleared the House.

Opposing the bill were William C. Warren, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Dr. Thomas J. Carroll, physicist of the National Bureau of Standards; and Thad Brown, attorney for the Television Broadcasters Association.

NCHA Pays D. C. $215,240

The District yesterday received $215,240.16 from National Capital Housing Authority as payment "in lieu of taxes" on housing property managed by NCHA.

John Ihlder, executive officer of NCHA, said the money included $52,599.54 for five permanent low-rent housing properties (for fiscal year ended last June 30), and $162,640.62 for 24 local war housing properties (for fiscal year which ends June 30, 1948).

None of these properties receives annual Federal contributions, he said.

District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton said regulations of the Public Housing Administration provide that specified sums, instead of regular taxes, be paid the District by NCHA. Ihlder estimated the total amount paid was equal to about 80 per cent of full real estate taxes on the properties involved.

4 Gypsies Held In Philadelphia On D. C. Charge

Philadelphia police yesterday were holding four gypsies, one of them a woman, who are charged with robbing a Washington gypsy of $500 here last month.

The four, Eli Miller, 57, George Miller, 28, Dewey Miller, 27, and Annie Miller, 20, and another man, still unidentified, are alleged to have entered the apartment of Mrs. Lena de Metro, at 1216 New York ave. nw., last April 26, tied Mrs. de Metro and her son Robert, 18, to chairs and stolen $500 from a trunk.

Detective Sergt. George Cooper of the robbery squad will go to Philadelphia today to testify at removal proceedings.

Taking Pictures

Why Not a Camera As Graduation Gift?

"Chapeau Noir," is a home studio portrait by Jim Springer, 2311 No. Utah St., Arlington. An honor winning print in the May salon of the National Photographic Society, it was made with studio camera on 4x5 XF pan film, a bulb exposure at F/11 and studio lighting.

By Ollie Atkins

GRADUATIONS are coming up and among gifts suitable for years of pleasure and service you will find the camera.

Unless the youngsters you have in mind are really camera bugs you wlil overdo it by getting too complicated a camera for them.

For the beginner a simple fixed-focus camera is the easiest to use. Certainly it has limitations—it can't stop fast action and overcast days baffle its modest lens. But, with decent weather and regular film there will be no need to fret about focus, shutter speeds or lens stops. Just stand six or more feet from the subject and click your picture.

The fundamentals of photography are much more easily comprehended with simple box cameras than complicated machines modeled with changes every year. The box camera artist learns to load his camera, advance the film after each exposure, hold the camera steady, center the subject in view finder, and use good common sense with lighting from natural sources.

A camera will be a prized possession given to any graduate, regardless of age or previous experience in photography. Just do not overdo it by presenting the youngster with a machine too complicated for him to use or appreciate.

To fill the need for a longer focal length lens for 4x5 cameras, the Eastman Kodak Co. has announced the Kodak Ektar Lens, 152mm (60 inch) F/4.5. This lens provides greater covering power, helpful when making use of camera tilts, swings, and rising and falling adjustments at close working distances. It is mounted in a new No. 3 Kodak Flash Supermatic Shutter which provides flash synchronization at speeds from one second to 1/200, plus "time" and "bulb."

OUR New 500,000 CU.FT. WAREHOUSE OPENS Tomorrow!

TWO FULL STORIES at NEW YORK AVENUE and BLADENSBURG ROAD, N.E.

Once again Smith's lead the way with Washington's newest and finest furniture warehouse. The most modern steel and concrete warehouse construction make the big two-story building a splendid example of the newest in building methods. Loading and unloading facilities for six trucks at a time make it possible for Smith's to give you faster, more efficient moving and storage service than ever.

Smith's fifth Select Furniture Store is located in the new building. The other four stores have served residents of Arlington, Alexandria, Georgetown and downtown Washington. Smith's newest store places outstanding furniture values within easy reach of homemakers in the northeast section. For occasional pieces and suites, for fine furnishings of every kind, "Buy Smith's Select . . . and Save!"

Through the years, Smith's have worked constantly to improve their storage facilities and their service. Today, Smith's have 10 large warehouses, located in Washington, Virginia and Maryland, with nearly 3 million cubic feet of storage space. Three generations of Smith's have served the homemakers of the Washington area, and today they stand as Washington's largest moving and storage company for household goods. Celebrating their 40th Anniversary with the opening of the new warehouse, Smith's pledge themselves to finer, faster, more dependable service in the years to come.

Silver Spring Express Buses To Start June 7

Rush Hour Service Full Route Rate Fixed at 20 Cents; 15 at District Line

Capital Transit Co. will begin operating an extra-fare rush-hour express bus service from Silver Spring, Md., to downtown Washington at 7:30 a. m. June 7, CTC Vice President E. C. Giddings announced yesterday. The trip will cost 5 cents more than for present non-express service.

The service—but not the extra fare—was authorized by the District Public Utilities Commission yesterday. PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan explained the commission has no authority to act on the fare because the express service is inter-State.

Giddings said, however, the company may set the new rate without recourse to the Interstate Commerce Commission because the new service will be within the metropolitan "commercial area."

Some 15-Cent Riders

Buses will leave from Fenton st. and Colesville rd. in Silver Spring, he said. Persons boarding them at the last stop outside the District will pay only 15 cents for the express ride downtown. Remainder of the passengers, however, will pay an additional 5 cents—the regular rate for the first Maryland zone, Giddings explained.

(The first Maryland zone covers an area about 1½ miles from the District line.)

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring and the Silver Spring Board of Trade opposed the plan. But no formal protest was filed with the District PUC, Flanagan said.

Five trips will operate Monday through Friday between 7:30 and 8:30 a. m. from the District line via Georgia and Kansas aves. and 13th st. to the terminal at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., Giddings announced. Five return trips will retrace the route between 4:45 and 5:45 p. m.

Interstate Passengers Only

No passengers may be carried on the line between two points within the District, PUC ruled. Interstate passengers may transfer to other lines, however, once they're crossed the D. C. line in either direction.

Only other express buses running downtown from the District line are operated from Rockville by Montgomery Bus Line, a Capital Transit subsidiary. They charge a 15-cent fare for the express run.

Carrier Given 15 Days To Cut School Fares

Capital Transit Co. was ordered yesterday to set a date within 15 days for making effective reduced rates for school children in nearby Maryland.

The order was issued by Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith of the Court of Equity in Baltimore.

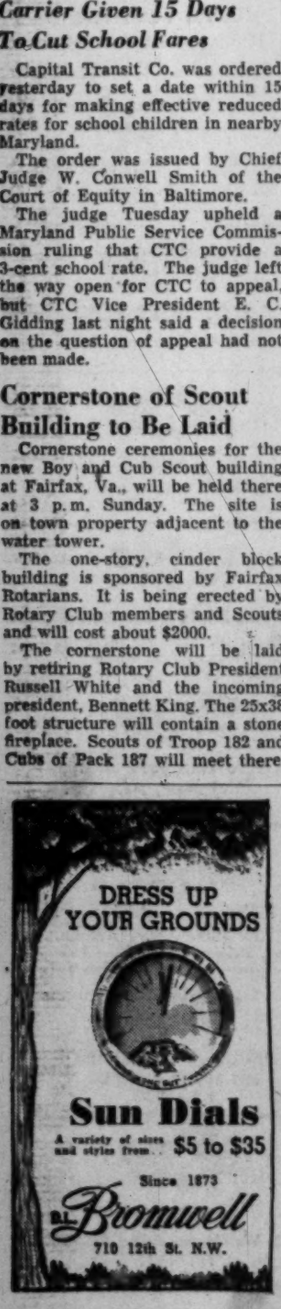
The judge Tuesday upheld a Maryland Public Service Commission ruling that CTC provide a 3-cent school rate. The judge left the way open for CTC to appeal, but CTC Vice President E. C. Gidding last night said a decision on the question of appeal had not been made.

Cornerstone of Scout Building to Be Laid

Cornerstone ceremonies for the new Boy and Cub Scout building at Fairfax, Va., will be held there at 3 p.m. Sunday. The site is on town property adjacent to the water tower.

The one-story, cinder block building is sponsored by Fairfax Rotarians. It is being erected by Rotary Club members and Scouts and will cost about $2000.

The cornerstone will be laid by retiring Rotary Club President Russell White and the incoming president, Bennett King. The 25x38 foot structure will contain a stone fireplace. Scouts of Troop 182 and Cubs of Pack 187 will meet there.



For Grand Jury

Motorman, Driver Held In 2 Deaths

A Capital Transit Co. streetcar operator and a 17-year-old youth were ordered held for court action yesterday by a coroner's jury at inquests into two traffic deaths.

They are Joseph W. Runion, 27, of 917 Cameron st., Alexandria, Va., and Donald I. Lehman, 3130 Tennyson st. nw.

Runion, who was heldon a charge of negligent homicide for action of Municipal Court, operated a streetcar which struck an automobile driven by Jeremiah F. Steele, 50, of 4-A Auburn ct., Alexandria, last Friday at 7th st. and Independence ave. sw. Steele died Monday at Emergency Hospital.

In the inquest into Steele's death it was testified Runion had failed to make the automatic switch work, so that when he started up after discharging passengers the streetcar veered left into Independence ave. instead of proceeding straight ahead as it should have done. As it turned, the streetcar struck and overturned Steele's car. Runion was released in $500 bond.

A car driven by Lehman struck and fatally injured a pedestrian, Elwin H. Forristall, 74, of 3711 Fessenden st. nw., May 18 in the 5000 block of Connecticut ave. nw. Forristall died the following day at Emergency Hospital.

The jury decided not to exonerate Lehman after it was testified he was driving a car with bad brakes. Because of his age he was turned over to junvenile authorities and it will be up to Juvenile Court to determine whether he will be tried in Municipal Court.

Crash Ties Up Traffic On Route 1 Five Hours

Collision of a tractor-trailer with two automobiles tied up traffic for five hours yesterday on the Jefferson Davis Highway (U. S. Route 1) at Custis ave. in Alexandria. Traffic was detoured by police from 1 to 6 p. m., until the wreckage was removed.

Driver of the tractor-trailer, loaded with peaches, La Verne Parker, 22, of Beaufort, S. C., was charged with reckless driving and released in $250 bond. Police said no one was injured.

Police said Parker was trying to pass an automobile driven by Charles Apperson, 39, of 320 E. Bellefont ave., Alexandria, when the tractor-trailer jacknifed, turned over and crashed into Apperson's car.

A third vehicle, a car driven by Elmer Rice, 55, of Stamford, Conn., became entangled in the wreckage, police said.

Information Building Hit By Art Group

The United States Information Center at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., across the street from the Willard Hotel, will be the first war-temporary building to be razed—if the Fine Arts Commission has its way.

"It's a monstrous eyesore," says H. P. Caemmerer, commission secretary.

Caemmerer informed the House Appropriations Committee, according to a record of hearings released yesterday, that it would be a nice thing to tear down the temporary buildings at least in downtown Washington and around the Mall before the celebration of the Capital's sesquicentennial in 1950.

The two-story wooden structure was built on the quadrangular plot bounded by Pennsylvania ave., E st., 14th and 15th sts., in 1942. Its construction was subjected to heated controversy. It was first used as a Federal information center for businessmen visiting Washington. More recently, it has served to house the District Veterans and Housing Centers.

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday approved a $12,000 annual budget for the Fine Arts Commission, which advises on the location of statutes and monuments here, on plans and designs for public structures, and on all Federal questions involving matters of art.

The committee knocked $125,850 from the fiscal 1949 budget sought by National Capital Parks section of the National Park Service. The section was granted $774,150, and all proposed increases were denied by the committee, excepting $14,150 for in-grade promotions.

Among the requests turned down was one for a sergeant and six privates to be added to the present force of 47 Park Police.

National Capital Parks has jurisdiction over the Arlington Memorial Bridge, George Washington Memorial Parkway, various monuments and memorials in the District area, Lee Mansion, Battleground National Cemetery, Chopawamsic Park, Chesapeake and Federal parks in the District.

Dogs Cause New Trouble For Sisters

A fondness for dogs has once again brought police action against two Alexandria sisters, daughters of the late Alexandria Circuit Court Judge Charles E. Nicol.

Two years ago the sisters, Miss Mary Louise Nicol, 46, and Mrs. Frances Nicol McKone, drew the wrath of neighbors because they were keeping 16 dogs in their three-story Georgian-type home at 316 N. Washington st.

The dogs were boarded out, but lately neighbors had complained that noises and odors indicated they were back.

Last Saturday police went to the home to serve a warrant on Mrs. McKone charging her with passing bad checks. She wasn't home. However, police said they found six or seven dogs in a house which they said was "unbelievably filthy."

Keith Wade, City Health Department inspector, investigated Sunday and swore out a warrant charging the sisters with creating a general nuisance. Yesterday he swore out another warrant charging them with cruelty to animals.

In court yesterday, Wade and policemen described the filthy conditions they found and said that water and electricity had been cut off and that all the windows were boarded up. They testified the dogs in the house were suffering from mange and lack of food.

Judge James R. Duncan ordered the dogs removed and the house cleaned up and directed Miss Nicol to appear in court Friday for a final decision.

Murder Jury Told of Alleged Third Degree

Younger Garner Says Police Abused Him For 45 Minutes

Lawrence J. Garner, 23-year-old alleged slayer of two taxi drivers, who is on trial in the District Court for murder, told Justice Richmond B. Keech yesterday that detectives and policemen who were trying to make him confess brutally beat, kicked and abused him for 45 minutes. He said that during part of the beatings while being questioned at Police Headquarters Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police looked on.

Garner, who is claimed by his lawyers to be the victim of a strain of murder and insanity that runs back in his family four generations, flatly denied that he ever signed a confession which was handed to him by Assistant District Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin.

"I don't make my 'L's' that way," Garner explained.

Garner and his brother, George, 25, are charged with killing Howard Jones, 37, of 417 Irving st. nw., and James Hardy, 38, on the night of February 27. The brothers were arrested on March 3, and the police claim that after being questioned at headquarters the two confessed that they held up Jones and Hardy because they needed money, and robbed them of $4 and a watch.

Justice Keech excluded the jurors from the court room while he heard the claims of Defense Attorneys John Alvin Groghan and Louis Jongbloet that police brutality was what brought the alleged confessions from the two brothers.

Here is what Lawrence Garner told Justice Keech:

That he was taken into a room at headquarters where he saw Major Barrett and three or four other officers, and shown some pictures. When he said he could not tell anything about them a "little short fellow" smacked him on one side of his head, and a red-headed officer—whom he later identified as Det. Sergt. Ernst H. Winter of the Robbery Squad—smacked him on the other side of his head.

During the next 45 minutes he was kicked and punched by several officers, one of whom spit in Garner's face and told him that as an Army colonel in France he "killed more colored fellows than the Germans did."

When Garner claimed he never signed the alleged confession, McLaughlin told Justice Keech there was no point in going further into the claims that he was forced to confess, that the only question was whether or not Garner signed.

Sergeant Winter, Detective Sergt. Dan B. Kennedy and Detective Sergt. Edwin B. Crandall, who arrested Garner and took part in his questioning, testified that neither they nor anyone else laid a hand on the man.

Among other witnesses heard during the trial yesterday were:

Barnard E. Smith, a taxi driver, who testified that Lawrence Garner was the man he saw at the wheel of Howard Jones' taxicab the night Jones was killed. Smith said he was surprised that a stranger was driving Jones' cab and he followed it for several blocks so he could get a good look at the strange driver.

Sergeant Winter, who told of arresting Lawrence Garner and finding under Garner's pillow a gold wristwatch with the name "Howard" engraved on the back, which the slain man's widow had identified as a watch she gave her husband as a Christmas present.

Unlike his brother, George, who has slouched in his chair throughout the trial and at times has seemed to be more than half asleep, Lawrence has followed the testimony with great attention.

May Become City

Falls Church Population Put at 5340

The Town of Falls Church has a population of 5340, which is more than double its official 1940 United States Census listing.

The new figure was released yesterday by Falls Church Town Manager Roy F. Dunn. It tops the 5000 population needed to make the town a city, second class.

The new figure was compiled by eight enumerators from the town and Fairfax County and will be sent to Fairfax County Circuit Court Judge Paul Brown, whose order is needed to change the town to a city status.

If city status is granted, Falls Church residents would be able to pay all local and State taxes directly to the city, instead of dividing payment between Fairfax County and Falls Church as at present, and would be able to act independently of the County Board of Supervisors on local legislation.

Tax Boost Seen If County Gets Things It Needs

Brooke Johns, president of the Board of Montgomery County Commissioners raised the question last night as to whether the county can keep above water financially without a tax boost.

He spoke before the Woodside Park Civic Association at Grace Church hall, Silver Spring, Md.

He told the group that "if we grant all the things we need, we will have to put the tax rate up 80 cents more than now to break even." The present tax rate is $1.88 per $100 valuation.

The county, he said, is now obligated by approximately 39 million dollars in bonded indebtedness, adding he felt the taxes should have been raised "many years ago." He advocated more industry in the county as a source of revenue.

All officers of the association, headed by Dr. Charles A. Weigel as president, were unanimously reelected.

Connaughton Calls District U. S. Stepchild

Says Appointees Lack Obligations To Local Residents

John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, last night accused "our paternalistic Federal Government" of treating the District "like the stepchild of the United States."

Speaking before the Burroughs Citizens Association following its annual banquet at Taft Junior High School, 18th and Perry sts. ne., Connaughton charged "members of Congress have political interests diametrically opposed to the best interests of District residents."

Referring to presidential appointees in the District Government as "men with no obligations to District residents," Connaughton said if the "appointees and Congress can not cut the $101,000,000 District budget, or find a reasonable means of paying it, Congress should kick in 10 million dollars and let District residents rule themselves."

The association reelected the following officers: Robert N. Burrows, president; Leonard J. Kaster, secretary; Mrs. Leonard Thomas, assistant secretary; Frank Sazama, treasurer; and W. Wylie Griffin, assistant treasurer. Mrs. May Chipman was elected vice president of athletics.

Other vacant offices, including the position of vice president for membership and vice president for publicity, were referred to the executive committee for subsequent appointments.

Bates to Offer D. C. Sales Tax Measure Soon

Representative To Insist That Levy Be Imposed Only If Pay Raise Compels It

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) yesterday announced he will soon introduce in the House a revised District sales tax bill for District Committee action June 3.

Bates emphasized he would insist that the proposed 2 per cent general retail sales tax take effect this year only if it is made necessary by pay raises for District employes in line with Federal pay legislation. Without the pay raise, he intends that the law take effect a year later, July 1, 1949.

At the same time, Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) introduced in the House a District income tax revision bill designed to head off the sales tax which he strongly opposes.

Klein's bill would increase District revenue by an estimated 12 to 13 million dollars a year by extending the personal income tax here to thousands of persons who do not now have to pay it and by sharply increasing rates.

7 Months Residents Included

The bill calls for collection of the tax from persons who are legally domiciled in the District and also persons who keep a place of abode here for at least seven months in the year. Present collection of the tax is mainly from persons legally domiciled in the District. Federal employes here are exempt from the tax if they have a legal domicile elsewhere. Klein's bill would end that exemption—a move that the House decisively rejected last year.

The sales tax bill to be introduced by Representative Bates is designed to make the proposed District levy conform with the Maryland sales tax law.

Food for home consumption and drugs and medicines would be exempt. So would sales to Federal, State or District government agencies, and semi-public institutions. In general goods and services on which there are other special sales taxes would be exempt, including gasoline, amusements and public utilities. Newspapers and magazines would be exempt, along with advertising. Liquor sales would not be exempt, nor would restaurant meals be given the exemption up to $1.50 per person earlier proposed by the Commissioners.

One cent would be collected on taxable sales from 14 to 50 cents; two cents where the price is 51 cents to $1, and an additional cent for every additional 50 cents in price or fraction thereof.

Merchants would collect the tax for the District, and pay their returns to the District at intervals to be fixed by the Commissioners—months, quarters, or other periods. For their services of collecting the tax, vendors would be allowed to retain 3 per cent of the gross tax collected.

A main part of the bill also applies to a "use" tax at the same rate as the sales tax for articles bought outside the District for use here.

The sales tax would go into effect 60 days after enactment.

New Senator

Feazel Put On District Committee

The Senate yesterday assigned its newest member, Senator William Crosson Feazel (D., La.), to serve on the Senate District Committee.

Two District Committee members, Senators John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) and John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) were shifted from that committee to others. Sparkman goes to the Public Works Committee, and Stennis to the Postoffice and Civil Service Committee.

The transfers leave one vacancy on the District Committee's roll of six Democratic places. In another shift, Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) went from Post Office and Civil Service to the Appropriations Committee.

Takes Overton's Place

The Appropriations and Public Works Committee seats were those of the late Senator John H. Overton (D., La.).

Feazel, 54, Overton's successor, has been in the oil business since 1921. He has offices in Shreveport, La. He served in the House of the Louisiana Legislature from 1932 to 1936. He is married and has two daughters, Miss Lallage Feazel, and Mrs. Gertrude F. Anderson, of Shreveport, and two grandsons, William Anderson, 7, and Henry Anderson, 6.

"I've been up and down in the oil business," he recalled. "Wiped out in the depression, back again in east Texas, broke again, then back on my feet."

Struck It Rich

Any exciting stories of the oil business?

"Well, I drilled a block of acreage in Texas about four years ago in which I owed seven-eighths interest. Very few people thought there was anything in it, but there was. I sold a three-quarters interest for three million cash, and my associates built a four million dollar gasoline plant that draws from 38 wells."

Any hobbies beside oil?

"Politics is my hobby. I like politics, but I wouldn't have accepted a long term, too much to do back home."

As for District issues, Feazel said he favors the principle of the sales tax but would not commit himself to a sales tax for the District, nor to the idea of home rule, without studying them.

Safety Award Won by Arlington Asphalt Co. Fleet

The Arlington Asphalt Co., 1756 N. Arlington Ridge rd., has won first place for the most accident-free miles driven during the past year in the county, the Arlington Safety Council announced yesterday.

The company's fleet drove a total of 666,981 miles without an accident during the year ending April 30.

Second place went to the Hudson Supply and Equipment Co. of Rosslyn, with 382,519 safe miles, and third place to the W. J. Baumback Co., plumbing suppliers, 4147 Wilson blvd. with 126, 878.

Another award for the largest accumulated consecutive mileage without accidents went to the Arlington Asphalt Co. with a total of 666,981.

The Hires-Turner Glass Co. of Rosslyn was cited for operating its fleet six years without an accident.

Lindley to Interview McCloy on WINX

John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, will be interviewed by Ernest K. Lindley, Washington editor of Newsweek magazine, during a WINX broadcast Thursday at 8:15 p. m.

McCloy will discuss the general economic situation of South American republics and the role of the International Bank in bringing increased production and improved economic conditions to many countries in the world. He will also discuss the position of the bank in the European Recovery Program.

Rep. Owens in Hospital After Heart Attack

Representative Thomas L. Owens (R., Ill.) was in "very serious" condition at Bethesda Naval Hospital last night following a heart attack suffered last Sunday.

Announcement of Owens' attack was not disclosed until yesterday by Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician. The 50-year-old Congressman is serving his first term in the House and is a member of the House Labor Committee.

Error in Address

Due to a typographical error, The Washington Post incorrectly listed on May 22 the address of J. Fred Carper, 45-year-old salesman who was shot in the leg by Police Pvt. Edward Neill, as 1055 Quebec pl. nw. The correct address is 1058 Quebec pl. nw. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Bill to Aid Police Control Arms Advances

The Senate District Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday approved a bill to increase District police powers for destroying dangerous weapons.

Weapons legally seized from persons illegally in possession of them could be destroyed, but legal owners of stolen weapons would be able to reclaim them. Under present law, police have to return weapons unless the person claiming them has been convicted of a crime of violence, according to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

Hecht Choir to Sing

The 63-voice choir of The Hecht Co. downtown store will offer a program of Memorial Day music for employes of the firm at 9 this morning on the main floor. An estimated 1000 store employes are expected to join in the singing.

Area News in Brief

Bill to Control Armory Passes

The House late yesterday completed Congressional approval of a bill to place control of nonmilitary activities of the District Armory in the hands of a three-member board.

Final action came with House acceptance of a Senate amendment saying that one of the three board members shall be a person who is neither a District nor a Federal employe and who is to be selected by the chairmen of the House and Senate District Committees. The House had earlier voted to give Capitol Architect David Lynn the assignment but he asked to be relieved because of other duties.

One member would represent the District Commissioners, the other would represent the National Guard.

8 Old Cars for Sale

Eight condemned District-owned automobiles and 15 mimeograph machines will be offered to high bidders beginning today, Paul Chalupsky, District Property Survey Officer, announced yesterday.

Sealed bids for the autos, 1939 to 1942 model sedans and coaches, will be opened at 2 p. m. today in Room 509 at the District Building, he said.

Gets Editorial Post

A former Chevy Chase resident, William L. Parker, has been appointed executive editor of the science, crafts and hobbies magazine, Mechanix Illustrated, Ralph Daigh, editorial director of Fawcett Publications, Inc., announced yesterday in New York City.

Parker, son of Mrs. John Scott Parker and the late Mr. Parker, lived at 1 East Kirke st., Chevy Chase, Md., from 1927 until 1933 when, following graduation from Princeton University, he entered the publications field in New York. He now lives in Mamaroneck, N. Y. His mother and three sisters make their home at 3911 Livingston st. nw.

Patient Suspected

Police and firemen decided yesterday Gallinger Hospital is harboring a patient who likes to see fire trucks and excitement.

Yesterday, at 12:45 p. m., a large number of trucks responded to an alarm from the second floor of the medical building. No fire.

A nurse realized sometime ago there had been a false alarm pulled on the same box. A 17-year-old patient who has been in and out of the hospital a number of times in recent years is suspected.

Truman Aids Boys Camp

President Truman has become a member of the Alexandria Police Boys Camp by contributing $10 to the camp's fund drive. Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's military aide, who lives in Alexandria, forwarded the contribution Tuesday. Alexandria police are conducting a funds campaign to send 560 boys to the camp at Kilmarnock, Va.

Rites Are Set For R.K. Small, Councilman

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday at the Gasch funeral home, Hyattsville, Md., for Reuben K. Small, 68, Edmonston town councilman and veteran of the Spanish-American War.

Mr. Small died Tuesday afternoon from cerebral hemorrhage at his home at 4606 Hamilton st., Edmonston, Md. He had been absent from his work in the storekeeper's division of the Federal Works Agency here with a heart condition since December.

A native of Hagerstown, Md., he enlisted in the Army and saw war service in Cuba during the Spanish-American War.

He moved to Edmonston from Washington about five years ago, and 18 months ago was elected a member of the town council.

He leaves his wife, Lulu, of the Edmonston address; one son, Ulrich Small, of Indian Head, Md., and seven grandchildren.

Following funeral services, burial rites will be held at Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Josephine S. Laidlaw

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Stout Laidlaw, 71, of 1332 15th st. nw., who died Tuesday, will be held Friday at 11 a. m. in the Hysong funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Laidlaw was the wife of Albert H. Laidlaw of the Times-Herald editorial staff. A native of Marion, Ind., she had been a resident of Washington since the spring of 1918 when she came here to work for the War Trade Board. She retired from the Treasury Department in 1943.

Surviving besides her husband, are two daughters, Mrs. David A. Frantz, 3406 23d st. se., and Miss Jane Laidlaw, of the 15th st. address, and a sister, Mrs. O. M. Flinn, 1608 Hobart st. nw.

Robert H. Johnson

New York, May 26 (AP).—Robert H. Johnson, 57, general manager of the New York Daily Mirror, died last night after a heart attack suffered as he dined with his wife and two friends at a restaurant.

Johnson had been a member of the Hearst organization for 27 years.

Mrs. Maria Romulo

Manila, P. I., May 26 (U.P.).—Mrs. Maria Pena Romulo, mother of Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines permanent delegate to the United Nations, died today at her home in Camiling, Tarlac Province.

It Was Graduation Day and They Were Happy . . .

Gen. McBride Reburied; Died In Formosa

Frederick, Md., May 26 (Spl.).—Brig. Gen. Allan C. McBride, husband of Mrs. Avis H. McBride of 2133 Tunlaw rd. nw., Washington, who died in a Japanese prison camp on Formosa, was reinterred this afternoon in the War Memorial section of Mount Olivet Cemetery here.

Gen. Charles Gearhardt, Second Army commander, Fort Meade, represented the Army at rites conducted in the cemetery chapel by the Rev. Edwin H. Sponseller.

Pallbearers were Col. Frederick C. Rogers, G. William Trout, Philip Wertheimer, Guy Anders, Ernest Helfenstein, jr., and Melvin M. Seeger. Attending the services were Mrs. McBride and several other close relatives.

General McBride, a native of Frederick, Md., and an alumnus of St. John's College, was artillery chief of staff to Gen. Douglas MacArthur at the outbreak of the war with Japan. He fought through the seize of Bataan and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He was captured when Corregidor fell to the Japanese and died in a Formosa prison camp.

Mrs. W. Cora Stouffer

Frederick, Md., May 26.—Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. from the late home for Mrs. W. Cora Stouffer, 82, operator of a florist shop in New Windsor for the past 50 years. Mrs. Stouffer died at Frederick Memorial Hospital last night as a result of complications that followed a fractured hip sustained in a recent fall. She was a member of the New Windsor Presbyterian Church. A daughter, Mrs. Eva S. Rhoads, Washington, D. C., survives.

1490 Degrees Are Awarded In GW Commencement Rites

Degrees ranging from Associate in Arts to Doctor of Philosophy were awarded by the Junior College, Columbian College, Division of University Students, School of Medicine, Law School, School of Engineering, School of Pharmacy, School of Education, School of Government, and the Graduate Council.

University President Cloyd Heck Marvin, in conferring the degrees, observed that in these days, "when individual action seems almost futile," there is an unprecedented "need for disciplined minds and consecrated hearts."

3000 Attend Rites

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Law were bestowed on Henry Grattan Doyle, dean of Columbian College; Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of university students, and William Cabell Van Vleck, dean of the law school.

About 3000 parents and friends —and a baby that wailed through the invocation — witnessed the 127th annual exercises.

Dr. William Cullen French, professor of education, was made a professor emeritus. A faculty member since 1929, Dr. French will devote himself to research in the history of American education and will give one course at G.W., "Great Teachers in American Education."

The junior college graduated 652 students, the largest class in the school's history.

Among these Associates in Arts were Diana Roosevelt, niece of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Conrad Jacques Daubanton, son of Ch. J. H. Daubanton, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Netherlands Embassy. Miss Roosevelt was absent.

Three Become Ph.D's

Bachelor of Arts degrees went to Harriet Davis Cooley, daughter of Representative Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.), and Yassin Umar of Iraq.

Miss Esme Chu, niece of Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo, received a Master of Arts degree in government.

Two men and a woman became Doctors of Philosophy—Ralph Alpher, 8001 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, Md., an associate physicist at the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory; Daniel Alvin Boroff, research bacteriologist of Camp Derrick, Md., and Helen Nicol, a GW teaching fellow. The university also conferred alumni achievement awards on attorney Donald D'Arcy Shepard, trustee of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust; Miss Mildred Margaret Coughlin, principal of Western High School in Baltimore; Dean Van Vleck, and William Shester Thom, head ordnance engineer of the Naval Gun Factory here.

Frank L. Skeldon

Toledo Ohio, May 26 (AP).—Frank L. Skeldon, 64, veteran business editor of the Toledo Blade, died today. He had been in ill health for a year. He started his newspaper career in 1899 as an office boy for the Toledo Bee. He became reporter, marine editor and city editor of the News-Bee before joining the Blade.

Skeldon was credited with a big new scoop in his coverage of the sinking of the Titanic in April, 1912. The Blade sent him to New York to cover the story. He chartered a tugboat to meet the Carpathia, which was bringing in the Titanic's survivors. Skeldon met the ship, gathered the details and beat competition by 60 minutes.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

POVICH

CLEVELAND, May 26.—They're talking crazily of the pennant in Cleveland these days, with the town gone daft over the recent successes of the Indians, and the funny thing is, it could happen. Pennant fever strikes Cleveland almost annually in the spring, like pollen and ticks, but since 1920 it's been merely seasonal. The Indians have been known for years only as a hot spring ball team. They've been in first place before at the end of two months, but the fans rarely loved them in September as they did in May. They've blown more early leads than Hitler.

Ah, but this is the year when the Indians do look like a solid ball club and a big over-lay at the 10 to 1 odds at which they were quoted before the season opened. With the collapse of the Red Sox, the Indians certainly take stature as the only club capable of challenging the Yankees for the pennant. They're down to 4 to 1 in the pennant odds.

THESE PARAGRAPHS seem to be kissing off the Athletics who are only a half game out of it in second place, and also are leading the third-place Yankees. But the A's, surprising as they are, do not recommend themselves as the same serious threat as the Indians. They're longer on pitching, but they don't hit with the Indians or Yankees.

There are some amazing items about these 1948 Indians. They're in front in a year when Bob Feller isn't the leading pitcher on the club. Bob Lemon, with five wins against two defeats, owns that distinction and he not only has a better earned-run average than Feller but has struck out 10 more batters than Feller, in fewer innings pitched.

Dale Mitchell, the league's outstanding rookie of last season, can't make the Cleveland outfield with any regularity despite the fact he is batting .310. Rookie Allie Clark is outhitting him. Thurman Tucker is a better defensive outfielder, and Manager Lou Boudreau wheels big Pat Seerey into the lineup against left-handed pitching.

BILL VEECK has put a good ball team together with his smart trades and willingness to spend money, but at the same time Veeck has been shot through with good luck. Only a few months ago he was trying to trade off Lou Boudreau to get more pitching strength and vacate the managerial job for the appointment of a personality more to his liking. Veeck for some reason never has rated Boudreau his kind of manager.

But Boudreau is the key, the spark of the Indians' success. Baseball's biggest debate is whether Boudreau or Joe DiMaggio is the best player in the American League. Nobody in modern American League history has played shortstop like Boudreau does, despite the fact he is slow afoot and is troubled by weak ankles and rarely beats out an infield hit.

Boudreau is the counterpart of Bill Dudley, the football player who was with the Pittsburgh Steelers for a long spell. Dudley, at 160 pounds, was too small for pro football and at one time announced his retirement because he was taking too much of a beating. He couldn't run fast, wasn't much of a punter, wasn't even a good passer. But otherwise he contrived to be the all-league back and most valuable player in the league.

AS FOR the pitching feats of Bob Lemon, the converted infielder who turned pitcher last season, Veeck was lucky in that case, too. Actually he had Lemon on the waiver lists early last summer and he was claimed by Washington. The news leaked out before Veeck was ready to announce it. Veeck got sore, withdrew the waiver requests, and this year discovered that Lemon was one of the better pitchers in the American League.

Two years ago, Veeck was ready to give up on Ken Keltner. He offered him to the Nats in a couple of trades on the theory Keltner was slowing up. Keltner did have a bad back. But this year he has made a miraculous recovery. He had hit 13 home runs to lead the league in that department, and is playing third base as well as he ever did, which was very good.

The Indians have folded before, as we were saying, but in other years they didn't have an old pro like Joe Gordon to steady the infield or speed in the outfield like Tucker, or home run hitters like Seerey and Larry Doby to alternate against different pitching. And they never had so little to beat out for the pennant.

Giants Rally For 8 in 8th To Top Cards

New York, May 26 (AP).—Rallying for eight runs in the eighth inning, the New York Giants topped the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-7, tonight to cut the Redbirds' National League lead to 1½ games.

Stan Musial's eighth and ninth homers went to waste as the Giants surged to victory before a roaring night crowd of 44,128 fans.

Unbeaten Howie Pollet appeared to be coasting toward his fifth straight win with a 7-2 lead in the eighth. However, the Giants routed Pollet on Bobby Thomson's double and Johnny Mize's single.

Then they bumped Red Munger for his second loss. Sid Gordon walked after Willard Marshall fanned and successive singles by Pinch Hitter Johnny McCarthy, Buddy Kerr and Jack Lohrke chased Munger. Hits by Bill Rigney and Whitey Lockman took care of Reliefer Gerry Staley and the Giants added a final run off Ken Burkhart on Thomson's single, his second hit of the inning.

Sheldon Jones who pitched only the eighth picked up his fourth victory. Starter Dave Koslo gave way to a pinch-hitter and Ken Trinkle was doing the throwing before Jones took over. Larry Jansen struck out Erv Dusak, Musial and Nippy Jones in the ninth.

Dusak homered in the third with nobody on and Sid Gordon hit a solo homer for New York in the second.

Reds Blast Spahn, Defeat Braves, 8-5

Boston, May 26 (AP).—Rallying behind Hand Sauer's 10th homer of the season, the Cincinnati Reds came from behind to snatch an 8-5 win over the Boston Braves tonight before an 18,839 chill-braving crowd.

While gaining their first win in three starts against the Tribesmen, the last-place Redlegs chased Warren Spahn, the Boston southpaw ace, with a two-run barrage in the sixth to take command.

Spahn gave way for Clyde Shoun, another portsider, after Johnny Wyrostek doubled in Tommy Stallcup and Pinch-Hitter Frank Baumholtz to give the Reds a 5-4 lead.

Sauer opened the next frame with a four-bagger over the center field fence for the deciding run. Then Shoun passed Relief-Pitcher Ken Raffensberger and was clubbed for a two-bagger by Ted Kluszewski before being replaced by Red Barrett.

Turnesa, 3 Other U. S. Stars Win in British Golf

Sandwich, England, May 26 (AP). Defending Champion Willie Turnesa and three other crack United States amateurs advanced to the fourth round of the British Amateur Golf Championship today with twin conquests of strong opposition and English Channel squalls.

They were accompanied into the select band of 32 survivors by Mario Gonzalez, the Brazilian star, who performed wonders with his iron to tie a 34-year-old record with an outgoing 31 strokes.

Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio; Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., and Bob Sweeny, jr., part-time Englishman from New York, all kept their title hopes intact.

The U. S. top-nochers were spread through three of the four quarters of the draw—opening the possibility of the second successive All-American final in the 63-year history of the championship.

Three other Americans, Air Forces Sgt. Charles (Chuck) Jennings, of Medford, N. J.; Chris Dunphy, Westbury, Long Island, and Frank Tatum, jr., Oxford University Rhodes Scholar from Los Angeles, were eliminated.

Turnesa played two matches today, after two days' idleness. He defeated Tatum, 5 and 3, with a morning round flow of pars, despite the 27-year-old student's fighting finish.

In the afternoon the defending champion, playing through recurrent rain and hail storms, dispatched the veteran English star, Cyril Tolley, 5 and 4. Tolley won the amateur title in 1920 and 1929.

Chapman, who lost to Turnesa in last year's thrilling final match, scored a 2 and 1 victory over Joe Carr, British Walker Cup player from Dublin.

Stranahan reached the fourth round by eliminating another British cup star, Gerald Micklem of London, 4 and 3. It was sweet revenge for the Toledo "strong boy," as Micklem bounced him out of the same championship two years ago.

Today's Pairings

Sandwich, England, May 26.—Two rounds are scheduled tomorrow. Fourth round starting times for the American survivors follow:

Gonzalez vs. Lucas, 3:30 a. m. (EST).

Saranahan vs. Taggert 3:45 a. m. (EST).

Chapman vs. McInally, 4:42 a. m. (EST).

Turnesa vs. Loveday, 5:06 a. m. (EST).

Sweeny vs. Roberts, 5:30 a. m. (EST).

Tennis Tourney Continues Today

Rain yesterday washed out most area sports events; the George Washington-University of Virginia baseball game at Charlottesville and the District Interscholastic tennis championships at Landon School.

The tennis tournament will be continued today with top-seeded Gil Bogley of Landon scheduled to meet John Hayes of Friends in a second-round singles match at 4:30 p. m.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS

A's Big 7th Wins Over Chisox, 7-1

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics recorded their fourth straight victory by toppling the Chicago White Sox, 7-1, before 2697 persons today. The victory, highlighted by Joe Coleman's five-hit pitching, was the A's fifth in nine games of their first Western swing.

The A's were held hitless until the fourth by Starter Orval Grove, who retired after the winners blended three singles with his throwing error for a 2-0 lead.

Ferris Fain and Hank Majeski supplied the run-producing blows in this round.

Chicago scored its only run in the same inning. Luke Appling walked with one out, advanced to second on an infield out and scored on Tony Lupien's single—the White Sox' first hit off Coleman.

The A's pushed across five runs in the seventh on only two hits. This meager swatting was sandwiched around three of Chicago's four errors and three walks to wind up the scoring. Howie Judson, Grove's relief, and Frank Papish were the victims of the second placers' final spurt.

Bolanos 'Wuz Robbed,' Asks New Title Shot

Los Angeles, May 26 (AP).—Enrique Bolanos wants a third shot at Lightweight Champion Ike Williams and may ask the California Athletic Commission to help him get it.

Still insisting "we wuz robbed" by last night's split decision which gave Williams the nod over the Mexico City challenger, Manager George Parnassus said he would ask the commission to petition the National Boxing Association to make Williams grant a return fight here before engaging in another title fight.

Referee Charley Randolph called Bolanos the winner of the 15-round bout while two judges, Frankie Van and Johnny Indrisano, voted for the Trenton, N. J., Negro.

Arguments pro and con continued today, but the man who made the match, Babe McCoy of the Olympic Auditorium, put it this way:

"Williams is still the champion and Bolanos is a bigger hero than ever. Instead of getting knocked out, he went the distance in a great fight and I think he's hotter than ever."

The Williams camp remained calmly jubilant. Ike's followers concede Bolanos put up a tougher fight than expected but they entertained no doubts that their man merited the decision.

The crowd of 25,332 paid attendance at Wrigley Field contributed gate receipts of $152,867, a record for outdoor boxing here. Actual division of the purse has not been completed, but Williams was due to get either a $40,000 guarantee or 40 per cent of the receipts, and Bolanos 15 per cent.

Dodgers Lose To Cubs, 4-1

Brooklyn, May 26 (AP).—Johnny Schmitz hurled the Chicago Cubs to a 6-hit victory over Brooklyn tonight, 4-1, with the help of homers by Bill Nicholson and Hal Jeffcoat.

Willard Ramsdell, recalled from Mobile two days ago, was touched for both homers in his seven-inning stint. Nicholson opened the scoring in the fourth and Jeffcoat hit his after Ed Waitkus walked in the seventh.

Gil Hodges broke Schmitz' shutout bid with a fifth-inning homer. That was about all the small night crowd of 22,853 had to cheer.

Harry Taylor, out with an appendectomy since April 29, worked two scoreless relief innings for the Dodgers to celebrate his return.

As the result of the Brooklyn defeat and Cincinnati's night win at Boston, the Dodgers once again dropped into the National League cellar.

Error in 10th Gives Bosox 5-3 Victory

St. Louis, May 26 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5-3, today, with Sam Mele scoring the deciding run when Catcher Less Moss fumbled Dom DiMaggio's attempted sacrifice and threw wild to first base for a double error. The game drew 2897.

Mele's double at the start of the tenth inning was the only extra base blow of the game. DiMaggio scored later in the inning on an outfield fly off the bat of Vern Stephens, who drove in three of the runs.

Nats Hand Bearden 1st Loss; Vernon Has 4 for 4

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Cleveland, May 26—Sid Hudson and Tom Ferrick teamed up to shut Cleveland out with three hits tonight and leave the Indians' 30,612 admirers less admiring by pitching the Nats to a 2-0 victory.

Hudson held the Indians scoreless with one hit until two were out in the eighth. When they filled the bases at that point, Ferrick took over and held 'em hitless and hopeless.

For the Nats it was revenge against Rookie Lefthander Gene Bearden who until tonight was unbeaten in three starts and numbered the Nats amnog his victims.

Mickey Vernon swatted out four of the eight Nats' hits and two of his blows figured in both Washington runs.

The Nats scraped up a run for Hudson in the second inning and got a gift run in the seventh, and with no more to work with Hudson was unreeling a magnificent pitching job until the Indians' eighth.

Eddie Yost made a fancy barehanded pick up of Berardino's grounder for the first out in the eighth, and it proved a vital play in the light of later events. After Pinch Hitter Peck flied out, the Indians got obstreperous.

Boudreau Helps Out

Pinch Hitter Hank Edwards and Thurman Tucker rapped Hudson for quick singles to center and when he walked Larry Doby to fill the bases, he was in distress. With Lou Boudreau up, Ferrick shuffled in from the bullpen to take over. He pitched two quick strikes to Boudreau and on his third pitch Boudreau grounded to Yost, who stepped on third for the third out.

The Indians couldn't get to first base against Ferrick in the ninth.

The Nats' first run was nothing to brag about. Tom McBride launched it in the second inning with a double to left and raced to third when Vernon beat out a hit to Robinson. McBride scored while Carden Gillenwater was grounding into a double play.

It rocked along at 1-0 until the seventh, with Hudson's long right arm uncoiling grief for the Indians in the form of sinker balls and side-arm curves. The only hit he permitted to that point was Tucker's two-out double to left in the third inning, and when he walked the lead-off men in the fourth and fifth the Nats snuffed 'em out on double plays.

Vernon Ignores Coach

In fact, until the seventh, the Indians weren't even outhitting Hudson. He singled in the third to match their one hit.

Bearden had two out in the seventh when the Nats suddenly came up with their second run. Vernon singled to left for his third straight hit and was in the act of trying to steal second when Gillenwater lashed a ground ball through the legs of Substitute Third Baseman Allie Clark. It was an error for Clark and Vernon scored all the way from first base, grandly ignoring the coach's signal that tried to flag him down at third.

IN SHORT: Walter Masterson, 1-0 winner over the Tigers in his last start, will face the A's tonight at Griffith Stadium in the game recently programmed to fill an open date . . . He will probably draw Phil Marchildon, Connie Mack's ace, as his opponent . . . The game will mark the Griffith Stadium debut of the Nats' two newly acquired outfielders, Carden Gillenwater and Ed Stewart . . . The Indians ran out of infielders last night with Ken Keltner suffering a sore forearm, victim of a thrown ball, and drafted Outfielder Allie Clark as their third baseman . . . Sid Hudson struck out Larry Doby in the latter's first time at bat last night, a partial revenge for the near-record homer Doby hit in Griffith Stadium three weeks ago when they last met . . . Cleveland Owner Bill Veeck who spends $1000 on fireworks as an added attraction at each night game has varied the program this year, the fireworks go off after the game, not before it.

Greenbelt, Capitol Maids Play Tonight

The Capitol Maids and Greenbelt girls softball teams tonight open a tripleheader at the latter's diamond at 7:45 p. m. In following games I.B.M. and Annandale teams face Mount Rainier in that order.

Baltimore Returns Sinkwich To Yanks of All-America Loop

Baltimore, May 26 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Professional Football Conference have returned Fullback Frank Sinkwich's contract to the New York Yankees.

Robert C. Embry, president of the new Colt management, explained today that when it took over the reins, the league gave it the right to accept or reject any contracts made by Bob Rodenberg, former president.

Rodenberg bought Sinkwich's contract from the Yankees last season. The former All-America collegiate back has been troubled by a recurring knee injury for several seasons.

Embry said the Colts would have to pay a $15,000 salary to Sinkwich next season plus a $2500 to the Yankees if the Colts accept his contract.

The Colt president said the club could not take a $17,500 gamble "on an unknown quantity such as Sinkwich has become."

Meanwhile, the Colts announced the signing of Dick Working, the Nation's fourth-ranking passer when he played with Washington and Lee last year.

Winner Loses

Wilmington, N. C., May 26 (U.P.). Death today ended the weekend which began in triumph for 19-year-old Bill Uren, jr., star pitcher of the Gastonia, N. C., High School baseball team.

The young athlete died today — the day his class day exercises were scheduled — of injuries received in a three-story fall from a hotel balcony at Carolina Beach.

He received the trip as a reward for pitching his team to the State championship in an 18-0 victory over Wilson Friday night.

Hellings New Favorite

Indianapolis, May 26 (AP).—Mack Hellings of Burbank, Calif., moved in today among the favorites for the 500-mile auto race May 31.

Hellings, making his first start at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, qualified a new four-cylinder car owned by Don Lee, Inc., Los Angeles, at 127.468 miles an hour. Only five of the previous twenty-three qualifiers made better times in the 10-mile trials.

Joe E. Is Appointed

Sacramento, Calif., May 26 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren today appointed Joe E. Brown, motion picture star, to the State Athletic Commission. The wide-mouthed comedian's term will end January 1, 1951. It is an unsalaried job.

Let 'Em Wander Breezes Home by 5 Lengths at Charles Town

Picks Up $4,875

Stymie Wins In a Romp; 33d in 120

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—Stymie went postward for the 120th time today and had one of his easiest assignments since picking up the Saratoga Cup in a walkover.

With R. N. Ryan's South American hero of the Santa Anita Handicap—Talon—an enforced absentee due to a minor leg ailment, only two lesser lights faced Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' world money winning champion in the Ballot Handicap, a $7500 overnight test of a mile and a furlong.

Stymie took the first money of $4875—small change for him—by an easy two lengths. La Pomme Stud Farm's Vertigo 2d topped Bayard Sharp's outsider, Tide Rips, by a length and a half for the place.

Track Sloppy

Despite a threat of more rain, 22,380 fans saw the sport.

Talon, which had been equally weighted with Stymie at 122 pounds, developed a filled tendon in his right foreleg. Trainer Horatio Luro and the examining veterinarian agreed it would be unwise to take a chance running the Argentine star, which hadn't started since his big triumph in California last February. The vet said he doubts that the injury is serious or permanent.

Points for Suburban

So this was just "workout day" for Stymie, pointing for Monday's $50,000 added, mile and a quarter Suburban Handicap. Talon's hopes for running in that classic naturally took a big tumble.

Stymie paid only $2.70 to $2.

In scoring his 33d triumph, Stymie, claimed for $1500 as a juvenile, ran his usual race. McCreary allowed him to gallop along last, more than a dozen lengths out of it early while Tide Rips stole a long lead over Vertigo 2d.

LaVega Runs 2d Before 7000 Fans

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 26. Let 'Em Wander, a filly who set the early pace against Vulcan's Forge and other topflight 3-year-olds at Pimlico, let 'em have a sample of her speed today.

The fleet miss, owned by E. L. Miller of Hagerstown, Md., went to the front early and stayed there, going into the finish line five lengths ahead of the closest opposition.

A crowd of 7000, which caused a shortage of programs, saw Let 'Em Wander perform in the Purcellville Club Purse and installed her the favorite at a $5 mutuel. She raced over a slow track, under threatening skies and turned in time of 1:26 2/5.

Two Straight for Her

Freddy Kratz, a jockey who rides winners despite a rather unorthodox style, booted Let 'Em Wander home ahead of Allen M. Hirsh's La Vega with H. W. Shaffer's Asaider third in the field of eight.

Let 'Em Wander made it two wins in as many tries since arriving here. As a 2-year-old she accounted for four victories in eight starts last year.

The race was a parade as far as position was concerned. Let 'Em Wander, La Vega and Asaider held the three money places after the early stages of the 7-furlong test.

Best Saddle Effort

The day's best saddle effort came in the second race when Apprentice Charlie Richmond won with C. L. Creswell's Marie La Cress. The filly attempted to wheel leaving the gate and Richmond applied his whip to her head to straighten her. The youngster then sent her around the outside and into the lead, much to the delight of those who collected a $14.40 straight and a $116 daily double mutuel. There were 111 tickets sold on the winning "double" combination of "7 and 8."

SUNSET BOY, $21.60, $6.60, $3.80; INVESTIGATE, $3.20, $3.80; GREENOCK FLAME, $5.20.

SUNSET BOY, steadied when unable to get to leaders, went through on inside and assumed command to hold on gamely. INVESTIGATE was well placed throughout, but could not stay after taking brief lead. GREENOCK FLAME showed fair effort. ARMY NURSE could not threaten seriously after being off poorly.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Off at 2:32. Owner, C. L. Creswell. Trained by C. Reynolds. Time, 1:20⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight

MARIE LA CRESS, $14.40, $7.00, $3.40; BIG SNEEZE, $3.80, $2.60; OFF SHORE, $3.00.

MARIE LA CRESS attempted to bear out early, circled horses at first turn to take command and held sway thereafter under good handling. BIG SNEEZE lacked early speed and closed gamely. OFF SHORE had early speed, but weakened in closing stages. SMART LAD was close up early, but flattened out under pressure.

DAILY DOUBLE, SUNSET BOY AND MARIE LA CRESS, PAID $116.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Off at 3:02. Owner, M. Henry. Trained by P. Henry. Time, 1:53⅕.

NICKOH'S PAL, $9.40, $5.40, $4.60; DOMINICA, $4.60, $4.00; ARUBA, $9.60.

NICKOH'S PAL saved ground, got through on rail to get to front and held sway thereafter, winning easily. DOMINICA was strongly handled throughout and had no excuses. ARUBA set early pace and tired. HEATHER MARK was well placed early while on outside and faltered.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Off at 3:31. Owner, O. L. Nyberg. Trained by R. L. Manns. Time, 1:32⅘.

U. S. Charges Boxer Jeffra With Draft 'Dodge' as Trial Opens

Caine, D. C. Boy, Named Co-captain at Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., May 26 (AP).—Pitcher Neal Wade and Outfielder Robert Caine today were elected cocaptains of next year's University of Virginia baseball team.

Caine of Washington, D. C., was among the Cavaliers' top hitters this season, batting .346. He is a Purple Heart Marine veteran, being twice decorated for heroic combat performances during the war.

'Essential' Deferment Called Phony

Baltimore, May 26 (AP).—The Government charged today that Harry Jeffra, onetime world's bantamweight and featherweight boxing champ, fought bouts all over the country during the war when he was supposed to be employed in an essential war job.

Selective Service officials presented draft records to the jury showing that Jeffra was put in "Class 3" at the start of Selective Service bceause he had dependents. In 1944, the records showed, he was put in "Class 2B" because he was in an essential war job.

Bernard J. Flynn, United States district attorney, told the jury this classification was based on a false affidavit that Jeffra was a full-time employe of the American Ship Cleaning Co., a firm which serviced vital cargo ships during the war.

The affidavit was made by Phillips, Flynn charged. Phillips is an official of American Ship Cleaning.

Earnings $35 Weekly

Flynn contended Jeffra could not have been a full-time worker on the essential job when he was fighting all over the country and that Phillips knew it when he filed the affidavit.

Two Already Sentenced

His draft board knew about all this, or should have known, because one of its members was also a member of the State Boxing Commission and usually visited Jeffra in the dressing room after his Baltimore fights.

John Cataneo, head of the company, and Vincent Drecchio, a foreman, already are under sentence along with Benjamin Magliano for a draft violation involving the latter. He is known among fighters as Benny Trotta, a match maker.

Ralph Ruthstrom, Ex-Redskin, Shuffles Off to Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., May 26.—The Buffalo Bills of the All-America Football Conference signed a new fullback today, thus starting a new chapter in a hectic grid career.

Buffalo's new plunger is Ralph Ruthstorm, 220-pound former player for Sam Houston Teachers College, Southern Methodist University, the Cleveland and Los Angles Rams, and the Washington Redskins.

Ruthstrom signed with the Bills as a free agent. His last club, the Redskins gave him his release at the end of the '47 season after he'd played briefly in only one of Washington's National Football League games.

Obtained from the L. A. Rams in a trade involving Halfback Tom Farmer and Halfback Steve Bagarus, Ruthstrom reported to the Redskins at their West Coast training camp.

Before the team returned to Washington he was fined $500 for leaving the club a few days as the result of an argument over whether he should or should not wear a necktie in the lobby of a Chicago hotel.

The Redskins' NFL schedule had hardly started when the big gridman failed to report for practice one morning. Several days later he announced from his Houston, Tex., home that he'd left the club to visit his ailing mother.

Suspended by the Redskins, Ruthstrom promptly brought suit against the club for the remainder of his 1947 salary. The suit is still pending.

U. S. Netters Win in France

Paris, May 26 (AP).—Three All-American, teams reached the women's doubles semifinals today in the French international tennis championships.

Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles advanced at the expense of two other Americans, Gloria Butler and Argyl Rice, both of New York, 6—4, 6—1.

Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., eliminated the French team of Simone Pantetier and Mrs. Jacqueline Patorni, 6—2, 6—4.

Barbara Scofield of San Francisco and Mrs. Helen Rihbany of Boston defeated Mrs. Paulette Fritz of France and Mrs. Sandonnino Migliori of Italy, 6—2, 6—0.

In men's doubles, meanwhile, Frank Patty and Budge Patty of Los Angeles needed four sets to eliminate the Yugoslav pair of Dragutin Mitic and Josef Palada, 6—2, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

In the mixed doubles quarterfinals, Patty teamed with Mrs. Nelly Landy of France to defeat Mrs. Prentiss and Mitic, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Fry, playing with Belgium's Philippe Washer, downed Miss Butler and Franjo Kukuljevic of Yugoslavia, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1.

Mrs. Todd and Drobny turned back Mrs. Marta Peterdy and Coloman Feher of Hungary, 6—2, 6—0, while Miss Hart and Sedgman eliminated Mrs. Kormoczy and Anton Stolpa of Hungary, 6—4, 7—5.

Tigers Beat Yanks, 7 to 3

Detroit, May 26 (AP). — The Detroit Tigers capitalized on the wildness of New York Yankee pitchers to beat the world champions, 7 to 3, here today before a crowd of 18,915 fans.

The leaders outhit Detroit, 12 to 8, but Paul (Dizzy) Trout bore down in the clutches to register his fourth win of the season as against an equal number of defeats. Yankee starting pitcher Frank Shea was the loser.

Shea and Relief Hurlers Joe Page and Tommy Byrnes gave up 10 walks and four of the Tigers who got on via walks scored. Karl Drews, the fourth Yankee pitcher, did not pass a man in his 1-1/3 innings workout.

Shortstop Bobby Brown of the Yanks led the hitting parade with two doubles and two singles, while Catcher Yogi Berra hit his fourth homer of the season.

PGA Rejects Idea of Czar For Tourneys

St. Louis, May 26 (AP).—The Professional Golfers Association executive committee has definitely rejected the idea of a czar for tournament golf.

At the same time the committeemen sanctioned participation of Tournament Chairman George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, in tournaments at his discretion.

The decision, made at an all-day session Monday, results of which were announced today, came after informal protests by a number of players over Schneiter's playing in tournaments and making official rulings at the same time.

The executive committee decided that when Schneiter plays, questions about the rules of golf will be decided by a committee appointed for that purpose. Schneiter will perform the tournament chairman's usual duties, including the application and enforcement of P. G. A. tournament regulations.

The committee made two additional tournament regulations.

One requires that an amateur who wants to become a tournament playing professional must apply to the PGA and wait six months before competing for prize monies in PGA cosponsored tournaments.

Another provides that pro-amateur events, invitational events with fewer than 30 invited players, tournaments outside the continental United States, and sectional or local events for less than the minimum required purses will not be considered in computing scoring averages for the Vardon Trophy, Ryder Cup points, or prize money listings.

The committee decided to hold the 1948 annual meeting at Dunedin, Fla., December 1-3, instead of Chicago where all previous association meetings have been held.

Three bids for the 1949 championship and two for the 1950 event have been received and next year's site probably will be chosen within a few weeks.

Indications were that the 1949 Ryder Cup matches, scheduled to be held in England, will be played there in October.

Ailing Stars Plague Failing Bums—Reiser, Edwards Out

Brooklyn, May 26 (AP).—Two ailing established stars of the Brooklyn Dodgers — Pistol Pete Reiser and Catcher Bruce Edwards—were lost to the defending National League champions indefinitely, it was announced tonight, because their season-long ailments have failed to clear up.

Reiser flew today to St. Louis for another visit with Dr. Robert F. Hyland. His left ankle has caused severe pain because of excess calcification, after having been fractured late in 1946. Pete will not rejoin the Dodgers until they go to St. Louis a week from today to start a second Western trip.

Edwards, with an ailing throwing arm, leaves the Dodgers tomorrow for Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. He will be examined once more by Dr. George Bennett and is scheduled to return Saturday to the Dodgers in Boston.

Feller Father of Year

New York, May 26 (AP).—Bob Feller, Cleveland's great pitcher has been named sports father of the year, the national Father's Day Committee announced today. Babe Ruth received the award last year. The 29-year-old hurler has two children.

D. C. Bankers List Speakers For Convention

By S. Oliver Goodman

Speakers for the annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association next week were announced yesterday by President Richard A. Norris. The meeting will be at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., from June 2 to 6.

On the first day's program, principal address will be by Norris. Another speaker will be George B. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank of New York.

Headlining the June 4 meeting will be a talk by J. Burke Knapp, State Department director of Office of Financial and Development Policy. Second speaker will be Kenton R. Cravens, vice president of Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. of St. Louis.

On June 5 the speaker will be Ray Henle, a news editor of National Broadcasting Co.

More than 200 bankers, their wives and guests will attend the 30th annual session. Highlighting the June 5 meeting will be the annual election of officers. Robert H. Lacey of the National Metropolitan Bank is expected to be the next president.

AAR CHANGE: Warren C. Kendall has been given leave of absence as chairman of the Car Service Division of the Association of American Railroads and will be suceeded in that post by Arthur

Kendall

Gass

H. Gass. The latter, who will assume his new post on June 1, formerly was director of the railway transportation department of the Office of Defense Transportation. Kendall, who has been in ill health for several months, will take another executive AAR post when he recovers. He has been in railroad service for more than 50 years. During World War II he was in general charge of distribution of the Nation's rail freight car supply, just as he was in World War I. Both Kendall and Gass live in Washington.

TIME SAVER: Flying time from Washington to New York City will be cut to 66 minutes when American Airlines starts service next Tuesday with its new 300-mile-per-hour Convairs. The new flagships eventually will replace the DC-3s, which now fly to New York in 90 minutes.

ODD LOTS: Chicago Board of Trade has reduced minimum initial margin requirements on grain futures trade to 55 cents a bushel on wheat, 50 cents on corn, 18 cents on oats, and 80 cents on soybeans . . . More than 1200 steel officials are attending the fifty-sixth annual meeting of American Iron and Steel Institute in New York . . . D. C. Institute of Certified Public Accountants will elect new board members tonight at Mayflower . . . Theodore P. Noun, formerly of State Department's international information division, has opened public relations office here . . . Samuel H. Newbill has been appointed Eastern Air Lines' director of research . . . Dollar sales of chain food stores in March were estimated at 797 million dollars, a gain of 11.8 per cent over same 1947 month.

NEW BUILDING: Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association yesterday completed its first day's business in the new building at 730 11th st. nw. President Clarence E. Kefauver reported the first savings share account in the new quarters was opened by William Jacobs, an employe of the neighboring Washington Gas Light Co. Jacobs planked down 150 silver dollars, which he said he had been saving since work on Columbia's new quarters started last year. First loan account was opened by Edmund D. Evans of Capital View Realty Co.

FORD PREVIEW: First public showing of the new 1949 Ford will be in New York City from June 10 to 18. Washington dealer display is scheduled to start June 18, in addition to a cooperative community showing. Ford's dealers in this region received a preview peek at the new models this week at Atlantic City. It's all very hush, hush and public curiosity is being whetted. The new models are said to represent as radical a change as from the Model T to Model A.

Gas Pipe Line Planned for Nearby Virginia

Plans for a new natural gas pipe line to serve rapidly growing areas of nearby Virginia were announced last night by the Washington Gas Light Co.

First step will be the filing today of a charter with the Virginia State Corporation Commission.

The new company, to be known as Potomac Gas Co., will be a subsidiary of the Washington firm. A 16-inch pipe line will be built to extend from a point of connection with the 20-inch pipe line of Virginia Gas Transmission Corp. to a point near Bailey's Cross Roads, in Fairfax County, with an extension to Lee blvd. and Fillmore st. in Arlington County.

Emphasizing the expansion in gas sales, President Marcy L. Sperry of Washington Gas Light Co. said:

"The new pipe line will deliver the additional gas to the western side of the distribution system in Virginia, and thus provide increased facilities for supplying gas to this rapidly growing area. This new pipe line also will have sufficient capacity to deliver gas to Washington through present existing facilities."

New Pipe Line Hit By Rail, Coal Men

By The Associated Press

Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Co.'s proposed 1800-mile line from the Southwest to the East was described by railroad and coal interests yesterday as a "bonanza for promoters."

In a brief filed with the Federal Power Commission, Tom J. McGrath, attorney for railroad, coal and employe groups, said "insiders" in Transcontinental would make promotion profits of between 38 and 40 million dollars if the project is completed.

Turpentine Sinks Another 5 Cents

Savannah, Ga., May 26 (AP).—The price of turpentine dropped another 5 cents a gallon today. This brought the total drop since May 1 to 15 cents a gallon. Today's price was 46 cents.

Thousands of gallons have gone into Government loan at 64.5 cents a gallon as a result of the price decline. Some producers say a looming shortage of storage space for Government loan spirits is one of the factors responsible for the decline.

Other factors are reports that the Commodity Credit Corporation will reduce the loan value of turpentine July 1 and that producers may make a revolutionary proposal on loan values next week.

Business Outlook

Loss of Wage Caste Prods Robertson in Rail Dispute

By J. A. Livingston

THE ODDS are against your judging David B. Robertson for what he is. His neat pin-stripe gray suit, his oval gold cuff links which protrude just the right distance beyond his sleeve line, and an air of quiet confidence suggest a bank president, a top-ranking industrialist, or a railway executive, rather than a man who worked up from overalls to the presidency of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Livingston

As you talk to him, you realize why he is head of one of the powerful railroad brotherhoods. His direct, honest manner inspires trust. You feel sure he's not given to caprice, or to going off half-cocked. And so you wonder: What made him threaten a strike against the railroads? What made him carry it so far that his union along with the engineers and switchmen are now under Federal injunction not to strike?

Appearances are against Robertson. A board of arbitration granted the 17 nonoperating brotherhoods a wage boost of 15½ cents an hour. Then the trainmen and the conductors accepted that pattern. But Robertson, Alvanley Johnston of the Locomotive Engineers, and A. J. Glover of the Switchmen said no. They wanted more rules changes than a Presidential Emergency Board saw fit to grant. That looks greedy.

Robertson will point out—and correctly—that the engineers and the firemen, by and large, get higher wages than the brakemen, porters and shopmen. So when they're given the same amount of money—15½ cents—they're losing out in economic standing. They're not getting as much percentage-wise.

THAT CREATES trouble for Robertson. Back in 1929, the engineers and firemen were the economic royalists in the labor movement. The railroads were making good profits and the well-knit brotherhoods could bargain for high wages. But during the '30's, the railroads lost money, and they still have to regain the earning power of the '20's. So, for Robertson, as for other railway union leaders, the wage pot isn't as big as they'd like it. Since 1939, hourly earnings in all manufacturing industries rose 103 per cent. In railroading, they advanced only 80 per cent. And the hourly income of the men represented by Robertson and Johnston has gone up only 67 per cent, assuming that they take the 15½-cent settlement. That's less than the 70 per cent rise in the cost of living. Thus engineers and firemen have lost financial caste relative to workers in other industries.

Naturally, the rank-and file complains—especially those who work in the yards and terminals and don't benefit from over-the-road premium mileage rates. A particular grievance right now is that they don't get paid overtime for Sundays. So when the Emergency Board suggested time and a half for the seventh consecutive work day (not necessarily Sunday) the brotherhoods turned it down.

All this helps explain why Robertson is dissatisfied with the Emergency Board report. But it doesn't quite explain why he has gone to all the lengths he has to flout the report. He could have accepted the findings and turned around immediately and reopened wage negotiations. But he's Scotch. He says it would cost the union $100,000 to do that, and he doesn't see any reason for doing later what ought to be done now.

INSTEAD, his union has incurred the legal expenses of fighting the injunction. And the Railway Labor Executives Association, of which he is a past president, went so far as to call for nationalization of the railroads. Undoubtedly this action was designed to "scare" the railroads into "giving."

Robertson argues that a strike is sometimes necessary to focus public attention on a grievance and that the Railway Labor Act, which he helped draft, does not bar strikes. Yet, in 1926, at congressional hearings on the bill, Donald Richberg, then attorney for the brotherhoods, and the late William N. Doak, then vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and later Secretary of Labor, both said the legislation imposed a "moral obligation" on both labor and management to see that it works.

Robertson saw that moral obligation two years ago, when A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen, and Johnston struck. At the time, he declared if Congress passes anti-labor legislation as the result, it should be called the "Whitney-Johnston Act." But now he doesn't see himself as others see him and as he saw Whitney and Johnston in '46.

N. Y. Central Vote Rejects Bowman, Young as Directors

Albany, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—Without their consent, Robert R. Young and Robert J. Bowman, chairman of the board anf president, respectively, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co., were nominated today for election as directors of the New York Central Railroad and were soundly defeated.

Young and Bowman were nominated from the floor by Chester J. Bollenbach of New York City, who claimed to represent a minority stockholder.

The Interstate Commerce Commission refused on May 14 to permit Young and Bowman to sit also on the board of the Central. It also refused to allow the two to enjoy full voting rights of 400,000 shares of Central stock owned by the C. & O. and held in trust.

Part of Young's effort before the ICC was to have the stock released so that it might be voted.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—Grains started weak but wound up on a brisk rally today. Final gains ranged to more than 3 cents in new crop corn futures, in which much short covering appeared. Trading was not active despite the advance.

Buying first came into wheat. It was based on trade advices that the Government was seeking flour for for export, with acceptances to be made known tomorrow. The upturn soon spread to other grains, although there was nothing out of the ordinary in the news influencing corn and oats.

Another factor which may have caused some short covering, traders said, was announcement of lower margins for initial transactions in speculative accounts.

Wheat closed ⅞@1¼ higher, July, 2.34¼@2.35; corn was 2 to 3½ higher, July, 2.15¼@2.15; oats were ⅞ to 2 cents higher, July 92½, and soybeans were 5½ to 6½ cents higher, July 4.01½.

Bank Loans Decline 47 Million in Week

Business loans by Federal Reserve banks in the Nation's leading cities declined during the week ended May 19 after two straight week of increase, the Federal Reserve Board reported today.

Commercial, industrial and agricultural loans dropped 47 million dollars for the week, leaving the total outstanding $14,208,000,000. There was a decrease of 23 million dollars in New York City alone, the board said.

In contrast, real estate loans rose another 15 million dollars for the week to another new high total of $3,732,000,000.

Man Who Has Opened Letters Of 9 Presidents Is Retiring

The Washington Post

I. R. T. SMITH MRS. EMMA SMITH

Couple retiring after long Government service

Dear Mr. President,

I have high blood pressure, it's around 200 all the time, and my husband he has low blood pressure and diabetes. Also the attic leaks. What shall we do?

Please write soon, HEPZIBAH JONES

Another typical problem for Ira R. T. Smith. He's been opening and delivering the mail of Presidents, nine of them, for 51 years.

Soon Smith, 72, will have time to write some letters of his own. He retires Friday. So does his charming wife, Emma, 62, Veterans Administration recruitment specialist, after 30 years with the Government.

When he drives off in his car with Mrs. Smith Friday, heading out to their new redwood ranch house in Santa Barbara, Calif., he will take with him best wishes from the White House staff, from the President on down. And historic memories.

Most informal President he knew, Smith recalls, was probably Coolidge: "If he got into the office before I did, I'd come in and find him, his feet propped on the desk, busily poking through the day's mail."

"Then he'd sit around with me for a while," Smith says, "and we'd chat about the state of the Nation."

"Teddy (Roosevelt) was all over the place at once. If he wanted anything he'd come direct, but his visits weren't so often."

Taft was very aloof and so was Wilson, who "only did things, it seemed, as an afterthought."

"Wilson would pass by the desk, then apparently thinking he wasn't being cordial enough, would come back to say good morning."

As for Hoover, Smith found "you couldn't communicate with him directly, not the way you could with FDR."

Smith was appointed White House receptionist, then mail chief, by McKinley, a family friend, in 1897, when letters to the President averaged 100 a day. Through the Hoover Administration, when 800 letters a day poured in, Smith remained a one-man department.

"But the avalanche started during FDR's term," Smith says. "I got 50 clerks to help and even then we were 450,000 letters behind one week."

Today the staff of 21 handles some 3000 pieces of mail a day. Every bundle of letters, every package is fluoroscoped, sometimes X-rayed, analyzed, sorted and delivered. Anything suspicious is handled by the Secret Service.

But until World War II Smith handled the precautionary duties himself. He would listen for ticking, dunk the suspicious package in oil at the end of a pole. "I did it for years," he reports, "and never lost a President."

"Why, my wife, of course," he replied with a broad smile.

Smith looks forward to hunting and fishing and possibly assisting his son-in-law in the real estate business. Mrs. Smith anticipates spending more time with her hobbies of singing and playing the piano.

Government Seeks Sugar Price Support

By The Associated Press

The Government moved yesterday to bolster sagging prices of raw sugar and wholesale prices of refined sugar.

In effect, the Agriculture Department acted to reduce future supplies. Officials said an increase in prices naturally could be expected.

What the department did was to cut 500,000 short tons off the total quantity of sugar which may be sold in this country in 1948 under a quota system set up under a sugar-control law.

The department said that in carrying out provisions of the Sugar Act, it could not permit prices to fall to "depression levels" while prices of things farmers buy remain high.

Officials said the reduction in quotas should not affect retail prices materially, if at all, but should narrow the spread between raw and wholesale prices on the one hand and retail prices on the other.

Raw and wholesale prices have been declining for several weeks. Producers have made complaints to the Government. Sugar is one of the few foods now available in surplus quantities.

The department set a new marketing quota for the year of seven-million short tone, raw value, compared with 7,500,000 previously established.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

Mary Haworth's Mail

High School Teacher Is Concerned to Help Student Who Seems Woefully Unhappy About His Poor Marks, But Doesn't Apply Himself

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a high school teacher seeking help for a student. He does poor work and in some subjects doesn't study at all, apparently.

If called upon to speak in class, he becomes tense, shrugs his shoulders and seems utterly miserable; yet he is by no means a disciplinary problem.

His classmates who have come up through the grades with him insist that he is bright, but his IQ records over a period of years indicate "dull to low normal" intelligence.

Is He Brighter Than Work Shows?

OF COURSE, it is possible that these IQ tests do not represent his best efforts; but on the other hand, his comprehension of paragraph and word meanings is inferior.

However, what troubles me is that he seems so extremely unhappy. If asked about his failure in a subject, he stiffens up, looks woefully wretched and replies that he is just lazy and doesn't work. His parents are rather strict disciplinarians.

It is likely that his schooling will terminate with this (his sophomore) year, so I shall never be able to help him much through personal contact; but if you could recommend a helpful book, I should be glad to give it to him. He may need other help, but it is quite unlikely that he will ever get it. A. R.

Boy Is Pitifully On the Defensive

DEAR A. R.: I'm not sure that it would be very bright of us to foist introspective-type reading matter on a lad who hasn't a good grasp of the meaning of words and paragraphs.

This boy might cherish any book carefully chosen for him by you, in heart-warmed appreciation of the special interest it signified, but I doubt that the contents per se would be of help in tiding him through the Slough of Despond that you describe.

He appears to be a pitifully defensive character, the sensitive victim of chronic anxious mortification—oft called "guilt feelings"—instilled by a cruelly thwarting, unsympathetic type of rearing; and to remedy this, he needs positive evidence, steadfastly given, that somebody of importance in his scheme of things—you, for instance—wants to be, and in fact is, his friend, just on the basis of sheer liking.

As you say, it is possible that his IQ tests don't represent his best efforts; or more precisely, his real potentials. If he were intrinsically dull, it seems likely he would be emotionally apathetic, too, as dullards are; not acutely wretched about his scholastic ineptitude.

Chronic Anxiety Clouds Intellect

MOREOVER, intelligent discerning adults with a working knowledge of children have seen instances, time and again, where bright minds failed miserably in studies when hearts were burdened with incommunicable woe about family difficulties.

The teacher's best offering in that situation is a kindly attitude of interest in the child as a person, a quiet vote of confidence in his basic excellence,—not questioning or nudging on the score of book learning. Such encouragement, democratically given, can mark a turning point for the better in the child's whole history; and it is my recommendation to you, as regards this boy.

Though you say you shan't be in a position to help him much through personal contact after this year, if he quits school, I believe you might think better of that. It seems obvious that you have a strong sentimental feeling for him, to which he is reacting bashfully, so why shouldn't you proceed with poise to negotiate a firm enduring friendship that always will be his to count on. M. H.

What to Wear For June Wedding

Is it ever permissible for the bridegroom and his attendants to wear tuxedos or white coats with tuxedo trousers at a formal wedding? And do the bride's mother and the groom's mother ever attend a formal wedding without a hat or something on their heads? This is to be a June wedding. R. S. D. J.

A tuxedo is appropriate for the men in the bridal party at an evening wedding of the formal or semi-formal type nowadays. Either the regular tuxedo can be worn or, in the summer, the tuxedo trousers with a single- or double-breasted white evening jacket. If the wedding is an afternoon affair, white or tan Palm Beach suits, dark coats and white trousers or vice versa are suitable.

If the bride's and bridegroom's mothers are in floor-length dresses, they would not wear hats unless required to do so by church regulations. If they wear street-length dresses, hats would be worn.

How should I press a Palm Beach cloth suit so that it will not get shiny in the seams and folds? And how can I remove shine already there, alas, on a black suit? J. L. K.

It pays to buy a special, heavy pressing cloth for use on thick suits. Dampen the cloth evenly for pressing. To avoid shine, lift the pressing cloth before it is dry from the ironing. Use a clothes brush with a sweeping, beating motion to raise the nap of the fabric afterward. Use great care with pockets and all double thicknesses. Keep iron pressure light, lift cloth before dry, and beat vigorously with brush.

Vinegar will sometimes remove shine. Test first to be sure it won't affect color. Sponge it on with a rough-textured cloth. Let suit air thoroughly afterward to get rid of vinegar odor. Another way of removing shine from woolens is with an abrasive such as fine steel wool.

HAWAIIAN lotus blossoms inspired the print of this satin lastex suit designed by Mrs. Wallace Barnes, known professionally as Mabs of Hollywood. Available in one or two piece styles it comes in white with either red or blue floral motif. Suits by Mabs are carried at Julius Garfinckel & Co. and Kaplowitz Bros.

This designer also features spectacular suits made of gold metallic cloth that does not tarnish and loves the water. Most noted in this bracket is the Gold Nugget design

Prettily Suited for Swimming or Sunning

A DAINTY, feminine costume made of sturdy checked gingham in brown, red or green, is this one designed by Petti. The yoked "little girl" skirt with matching elasticized lined panties is edged with frosted lace to match the foaming turf. The fully lined bra has elastic hidden in its shirred ruffle trim and the straps are detachable for sun bathing. Available at Woodward & Lothrop

FRED COLE, the California designer who specializes in effective, practical beach wear, created this sleek suit which is made of fine woven, fast drying nylon. Called totem pole print, it comes in mauve, black and emerald green backgrounds. Cut with front skirt and built-in bra that permits it to be worn with or without straps. Available at The Hecht Co. Mr. Cole matches many of his suits with beach skirts, wide and swirling with elasticized bands at top. Worn over your suit it makes a perfect costume for strolling on the boardwalk or luncheon at an outdoor cafe. Mother and daughter swim suits are another notable feature of the Cole collection. These are usually of cotton and come in one or two-piece styles

New Bathing Suits Are Streamlined or Ruffled

WITH vacation time just around the corner, shoppers will soon be on the hunt for becoming swim suits. There is such a variety of fabrics, colors and designs in this season's collection of bathing togs that it will be difficult to make a choice.

To avoid making an unwise purchase take stock of your figure before going shopping. A pretty checked gingham, with "cover-up" ruffles may be your best bet. On the other hand, if you're the streamlined type, then the two-piece satin lastex is your dish.

CONSIDER, also, where you will wear the suit, whether for sun bathing or swimming. The construction needs are quite different and if you intend to battle the surf you had best get a strong suit — with straps.

If you cannot afford two suits, settle for one that will dry in a hurry, preferably made of a nylon fabric. There's nothing so uncomfortable as climbing into a damp suit for the second dip of the day.

MRS. HARRY SCOTT and her Siamese cats who will go with her when she leaves for San Francisco. Mr. Scott, Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Embassy, has been appointed Consul General in the California city, after seven years with the Embassy here. A number of parties are planned to send the Scotts happily on their way

On the Party Calendar

ONE of Australia's foremost pianists, Miss Eunice Gardiner, was presented in concert last evening at the Australian Embassy. Ambassador Norman Makin invited some 40 of Washington's music lovers to the recital, which was held at 9 o'clock and followed by a buffet supper.

Miss Gardiner made her first public appearance at the age of 3 in Sydney, and at the age of 16 she won a schlorship to the Royal Academy of Music. She made her debut two years later at Wigmore Hall in London and was an immediate success. In 1938 she played before Queen Elizabeth, who paid her a high compliment for her brilliance.

Miss Carolyn Nash Entertains at Tea

Taking their turn at the tea table were Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister; Mrs. Duncan Cameron, Mrs. George Mesta and Mrs. Hiram Bingham.

Indian Embassy Party Honors Minister Designate

THE Minister Designate of India to Brazil, Dr. M. R. Masani, and Mme. Masani were honored at a cocktail party yesterday by the Indian Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Nehru. Originally planned as a garden fete, the party was held indoors in the spacious drawing room of the embassy.

Over 200 guests attended, including top diplomats of the Latin-American countries and State Department officials from the south Asian division. The Minister and Mme. Masani will leave Washington the end of this week, going directly to Brazil.

Among the guests yesterday were the Charge d'Affaires of the Argentine and Senora de Drago, the Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Nieto del Rio, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Ferreyros and Mrs. Loy Henderson.

Mrs. Marshall Gives Shower for Miss Dyer

MRS. WILLIAM J. MARSHALL entertained at a "green kitchen" shower yesterday for Miss Elenita Dyer, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Robert A. Dyer, whose marriage to Col. James Batte will take place June 17.

For decoration on the buffet table the hostess had fashioned a miniature tree from fresh box sprigs and had studded it with mock orange blossoms.

Guests included Miss Drucie Snyder, Miss Jane Lingo, Mrs. McNeale, Mrs. Peter Challis-King, Mrs. Charles Cunningham-Brown, the Misses Mary and Louise Gore, Mrs. Grayson Headley, Mrs. Jean Pierre Gabriel, Mrs. Robert Dudley, Miss Adelina Copello, Mrs. Richard Marsh, Mrs. Lawrence S. Smith, Mrs. Spencer Davis, Mrs. Kimball Dieuaide.

Also, Miss Maria Elena Julia, Mrs. Marshall Bonner, Miss Anne Gillespie, Mrs. Gillespie Critchell, the Misses Marion and Laura May Norris, Miss Polly Norment, Miss Romona North, Mrs. Walter Wilds, Mrs. Kaden Tierney, Mrs. S. Daniel Suttenfield, Mrs. John Alexander Stuart, Mrs. William Thomson, Mrs. Harry Snips, Mrs. Frank H. Balsley, Senoritas Anita and Teresa Baraibar, Mrs. Leslie Douglas, Miss Courtenay Owen and Mrs. Diana Hatch.

Rep. Richard M. Simpson and Mrs. Mae J. Cox to Marry

Mrs. Norvey B. Greenwood entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower in honor of her sister, Mrs. Mae Josephine Cox, to announce the engagement of Mrs. Cox to Representative Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania. The marriage will take place June 12 in the Hamline Methodist Church.

Guests at the luncheon included Mrs. Frank K. Wall, Mrs. Paul Hathaway, Mrs. Frank Barley, Mrs. Robert Chandless, Mrs. John Stenhouse, Mrs. Charles P. Trussell, Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mrs. Peter Dracopoulas, Mrs. William Stimpson, Mrs. Edmund Johnston, Dr. Freda R. Ostrow, Mrs. Irvin A. Hoff, Mrs. Julien Holman, Mrs. Joseph W. Buell, Miss Helen Simpson.

From out-of-town were Mrs. Warren Simpson and Mrs. Robert Simpson of Huntingdon, Pa.; Mrs. Warren K. Myers of Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. Newton E. Randolph of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Joseph Giacomino of New York.

The bride-elect is the widow of Edward Parrish Cox, and the daughter of Mrs. Olav Henning of Seattle, Wash. Recently Mrs. Cox has served as director of the Washington branch of "Save a Friend in Europe, Inc."

Representative Simpson is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and Georgetown Law School. He has been a member of Congress since 1937.

Soroptimists Give Student Awards

By Genevieve Reynolds

Ten alert, attractive soon to be graduates of the local schools yesterday were presented key awards for outstanding scholarship, leadership and service. Honors were bestowed by the Washington Soroptimist Club at a luncheon held in the Willard Hotel.

Each of the honorees was accompanied by the assistant principal of her school. And out to give them congratulations also were Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of the District Public Schools; Miss Margaret Pepper, assistant to the superintendent; Lawson Cantrell, associate superintendent, and several members of the District Board of Education, including Adelbert W. Lee, C. Melvin Sharpe and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith.

Those receiving awards were Mary Ann Burgess, president of the Student Council, Anacostia High School; Betty McFarlane, captain of a Girl Cadet company at Central High School; Mary Lou Garner, honor student at Calvin Coolidge High School; Lucia Doris Parent, news editor of the Easterner, member of the Quill and Scroll Honor Society of Eastern High School; H. Virginia Lilienkamp, editor in chief of Tech Life of McKinley High School; Dorothea Jane Widmayer, highest scholastic student of class at Western High School; Margaret Dawes Graham, editor in chief of the year book at Woodrow Wilson High School; June Beverly Klein, editor in chief of the Reporter of Woodrow Wilson High School; Joanne King, president of Student Council of Notre Dame Academy; Mary Frances O'Connor, highest scholastic achievement plus athletic prowess at Country Day School of the Sacred Heart.

Assistant principals accompanying the award winners were Miss Anne Wolfe, Academy of Notre Dame; Miss Ethel Smith, Anacostia High; Miss Ruth McRae, Central High; Miss Aagot Nordby, Calvin Coolidge High; Miss Freda Egbert, Eastern High; Miss Miriam H. Selah, McKinley High; Miss P. Edna Thonssen, Western High; Miss Virginia Ronsaville, Wilson High; Mrs. Elva Wells, Roosevelt High, and Mrs. Frederick Tabor.

Dr. Corning commended the Soroptimist Club for its interest in the schools, community and welfare of the youth.

He pointed out that winners of the award had great competition in all the schools. "Scholarship is a real achievement," he explained, "but no matter how thorough scholarship is unless a spirit of service has been firmly planted in the students they won't do much to help their fellowman."

Miss Rae Epstein, chairman of the club's civic committee, presented certificates to the winners. The Soroptimist Key will be given to the seniors on their graduation day exercises.

Mrs. Rose Robison Cowen, club president, pointed out that the organization's service ran the gamut of all ages during the past year.

But They Last a Lifetime

We'd Like to See Dottie Slink in a Real Sarong; They Drag the Pavement

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IS ANYONE having sarong trouble? If so, this department has all the answers. Our dormant interest in sarongs was raised to fever heat by a casual meeting with Mrs. Bill Howard, or Dottie Lamour, the you-know-what girl. Since then, at the Netherlands Embassy, we met tiny, sloe-eyedly alluring Mme. Malia Soenario of Java, and, under her competent guidance went into the sarong problem thoroughly. We discovered that Miss Lamour's sarongs are too short, hitched too haphazardly for authenticity. A correct sarong should be a touch more than ankle length, its 3 yards plus of pleated cotton wound tightly at the waist, with no split in evidence. Sarongs are washed in tea water, never with soap. When damp-dry they're pleated by hand, never ironed. To keep pleats intact, a Javanese lady tucks them under her mattress, nights. A lady of consequence owns anywhere from 50 to 150 sarongs—with usual care a sarong should last half a century.

Javanese families repeat and use a favored design through generations—like the identifying kilt of a Scottish clan. The batik designs, done in wax completely free-hand, vary as do the basic colors in different parts of Java. Those with white backgrounds come from Jocja, the ancient court city, those with colored backgrounds come from Pekalongan.

Sarongs from the much-publicized islands of Bali and Lombok are shot with gold thread. Modern ones are plain with a deep border design; classical type sarongs have an all-over design. There! And, incidentally, the jacketlike blouse topping the sarong is called a "kebaia," the lacy scarf, slung across the left shoulder, is a slendang, and worn only by married women. Only a married woman may pin flowers in her hair. For the first time, on her wedding day, a girl may tuck a flower behind her ear. The theory is that flowers are so devastatingly becoming, it would be dangerous for an unattached woman to wear them!

Mme. Soenario, who spoke at the Women's Democratic Club Monday, is scarcely in her thirties but has four children, the eldest 16. She is the first Indonesian lady ever to leave home unaccompanied by either husband or relative. She is here for a two months stint to tell various clubs and organizations about what Indonesian women are doing. A daughter of a former regent of Bandung, as a very young girl she acted as her father's hostess. Her husband heads the Bandung police. When he was seriously ill, she was the first woman to go into real business and started an export-import concern. For some time she headed the Bandung Women's Club, was active in social welfare and so is extremely up to date on feminine affairs. And, by the by, Mme. Soenario is such a sartorial perfectionist she has slippers to match each sarong. High-heeled, made like mules, the toes are interwoven strips of colored leathers, suedes all of her own design. She brought so many pairs, he plane luggage was 40 pounds overweight!

Embassy Class Graduates

AFTER mentioning that Mrs. Nathan Wyeth was planning to instruct a few select females in the special art of embassy social-secretarying, this department was mildly inundated by would-be pupils too lazy to use the telephone directory and seeking an easy short cut through us. So, quite reluctantly, we became interested in Dodette Wyeth's first class. Seven of them graduated last week, completely versed in the politest of international social amenities, and were given a letter of recommendation by Mrs. Wyeth plus a gardenia corsage. They, in turn, presented their mentor with an orchid, its accompanying card carefully marked P. R. (Pour remercier—thanks). Here are the gals equipped to take on even the most difficult embassies, lubricate the stickiest social wheels—Mrs. James H. Brown, Mrs. Robert B. Fraser, Mrs. Tuesler Funsten, Nancy Haas, Mrs. John P. Hill, Mrs. Jeffery Lewis, Mrs. Charles Luckett, Mrs. H. H. Old, Mrs. William S. Ross. Mrs. Wyeth, in case anyone forgets, is social secretary at the French Embassy, doubled at the Brazilian Embassy until the departure of Mme. Carlos Martins.

Chinese Skit Will Be Part Of Festival

Joseph Wei will play the part of an Oriental official in the presentation by the Chinese Embassy at the International Festival at Constitution Hall, May 28, for the benefit of the Crusade for Children. Brocades, watered silks, ceremonial beads of ivory and jade, mandarin coats with borders symbolizing waves, mountains and clouds will be worn by "guests" who will call on him in his courtyard as he celebrates his birthday.

There will be friends wearing costumes of 10 dynasties. Most spectacular will be members of the wedding party who will come in authentic costume to pay their respects. The bride, Lily Lee, will wear a headdress of the now rare and tabu kingfisher feathers. Her gown will be of red, heavily embroidered with golden threads, the skirt encrusted with small bells that tinkle gaily as she walks.

Mrs. Elvin A. Hoy, representing a Manchu horseman of the steppes, will wear a stately headdress and exotic shoes with colored heels. Mrs. Hoy's costume was given her by Princess Der Ling and is one that was worn on state occasions.

Other diplomatic groups who are presenting scenes, songs and dances typical of their countries include the Austrian Legation with "Spring in Vienna"; the Swedish Legation with "Santa Lucia and the Star Children"; the Embassy of Siam with "Picture Dances," and the embassies of the Netherlands, Denmark, Italy, Greece, India, France, Poland, the Philippines, Great Britain, Mexico and 16 Latin-American countries.

Tickets may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. John Goodell, Sterling 3500.

Cornell Women's Club Will Hold Sale

To raise money for their scholarship fund, the Cornell Women's Club of Washington will hold a rummage sale on Friday and Saturday at 2001 K st. nw.

The final meeting of the year will be a picnic on June 5 at the home of Mrs. W. J. Norfleet, 506 Maple Ridge rd., Bethesda. The election of officers for the coming year will take place at that time.

Ice Cream Plea Is Easy to Answer

FOR an extra-special dessert, you can make a decorated brick of ice cream in your refrigerator tray. Line tray with waxed paper, transfer ice cream to it, and pack in well. A pastry tube or bag is handy to use in applying the decorations of tinted whipped cream. Use strawberries or other brightly colored fruit in the center. Fold waxed paper edges lightly over the decorations to catch any drips which might fall into the cream and cause crystals. After brick hardens in refrigerator, it's easy to take it out

By Lucia Brown

"LET'S have ice cream!" is a plea that can be answered without traveling very far or working very hard if you have an efficient electric refrigerator in your kitchen.

Evaporated milk is one of the standbys when it comes to making really creamy ice cream. It is featured in the following recipe for vanilla ice cream:

VANILLA ICE CREAM

3 tablespoons flour
2/3 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups scalded milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 (14½-ounce) can evaporated milk, chilled

Mix flour, sugar, and salt, and stir to a smooth paste with some milk. Add to remaining milk in the top of a double boiler. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Add flavoring. Cool. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until firm. Whip evaporated milk (which has been in refrigerator) until it is thick and will hold its shape. Fold in frozen mixture and beat with rotary beater until well blended. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until firm with control set at coldest position. This recipe makes about 1 quart.

AN EASY-TO-MAKE Butterscotch Ice Cream is this one which utilizes brown sugar and gets its smoothness from evaporated milk, a pudding mixture and plenty of whipping.

BUTTERSCOTCH ICE CREAM

3 tablespoons flour
2-3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups scalded milk
2 teaspoons vanilla or other desired flavoring
1 (14½-ounce) can evaporated milk, chilled

Mix flour, sugar, and salt and stir to a smooth paste with some milk. Add to remaining milk in top of double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Add flavoring and cool. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until firm. Whip chilled evaporated milk until it is thick and will hold its shape. Fold in pudding mixture, beat with rotary beater until well blended. Pour again into refrigerator tray and freeze with control set at coldest point. This recipe makes approximately 1 quart.

'Taste Makes Waist' for Homemaker

By Ida Jean Kain

I'VE never held with the accepted notion that the little woman calmly settles down and lets her figure go to waist because she's captured her man. Fiddlesticks! That's not the case at all . . . it's the cooking.

I base my argument on the senses—the most potentially fattening of which are the senses of smell and taste. Science backs me up. To begin with, women generally have a keener sense of smell than men do, and another thing, the sense of smell before a meal is acutely keen and the pleasant aroma wafted on the air stimulates the appetite. There you are. No wonder homemakers inquire if they can actually inhale calories while dinner is cooking!

And "taste makes waist," it's said. True, and a good cook must flavor to taste. All in all, by the time the little woman shops for food, cooks it and serves it . . . who can blame her for eating heartily? She comes to the table ravenously hungry. Indeed, she would have to have extraordinary strength of will to turn down her own cooking!

After the meal she clears off the table, so even if she had the courage to follow the excellent dietary rule to get up from the table feeling as if she could eat a little more—she still faces food! And the next day it starts all over again. Yes, compared with the homemaker's role, career women have an easy time of it when it comes to keeping streamlined.

AH ME—well, what to do? At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, stave off hunger pangs with a cup of hot tea, with a lump of sugar, or a big glass of buttermilk or skim milk. That doesn't add too much nourishment, because you only had 350 calories for lunch . . . a hot soup, made with skim milk, and a grilled sandwich on one thin slice of bread made with the left-over meat loaf. That way you get more protein than starch. And a piece of fruit—that's a fine lunch for few calories.

Dinner can include 500 to 600 calories, which allows for a good meal. "Diet" by leaving off bread and butter, strictly avoiding all fats and having fruit for dessert. Then, after dinner, go into the living room and relax for 15 minutes before clearing the table. You won't be nearly so tempted, for that nice satisfied feeling comes a short time after a meal is finished.

Eating to reduce is really the answer — it's the only way to change your food habits and build up resistance to overeating.

Send for Reducing on a Budget Diet by writing to The Washington Post and asking for the Ida Jean Kain Diet. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Only Lasting Way

A new coat of paint on the kitchen walls means first a good cleaning of the paint on there now, and the removal of all grease and dirt. Use soapy water with ammonia for the purpose. When this dries, the new coat may be applied. If done over the soil, the paint will not adhere and in a very short time the peeling process will begin.

Child's Phase Of Pretending Frets Mother

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mothers are apt to be bored or annoyed by a child's display of imagination unless they are aware of the natural growth phases of it. Then it is possible to identify them and enjoy them while they last.

At 3 or thereabouts, the child manufactures a playmate for himself. This companion may be of either sex, may be plural instead of singular and will for the time be as real to the child as any child of his acquaintance.

In fact, not only is he real to the child but he demands that he be treated as real by the parents, and is offended if they fail to serve him at the table, or forget an affectionate goodnight. The imaginary comrade is a great boon to the lonely child, and he is apt to disappear when the child's need for companionship is met. But, in either case, he disappears when this particular imaginative phase is ended.

The Animal Stage

At such time the mother's life is again made miserable by the child's insistence that he is an animal. Any animal, domestic or wild, will do, but once he has determined upon it, every event of his day is seen through the eyes of the animal. He makes all the appropriate noises, he eats in the appropriate fashion, and he is indignant if the parent cannot see him as he is determined he shall be seen. Needless to say, a little of this goes a long way with the parent, and her ability to play the game is limited by her own patience and degree of imagination.

But there is a third phase quite as irritating as either of these, and that is the period when the child cannot distinguish fact from fiction and weaves tales out of the proverbial whole cloth. The most commonplace happening looms large when recited by the imaginative child. Parents are hard put to determine whether the stories are false, because they sound so very true.

Truth Grows

Thus the story that William was carried off the playground and taken home by his mother because he got a terrible, bad cut may be true in part, but when investigated proves to be a mere early departure for some innocuous purpose.

Figures are of astronomical size; events of colossal importance, and the child is ready to say, "Really, Mother, it really did happen," when the happening is largely in the child's own mind.

By 7 or 8 all of these phases will have been lived through and abandoned for still exciting but more prosaic reality.

Oranges Re-Green After Heavy Rains

Only fully ripe fruit will re-green, so you needn't hesitate about buying fruit tinged with emerald for fear it is immature. It's a perfectly natural phenomenon, actually, caused by the chlorophyl changes in the skin of the fruit as the sap or moisture moves through the tree into the leaves and fruit, and it happens whenever there's a particularly rainy season down South.

The color change apparent on the outside is only skin deep, though, and inside the fruit is good as gold, and the color you've come to expect from this best Florida fruit of the year. Cut any greenish-tinged orange, and you'll find it thoroughly ripe and full of juice. It has to be ripe to be shipped, for Florida laws guarantee that only mature fruit can be picked.

Grapefruit is affected in the same way, though not so noticeably, but this is once when the color of fruit doesn't mean a thing—except that all the Florida citrus in local markets now is not only a good buy from the budget and health standpoint, but also as far as fine flavor is concerned.

You have to be very careful with this, though, to guard against roughing up the surface unduly or rubbing off nap. Sponge shiny area thoroughly first, then go over it gently with the steel wool.

After hours of work, a stainless steel pot with a copper bottom now looks virtually new except that the inside still shows the effect of having boiled dry. It was improved by salt and vinegar scouring, by baking soda and various metal polishes but still shows dark gray patches. Can you suggest anything further that can be done?

M. B. C.

The manufacturers of the type of ware you mention (trade name deleted) recommend only the special pads made by the company for cleaning these utensils. Perhaps these will help you to get the inside shiny again, although metals which have become extremely hot after boiling dry are often so changed in appearance that nothing can restore them. I understand that these pots are lined with aluminum, so boiling a solution of 2 teaspoons cream of tartar to 1 quart of water in the pot may be helpful in cleaning it.

I should like to know if the new detergents for dishwashing are harmful to china on which there are gold bands and encrustations. I have a lovely set of old Dresden china, with gold work on it, and I often wonder if I should use a mild soapsuds instead of the detergents. F.L.M.

A check at the chemical divisions of both the Bureau of Standards and the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, fails to turn up an answer to your question. I am told that some research is being done now at the Bureau of Standards on the subject, but the results are not available at this time.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Are Mantises Covered By the "Hatch" Act?

Mrs. Eubank's unhappy experience with the praying mantis cocoon brings an unexpectedly large response from other District Liners.

June Henderson of 2308 Ashmead pl. nw. tells me her father had a pet mantis which he called Senator Vandenberg "because of the perpetual look of surprise on his face."

Vandy was kept in a wire cage. Pretty soon a cocoon appeared, and Daddy put it in a chest of drawers for safekeeping, figuring that it wouldn't hatch until spring.

"But it hatched in the middle of winter," reports June, "and we sure had a time. There were thousands of them."

Mrs. Joseph D. Huzorich of Frederick, Md., has an even more harrowing tale to tell. Her 9-year-old daughter presented her teacher, Edna Culler (Parkway Elementary School, Frederick, Md.), with nine—count 'em—nine cocoons, "and you can imagine what poor Miss Culler had to cope with when they hatched."

Paul Anderson of 6522 5th st. nw. suggests that if you want to keep a cocoon around until it hatches, put it in a jar with air holes punched in the top. That'll keep the little beggars from taking over the premises.

Paul ought to be an expert on the subject. He's been raising the insects for years, and his mother has an article on the subject in this month's Natural History Magazine.

Mrs. S. T. Cabell of 48 Channing st. nw. also has a good suggestion. She says if you just put a branch of green leaves near the cocoon, the babies will congregate on it, and be easier to handle.

Which reminds me of Merriman Smith's new book, "A President Is Many Men."

Smitty explains that President Roosevelt used to serve the beer on the back lawn at his large summer parties, as a simple method of dispersing the hundreds of guests who, otherwise, would have become a fire hazard indoors.

Apparently praying mantises and preying guests will both make a beeline for the refreshments.

NEW YORK.—Ralph Bunche, the distinguished American Negro educator and Secretary to the U. N. Palestine Commission, has left by plane for Paris to join Count Bernadotte, the U. N.'s mediator for Palestine. They'll have a plane at their disposal, but haven't decided where to set up shop in Palestine . . . President Romulo Gallegos of Venezuela, the poet-novelist who became the first freely-elected head of the government there, will visit America in July . . . Maxwell Anderson has finished his new play and leaves for Hollywood for a four-month assignment on the screenplay of "The Robe."

Frank Sinatra was renewed by American Tobacco last weekend for the 1949 radio season at $7,500 a week . . . Sinatra, whose next movie will be "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," a story about a 1910 ball club, asked Horace Stoneham for permission to name the club the "Giants." Stoneham asked only one question: "Do they win the pennant in the picture?" When he received this assurance, Stoneham gave his consent.

Rita Hayworth, reported as having sailed for England on Friday, was in town Sunday night. She didn't make the boat . . . One of America's best known writers, a war veteran, is organizing a company of fighting men for Israel . . . Jimmy Roosevelt will be the only member of his family at the Democratic National convention. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., isn't being invited by the New York delegation because of his anti-Truman announcement.

Aubrey Eban, whose appointment as Israel's representative to the U. N. was revealed here six days ago, is giving up his South African citizenship . . . Leonora Corbett, the British actress, who appeared here in "Blithe Spirit" and "Park Avenue," sails for England on Saturday—her first trip back since the war . . . John Garfield, Burgess Meredith, Marlene Dietrich and the other stars who play bit roles in "Jigsaw," the Franchot Tone film now being made in New York, will receive no billing. The producers' acknowledgment will be in the foreword: "This picture was made with the obvious good-will of many friends."

Oleo Had Lobby; Housing Hasn't

By Drew Pearson

For several days last month the House of Representatives was tied up in the famous oleo-butter debate. It created a national sensation.

Pearson

The oleomargarine bill, pigeonholed by the dairy interests in committee, was forced out by a petition signed by 218 Congressmen, half of them from the South. Then the debate started. For several days it raged, with full attendance on the House floor urged by both parties.

Today, another sort of battle looms in the House of Representatives—only this time the situation is reversed. This time not only the housewife is involved, but her children, her husband, and the future of the American family.

But this time, the southern Congressmen who rushed in to sign the oleo petition aren't signing up. Neither are the Republicans. For this time the petition has to do with housing.

Real Estate Lobby

The Taft-Ellender-Wagner Housing Act, stymied for two years, has now passed the Senate, and is pigeonholed in the House Banking and Currency Committee. Its opponents on this committee include Representative Charles Fletcher of San Diego, Calif., and Representative John Riley of Sumter, S. C., both members of the real estate lobby and both placed on the committee with the help of Lobbyist Morton Bodfish, now under indictment.

In addition, Chairman Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, sometimes called No. 1 tyrant of the House of Representatives, is determined not to let the housing bill out of his committee.

To overrule Wolcott and get the bill out requires 218 signatures on a petition, and Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California has courageously undertaken to get these 218 names. First, she went to genial former Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

"I've never signed a petition in my life, Helen," replied Rayburn, "but I'm with you in spirit and I'll help you. Go to John McCormack and get his name on there first."

Mrs. Douglas went to McCormack, who comes from a congested part of Boston. He, too, had made it a practice not to sign discharge petitions, but in this case he made an exception. His name heads the list.

Mrs. Douglas has patiently, painstakingly, valiantly made the rounds of the House, has now collected 125 names. She needs 93 more. But they don't seem to be forthcoming—despite the fact that the bill has already passed the Senate.

Significant fact is that only 15 of the 110 Southerners in the House have signed the petition in favor of housing—despite their frantic anxiety to sign a similar petition to get the oleomargarine bill out of committee.

Steel for Arabia

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal gave his word to Congress recently that he would hold up steel shipments to Saudi Arabia until his military chiefs passed on whether a pipeline from the oil fields to the Mediterranean was necessary to American security. The Commerce Department, which controls export licenses of steel, also agreed.

Nevertheless, despite these promises, this column has learned that the American-Arabian Oil Co. is planning to pick up 16,000 tons of steel for shipment to the Near East on June 11, 12, and 22. The company also has started to lay the pipeline across the desert although, previously, company officials promised to hold off until they got the green light from Congress.

Note—Secretary Forrestal's old banking firm has done the financing for some of the companies backing American-Arabian Oil.

'Protocols' a Fake

Senator Harley Kilgore, forthright West Virginia Democrat, has asked the Postoffice Department to investigate whether rabble-rousing Gerald L. K. Smith violated the postal laws in using the mails to circulate a document, purported to be a Jewish master-plan for conquering the world.

A copy of the document, so-called "The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion," was mailed by Smith to each member of Congress. These protocols have reappeared perennially throughout history whenever propagandists wanted to impose on a gullible public. The old czarist regime in Russia published them, as did Henry Ford and later Adolf Hitler.

To settle the question of their authenticity, Senator Kilgore called upon the Library of Congress and received a detailed summary which branded the protocols as "rank and pernicious forgeries." He has now asked the Postoffice Department whether it is permissible to send them through the mails.

D. C. to Honor War Dead on Memorial Day

Washington will lead the country in paying tribute to the Nation's war dead at ceremonies which will culminate next Sunday, Memorial Day.

President Truman is scheduled at 11:50 a. m. to lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. At 12:15 p. m. he is to deliver an address to the Nation from the National Amphitheater.

To Get Gold Star Buttons

Presentation of Gold Star buttons to the kin of seven local servicemen who died in World War II will be a high light of the exercises. This ceremony will be a token presentation for all next of kin throughout the land who will receive Gold Star buttons by act of Congress.

The names of the seven area servicemen killed in action were drawn by District Commissioner John Russell Young. Presentations are to be made by the President and the chiefs of the armed services.

Vacationists are expected to start pouring through rail, bus and air terminals and the highways by Friday night.

Heavy Traffic Expected

Anticipating the heaviest Memorial Day traffic in history, the American Automobile Association warned that more than 300 persons will be killed on highways over the weekend, unless motorists and pedestrians are careful.

AAA estimates 25 million automobiles will be on the roads from Friday to Tuesday morning.

Since Memorial Day falls on Sunday this year, most places of business will be closed on Monday. Federal and District government workers will have the day off, and District and Municipal courts will remain closed.

Downtown department stores, banks, and chain grocery stores will also be closed. Students at District public and parochial schools will also get the extra day's vacation.

Permanent CAP Bill Sent to White House

House approval sent to the White House yesterday legislation making the Civil Air Patrol a permanent civilian auxiliary of the Air Force.

The CAP was organized during the war as a temporary auxiliary. It carried out antisubmarine patrols, and performed courier services and other jobs for the Air Force.

Truman to See Press Before Garden Party

President Truman will hold his weekly news conference at 3:45 p. m. today. This is 15 minutes earlier than usual and will permit him to attend the annual White House garden party at 4 p. m. for disabled veterans. The party was postponed from yesterday because of rain.

Tin, Antimony, Rice Controls Continued

The House passed yesterday a bill continuing until next February 28, Government controls on exports of tin, antimony and rice, and imports of fats and oils.
